NEW SAUSALITO DOWNTOWN PLAN

Planner Borgwardt Outlines Development With Revenues Coming From Parking Lots

A comprehensive development plan for downtown Sausalito, including city-owned commercial and professional buildings, underground parking and a northern parking lot, has been proposed by the city's planning director.

In a report presented to city officials, merchants and residents this week, planner H. Eric Borgwardt called for the city to prepare such a plan and offered his own suggestions of what it should contain.

The plan would be financed, he said, by revenues from recently initiated night operation of Municipal Parking Lots No. 1 and 3. It would incorporate (and revise) existing proposals for the city's core area, among them the Park Plaza and Bridgeway improvement plans and suggested changes in the Park Plaza plan suggested to the city last month by the Sausalito Park and Recreation Commission.

Borgwardt's development scheme, which was greeted with approval by two Sausalito businessmen's groups, would make three major changes in existing plans for Sausalito:

The Park Plaza plan calls for turning the city's 180-space Municipal Parking Lot No. 1 into an open park area, a suggestion which has roused the ire of the business community. The Borgwardt proposal suggests that semi-subterranean parking for 150 vehicles be provided in the area now occupied by Lot No. 1 and Vina del Mar Plaza. A water-oriented plaza of lawn and paved area, stretching down to the bay, would be constructed above the parking facility.

At present the Golden Gate Bridge District, which operates a San Francisco-Sausalito ferry service, has a temporary terminal south of the ferry Berkeley near El Portal. Borgwardt suggests the terminal be moved north to the area of Anchor Street.

A third suggestion, one not included in other official city plans, is for two city-owned commercial and professional buildings in the heart of downtown, both designed in harmony with Sausalito's victorian architecture.

One such structure would be built on the south side of Anchor Street, between Bridgeway and Humboldt Street and would include the proposed ferry terminal in its bayside wing, the planning director said. A similar building would be located north of the Bank of America in the area now occupied by Lot No. 2.

The planning director said he favored city ownership of the professional and commercial structures and the ferry terminal because, as a downtown landlord, the city could control the quality of business and fer-

BELFAST BLAST — Rubble from the bomb-shattered entrance to the headquarters of the Unionist Party litters a Belfast street. Terrorist bombs exploded at several locations in the embattled city today as workers crowded the streets on their lunch hours. At least 32 were injured, six seriously. Ambulances raced through the streets, picking up the wounded and taking them to hospitals.

Explosions Rock Belfast In New Ulster Violence

Wounded Rushed To Hospitals Following Noontime Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A series of explosions rocked downtown Belfast today as office workers went to lunch. The streets filled with screaming women and racing ambulances and fire engines.

Police said preliminary reports indicated at least 27 persons, some of them children, were injured — six of them seriously.

The first blast ripped the Glengall Street headquarters of Premier Brian Faulkner's ruling Unionist Party.

Five minutes later two simultaneous blasts ripped an underground car park in Franklin Street, causing a fire, and another car park in Adelaide Street behind Bedford House, home of the Northern Ireland Arts Council Gallery and the Community Relations Commission.

Two dozen ambulances raced through the streets, picking up from pavements men and women who lay groaning and bleeding.

Outside Bedford house bystanders wept as they told of seeing soldiers carrying injured children. School classes often visit the building.

The explosion at Unionist Party headquarters smashed the front door, demolished a staircase and blew out dozens of windows.

"I was very lucky I had my back to the window or I would have been badly cut," said party assistant secretary John Ogle. "As far as I know only two men of the dozen people in the building were hurt."

Robin Stewart, 21, was parking his car nearby when the blast blew out the vehicle's windows. He and a passenger both were taken to a hospital with cuts.

The explosion also shattered dozens of windows in the Europa Hotel across the street, Northern Ireland's biggest and most costly hotel which opened only seven weeks ago.

Crying women wandered dazed through the area, which was overhung by a pall of smoke. Much of the smoke came from the fire in the underground car park. Firemen wearing breathing apparatus battled the blaze and searched among the shattered cars for possible casualties.

Troops and police swarmed into the downtown area, cordoned it off and evacuated dozens of offices and shops. Police said immediately after the explosions many offices and shops received anonymous telephone calls warning that more bombs had been planted in their premises.

In another incident, an unidentified assailant threw a stick of gelignite at British troops in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district of Belfast, wounding one soldier slightly, an army spokesman said.

The soldier suffered slight leg lacerations and was taken to a hospital for a medical check, the spokesman said.

The wounding followed bombings of a border customs post and a Belfast bacon factory by men who army officials said were members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

The explosions caused heavy damage, but no casualties, an army spokesman said.

Thieu Asks Voter Support

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said tonight he would consider his one-man presidential election as a vote of confidence and that if he has lost the people's confidence he will resign and never run again.

He said he would run alone in the election because he must comply with the constitution, because of his patriotism and his opposition to communism. He said once peace has been restored to Vietnam he will resign the job which he said he does not covet.

"If the electoral results clearly show to me you no longer have any confidence in me I will withdraw of my own free will and will not accept the four-year term," Thieu said in a nationwide television speech. "In that case, I will never run again, ever."

"I will use all of my power to bring about peace," Thieu said. "When peace is restored, if you the people give me permission, I will resign." Thieu has long advocated a military solution to end the war rather than political negotiations.

Thieu, wearing a dark suit and tie, never smiled during the 27-minute broadcast.

"I must comply with the constitution, which requires that elections be held on or before the four-week period preceding the end of my term in office," Thieu said in a 24-minute national television address.

Their conferred for an hour with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, presumably to inform him of the contents of the speech. The United States was reported hopeful that Thieu would demote the election to a simple vote of confidence and thus ease the embarrassment of there being only one candidate.

"The fact that there were originally four slates and three are now out is either because they withdrew on their own or because they were eliminated by legislative requirements," Thieu said.

Thieu was referring to Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and retired Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh who have withdrawn from the race on grounds it is being rigged by Thieu and his followers.

"There will be only one slate, which is the Nguyen Van Thieu-Tran Van Huong slate," the president said. Huong is a former prime minister who is Thieu's running mate.

"If I did not run, I would be giving in to the tricks of the enemy," he said. "I would not be so irresponsible as to do this."

Thieu publicly and officially rejected Ky's recent proposal that they both resign and let the constitutional process take over. Under this plan, the speaker of the senate would become interim president and organize new elections within 90 days.

"The vice president said that he and I should make 'a small sacrifice.' Whatever I do (as president) has an influence on the national destiny. To accept that proposal is not a sacrifice, but a matter of desertion. I cannot do it.

"It would be dangerous to the nation and advantageous only to the Communists,"

As Thieu and Bunker conferred, Hanoi Radio observed North Vietnamese independence day by condemning the forthcoming Oct. 3 election as a farce.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong said the way the election was being handled helped the Communists and marked "the certain defeat of the Vietnamization program."

Legally, Thieu has several options open to him and has met frequently with Bunker in recent days to discuss them.

The United States government is dismayed at a one-man presidential race in South Vietnam, having hoped for a contested, fair election to demonstrate that democracy flourishes.

In its weekly casualty report, the U.S. military command said 19 Americans were killed in the war last week and 97 were wounded. The U.S. losses were the highest since the week ended July 17. It brought to 45,471 the number of Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1961.

The command also disclosed for the first time that 142 men were missing "not as a result of hostile action" and said the total was for Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos since the beginning of 1961. Spokesmen said they were listed as casualties and that next of kin were informed but that those missing did not include any known cases of absent without leave or desertion.

Freeze Challenge Raises Questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal district judge held today that the first legal challenge of President Nixon's wage-price freeze raised sufficient constitutional questions that broader court hearings might be warranted.

Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. denied a request by four law professors for a temporary injunction against the 90-day freeze, but held the record open for additional arguments to help him decide whether to recommend a higher court hearing.

Robinson concluded that "the constitutional question is substantial" and gave the Justice Department and the attorney for four Catholic University professors 10 days in which to supplement the record.

For the time being he ruled, however, that the professors — who lost out on pay raises as a result of the Aug. 16 freeze — had failed to show they were entitled to injunctive relief even though he agreed there was, in fact, "a case in controversy." In an oral opinion from the bench after an hour-long argument, Robinson denied the injunction request on grounds the professors had failed to show a likelihood they would succeed in proving their case. He said they also failed to show they had suffered "irreparable harm" —two criteria that must be met before an injunction is issued.

The Justice Department argued that an injunction could lead to "a massive dislocation of the administration's efforts to improve ... a serious economic situation."

The government attorney, David Anderson, asked Robinson to dismiss Nixon as a party to the suit, noting that in his official capacity he was not subject to its jurisdiction. The judge agreed.

Other developments:

—The Labor Department reported that wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent last month, based on data gathered prior to Nixon's announcement of the freeze. When adjusted for seasonal factors, they rose 0.7 per cent.

—The dollar continued to decline slightly in value on foreign markets in relation to other major currencies. It dropped in Japan, France, Britain, and West Germany.

The nation's biggest teacher organization attacked as a "great dis-service" an assertion by the Treasury's undersecretary that the freeze would bar pay increases for most school teachers this fall.

Air Pollution Directors Adopt Smog Alert Plan

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

REDWOOD CITY — A smog alert system calling for voluntary curtailment of automobile use, industrial operations and backyard barbecuing was adopted yesterday by Bay Area smog officials.

San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein objected to calling alerts only when weather forecasts indicated maximum pollution levels would continue for 12 hours. She said 12 hours was "just too long," but went along with the majority in the 12-1 vote by Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors.

The only "no" vote was by Portola Valley City Councilman Nevin K. Heister. He predicted public annoyance with the system because the district has no power to enforce it.

The district's director of technical services, Dr. Milton Feldstein, assured Mrs. Feinstein that many industries needed 12 hours to curtail operations, and that this was why the 12-hour period was set in the alert system.

A different explanation, however, was offered by a consulting engineer on the district's advisory council, Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael. He said the time period "depends on how often you want to call an alert."

The district's air pollution control officer, D. J. Callaghan, had suggested in previous hearings on the alert system that 128 alerts a year could be

Voters Approve Arab Coalition

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

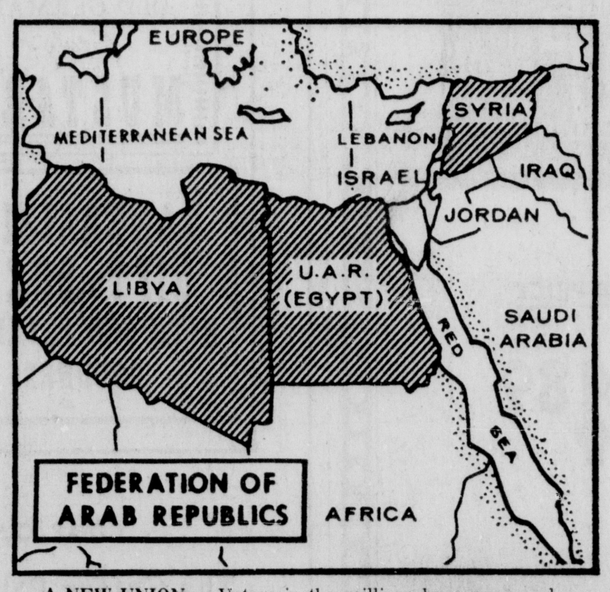
Egypt, Syria and Libya loosely united as the Federation of Arab Republics today with the announcement over Arab radios that voters in those nations overwhelmingly approved the union in referendum balloting.

Described by Egyptian, Syrian and Libyan leaders as a bulwark against Israel, the union was the first in the Arab world since the three-year federation of Egypt and Syria — the United Arab Republic — collapsed in 1961.

Egyptian Interior Minister Mamdouh Salem said 99.9 per cent of the 7.7 million ballots cast in the referendum voting in Egypt Wednesday favored the loosely structured political, military and economic union of nearly half the 100 million persons in the Arab sphere.

"The people have said 'yes' to the decisive battle (with Israel). They have said 'yes' to the acceptance of great responsibilities. They have said 'yes' to overall Arab unity. They have said 'yes' to a state built on faith and science," he said over Cairo Radio, proclaiming the creation of "the Egyptian Arab Republic."

Syrian Interior Minister Ali Zaza said over Damascus Radio that 96.4 per cent of the 1.8 million Syrians who cast ballots favored federation and 3.5 per cent disapproved. The remainder were spoiled ballots, he said.



A NEW UNION — Voters in the millions have approved a new linkup of Egypt, Syria and Libya into the Federation of Arab Republics. The slanted lines on the UPI newsmap pinpoint the new coalition.

Zaza said public approval of the federation, first created at Benghazi, Libya, last April during a meeting of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyian Premier Moammar Khadafy, provided "a strong base for the Arab struggle with Israel, the immutable base of Arab unity and the decisive answer to aggression and aggressors."

Libya did not announce the ballot total immediately, but political sources said the percentage figure for approval was certain to be in the high nineties.

The referendum asked the voters to approve the federation's constitution, agreed to in Damascus Friday by Sadat, Assad and Khadafy.

In Jordan, King Hussein said in a speech broadcast by Amman Radio that the weapons used by the Jordanian army "are Arab weapons, regardless of their source. The weapons are Arab as long as they are in our hands."

Hussein apparently was referring to a charge made by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Sunday that Jordan has received U.S. tanks and other arms for use against Syria. The monarch did not make clear, however, the source of the weapons used by Jordan.

Officials estimated that about 10 million persons over 18 voted in the referendum, the first in modern history to be held simultaneously in three Arab nations. Political sources in Beirut said it was likely 98 par cent or 99 per cent of the voters favored the federation.

Damascus Radio said the 5,000 polling stations in Syria stayed open late Wednesday because of the "heavy turnout of voters and to give everybody the chance to cast his ballot. It said the polls in Libya also were open late.

The Sudan is expected next year to join the federation, described by the Egyptian, Syrian and Libyan leaders as the "Arab answer to Israeli aggression."

Hike In Wholesale Prices Last Month

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent in August, the government reported today. It said the latest statistics were based on surveys made prior to the start Aug. 16 of the wage-price freeze.

The August increase, without adjustment for seasonal factors, was the same as the rise in July. When adjusted, the August increase was much greater—0.7 per cent compared to an adjusted increase of 0.2 per cent in July.

The August increase was led by a 0.5 per cent upswing in a broad range of industrial commodities. This was partially offset by a 0.3 per cent decrease in the price of farm products and processed foods and feeds. There was also a 0.3 per cent decline for farm products the previous month.

But the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said farm prices did not decline as much as usual in August, and therefore after seasonal adjustment the index for farm products and processed foods and feeds rose 1.4 per cent, compared to an adjusted 1 per cent decline in July.

The BLS said the wholesale price index in August was 114.9, meaning that goods which cost $10 wholesale in 1967 cost $11.49 in August. That was 4 per cent above the August 1970.

Unadjusted wholesale prices on consumer-finished goods went up by 0.3 per cent in August following a 0.1 per cent decline in July, the bureau said. Consumer foods alone increased 0.4 per cent.

The report said industrial commodity prices advanced 0.5 per cent mostly because of a 3.1 per cent increase in lumber and wood product prices, including a 7.9 per cent advance for plywood, as well as a 1.4 per cent increase in the prices of metals and metal products.

Iron and steel prices went up 2.8 per cent, reflecting price increases by steel producers following a new contract settlement with the steel workers union.

The report said the lower unadjusted farm product prices stemmed mostly from sharp declines for grains and chickens. Live poultry prices fell 16.8 per cent and grain prices dipped 9.5 per cent. But those declines were mostly offset by a 23.2 per cent increase in the price of eggs.

Prices for processed meats, poultry and fish went down 1.6 per cent and dairy products fell 0.7 per cent.

The BLS said seasonally adjusted prices for consumerfinished goods went up 1.1 per cent, including a 2.2 per cent advance for consumer foods, largely as a result of higher prices for eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables, and sugar.

Under Suspension

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — County Public Administrator Baldo M. Kristovich was suspended from his post by the Board of Supervisors Wednesday after the Los Angeles Grand Jury was ordered to investigate his handling of private estates.

Kristovich, 56, was accused of selling property to friends and then falsifying probate court records. He was unanimously suspended by the board for 30 days after he failed to appear to answer the charges against him.

Kristovich accused County Counsel John D. Maharg of a personal vendetta against him and said of estates under his control totaling $100 million "not one penny is missing. All the money is in the bank."

He said he will appeal to the County Civil Service Commission within 10 days for reinstatement.

Pact Is Delayed

BERLIN (UPI) — A dispute over the German text of the Big Four agreement on Berlin today forced postponement of the signing of the accord by the ambassadors in West Berlin.

The ambassadors did not appear for the 1 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) ceremony at the former Allied Control Authority building in the American sector because last minute meetings of four power working parties still had not agreed on the German text of the accord.

Western allied diplomatic sources said there was no thought that the East-West dispute would torpedo the first agreement on Berlin since the one ending the 1948-1949 Berlin blockade.

Ask More Flights

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Lunar scientists, marveling over new findings about the moon made possible by the Apollo spaceflights, called on the space agency Wednesday to revive Apollo 18 and 19.

The two flights were canceled when the space program's budget was trimmed. But scientists at NASA headquarters said the moon is too interesting to stop exploring after the scheduled end of the Apollo program next year.

Dr. Gary Lathan of New York's Lamont-Doherty Observatory reported new methods of studying moonquakes initiated by the most recent Apollo 15 landing detected "swarms" of tiny quakes that ripple through the moon at high speeds for more than two days at a time.

A Phone Hookup

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China has agreed to establish indirect telephone communications with the United States, apparently in preparation for President Nixon's trip to China, it was disclosed today.

Kokusan Denshin Denwa (KDD), the Japanese telephone and telegraph company, said Peking had agreed to the indirect line, scheduled to go into service Friday, in response to a query from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The new service, which will be relayed through Tokyo, will cost $12 for the first three minutes. KDD said it did not know when the service would be suspended.

Will Leave FDA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William W. Goodrich announced his retirement as Food and Drug Administration (FDA) general counsel on May 28 and recommended that Peter B. Hutt, a friend and private attorney, succeed him.

Hutt got the job despite opposition from Ralph Nader and other consumer advocates who complained that Hutt might find it difficult to regulate his former law clients — food industry groups including the Institute of Shortening and Edible Oils.

Hutt, 37, started work at the FDA Tuesday. The day before, Goodrich, 56, started a new job, too — as president of the Institute of Shortening and Edible Oils. The association's 15 member firms are subject to FDA regulation.

Sato: Ties Remain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato says neither President Nixon's proposed trip to mainland China nor the U.S. surcharge on imported goods has damaged relations between America and Japan, the New York Times reported today.

"So that there can be no misunderstanding about our basic position, I would like to repeat this: The basis of our foreign policy is our close relationship with the U.S.," Sato was quoted as saying.

Sato said although Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge added to goods imported into the United States will hurt some Japanese industry, such as the export and shipping trade, Sato said the new U.S. economic policy would also in some ways benefit his country.

Jets To Germany

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, citing a hope that the United States can be put off conflict within 18 months, has announced the sale of 175 phantom jets to West Germany for increased security.

Laird said at a news conference Wednesday that the sale of the fighter-bombers to the Bonn government would "add quite significantly" to West Germany's ability to defend itself.

The estimated $750 million sale was believed to be one of the biggest foreign orders for Phantoms ever placed.

Legion Asks Ban On Flags

HOUSTON (UPI)—A resolution adopted by the American Legion asks Congress to make it a crime to fly a flag of any nation or revolutionary group hostile to the United States.

The legion Wednesday also asked President Nixon and the Congress to restore patriotic holidays to their original dates. This includes Memorial Day and Veterans Day, which were moved to Mondays to give three-day weekends.

The antiflag law asked by legionnaires at their 53rd convention would also apply to any country which holds Amricans as prisoners of war. The United States has no such law, and Viet Cong and North Vietnamese flags are often carried at antiwar demonstrations.

Vote Stand By Mitchell Challenged

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI)—Attorney General John N. Mitchell suggested Wednesday that newly enfranchised students, attending school away from home, should be forced to vote by absentee ballot and not be allowed to participate in the college town elections.

Mitchell said the federal government will not provide guidelines to make it easier for college students to vote in the 1972 presidential elections.

Speaking to the annual convention of the National Association of Secretaries of State—made up of officials who usually enforce state voting procedures—Mitchell said allowing students to vote in college towns would discriminate against other voters, particularly servicemen.

Mitchell's suggestion drew a charge from the Democratic National Committee that he was playing politics with the voting rights of young Americans.

The issue is controversial in some small college towns where officials fear that students could take over the government from the outnumbered townspeople. But some states have no provisions for absentee ballots, and students away at college would be unable to vote.

The Democratic committee issued a statement saying Mitchell was "clearly attempting to use the authority of his high office to influence Richard Nixon's 1972 election fortunes...it is clearly a political tactic by Mr. Nixon's chief political strategist."

Mitchell denied the charge, saying "this has nothing to do with the President's re-election. This is a matter for the states to decide, and it always has been a matter for the states."

Bill To Hike Military Pay May Outflank The Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A potential blockbusting exemption to President Nixon's wageprice freeze looms in the form of a $2.4 billion military pay raise tentatively scheduled to take effect Oct. 1.

The annual salary hike is embodied in a pending draft extension bill that has been approved by the House but still awaits final action by the Senate.

The size of the pay raise and its effective date were agreed on by House and Senate negotiators shortly before Congress left on its summer recess and just before Nixon froze wages and prices as part of his new economic program.

On Wednesday Nixon, acting in the spirit of that policy decision, formally postponed for six months a Jan. 1 pay boost for 5.6 million government workers, military and civilian alike—and he hinted a planned October, 1972, raise might also be put off.

Because of differences in the way the military and civilian laws were drawn it won't be that easy for the President to delay the military salary increases.

Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., of the House Armed Services Committee, backed up by House legal experts, contends that the President will have no choice but to raise military pay as of Oct. 1 if he signs the draft bill.

The theory buttressing this argument is that Congress was aware of the controls but decided it still wanted the armed forces to get its pay raise.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally already has ruled that longevity raises and other military benefits flowing from existing law are frozen; but the new military pay raise would be from a new law, once Congress passes the draft extension —and it was Congress which gave the President authority to impose the freeze in the first place. "I can't conceive of the President not paying the raises if he signs the bill," said one congressional technician.

The President has the option of vetoing the bill. But since a protracted battle over an anti-war amendment to the measure has already left the President without authority to induct men into the armed services since June 30 he is likely to want the draft to resume as soon as possible.

Neither the administration, nor the organ it created to administer the freeze, the Cost of Living Council, has yet announced what it would do about the military pay hike.

Some congressional observers speculate that the President may try to persuade the Senate to hold up action until both it and the House have had a chance to reconsider the pay raise in light of the freeze.

Should Congress send Nixon a bill with an Oct. 1 pay raise the President conceivably could take the position that the freeze applied to it too. If he does there may not be much Congress can do about it.

But a member of the armed forces, such as a recruit whose annual compensation would rise from $3,165 to $4,872, could ask a federal court to order the President to pay the new wage scales —contending they were now the law of the land.

Petaluma Backs Regional Plan; Pressure Charged

With one city councilman reversing his previous stand amid implication of pressure from a state senator, Petaluma's city council last night did an about-face and endorsed formation of a regional government of northern counties.

Changing his stand was Councilman William A. Perry who on Monday had gone to Sacramento at the invitation of Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

Collier has introduced legislation creating a north county regional government and was said to have been annoyed at Petaluma's announced preference for remaining in the Association of Bay Area Governments.

When Perry, accompanied by Councilman Robert A. Brunner, went to Sacramento the announced purpose was to persuade Collier to help end a suddenly developed delay in funding of the Washington Street interchange in the city.

Perry's change of vote last night, creating a 4-to-3 endorsement of the Collier proposal, followed sharp council discussion of possible pressure brought to bear on Perry.

Mayor Pro-Tem John W. Cavanagh Jr., and councilmen Perry, Brunner and Robert E. Daly voted for the endorsement while Mayor Helen Putnam and councilmen Richard W. Clecak and Fred V. Mattei voted against it.

After more than an hour of talking about regional governments and how they should operate, Councilman Mattei exploded about the pressures which had been put on Perry.

He said Perry told him "he had had the full treatment." Mattei said he had also heard second-hand of pressure brought to bear on Perry to change his vote. The pressure, Mattei said, came from Supervisor Phillip Joerger, from Jeffry Cohen, Senator Collier's representative in Santa Rosa and finally from Collier himself. Collier had asked Perry to Sacramento where, Mattei said, hints of delay in the $1.3 million Washington Street interchange were probably made. Mattei said that pressures had even come from Perry's business associates.

"Why Perry? Why not me? Why not Mayor Putnam or Councilman Clecak?" Mattei asked.

A sudden stillness came over the 60-member audience and council as they awaited Perry's answer.

"I have not been under any pressure," Perry said. He said that he and Brunner went to Sacramento to see Senator Collier just "to have better rapport with him."

(After the meeting, Perry denied that Senator Collier had made any threats about the Washington Street project. He also denied that the subject of the Washington Street project ever came up in conversation with Collier. He did say that the trip to Sacramento Monday was at the invitation of Senator Collier.)

It was after the Sacramento trip that the four members of the council requested last night's special meeting to consider endorsing Collier's Senate Bill 920 creating the northern county regional government.

"Just what did you learn from Senator Collier that made you suddenly change your mind?" Mayor Putnam asked Perry. "Tell the rest of us here on the council so that we might know. Maybe we would all change our minds."

Perry was slow to answer. "There is something in Senate Bill 920 which we can get amendments so Sonoma County could be included or not," he said.

"Then I can't see why the urgency to back the bill. Let's wait until they put in the amendments and then back the bill we want," the Mayor said. This remark drew applause from the audience.

Perry admitted that it would take more study and changes to get the bill that they wanted.

After the vote, Mayor Putnam said, "This community is a portion of the state and cannot disassociate itself from either the Bay Area or the northern counties," she said, adjourning the meeting until 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Fog Clears Up, Pigeons Return

DERBY, England (UPI)—Fog cleared and hundreds of pigeons lost in "the greatest disaster in the history of homing pigeon racing" flapped home, racing federation officials said today.

Organizers said an estimated 20,000 homing pigeons worth about $600,000 became lost when fog closed in over eastern England during a race last weekend.

"The greatest disaster in the history of homing pigeon racing," the organizers, the North Road Federation of Derby, said at the time.

"There has been a considerable improvement in the weather and change in wind direction, and I am pleased to say that a good percentage of the birds have now returned," Harry Bexon, a federation official said today.

Watson Claims Complete Brainwashing By Manson

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles (Tex) Watson, on trial for the Tate-LaBianca murders, has confessed on the witness stand, pleading that he heard "Charlie's voice saying kill everyone in the place."

Watson, 25, who has entered a defense of not guilty by reason of insanity, told a jury Wednesday he was so brainwashed by drugs, women, music and Charles Manson's philosophy that "I had no identity of my own."

With his mother listening from the rear of the courtroom, the neatly dressed Watson related calmly and in detail the slayings and said the victims were just "blobs without faces or expressions."

Watson denied he had told actress Sharon Tate and the others that "We are devils here to do the devil's work."

"Charlie had taught us that we could do no wrong," he said.

The former high school star athlete and scholar told of coming to Los Angeles in 1968 seeking "adventure." He had never been away from his tiny hometown of Copeville, Tex., except for three years in college in Denton, 50 miles away.

He had smoked one marijuana cigarette the day he left, Watson said, but he soon entered a world of LSD, peyote, hash and belladonna and joined the commune at the Spahn Ranch where he found a "magnetic pull" from which he could not escape.

REFLECTIONS OF A FAIR

Composer Burt Bacharach's lyrics "raindrops keep falling on their heads ..." captures the spirit at the Oregon State Fair in Salem. Yesterday late summer showers fell in the area, but they didn't dampen the enthusiams in the carnival area of the fair where visitors were mirrored in a puddle of water. (UPI Telephoto)

New Twist Is Slashing Of Woman

Clues hint that whoever slashed Sharon Kay Del Santo twice in two weeks may have been someone close to the family rather than a foe of her policeman husband, San Rafael police revealed today.

Mrs. Del Santo suffered superficial cuts and her home was left in a shambles Tuesday night. A similar attack took place on Aug. 18. Her husband, Robert Del Santo, a San Anselmo police officer, was on duty both times.

San Rafael investigators reported today that the woman said that while she was being held and slashed with an electric knife by a silent, masked attacker Tuesday night, she heard sounds of typing elsewhere in the house, as well as of breakage. Police found a typewritten note. They said the message alluded to aspects of family life and to a new unlisted telephone number that could not have been known to a stranger.

The note was turned over to E. Don Stottlemeyer of the state Criminal Investigation and Identification Bureau, to undergo laboratory tests in Sacramento.

Police also reported that Mrs. Del Santo said she fired a shot after her attacker released her and retreated. The bullet plowed through a picture and into the wall.

Inspector Richard A. Douglas said today, "We just haven't been able to establish any motive behind the entire thing." He said Officer Del Santo was well liked, and had no known enemies.

Mrs. Del Santo said she saw only one attacker Tuesday night, but saw two youths during the Aug. 18 intrusion of the home.

Suit Filed Against Project's Timetable

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A group of Stinson Beach residents today filed suit in San Francisco Superior Court to restrain state and regional water quality control officials from ordering Bolinas to move ahead with its portion of an $8.1 million sewage disposal project for both communities.

(See stories pages 6 and 7 describing the Bolinas-Stinson Beach project and the controversy over it)

The action, by 101 residents, also asks the court to restrain the state Water Resources Control and Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board from leveling fines against the Bolinas Community Public Utility District if the district does not speed up completion.

On Aug. 9 the state attorney general's office, at the request of the regional water board, filed suit to force Bolinas to adhere to a timetable for construction of the system, a schedule set by the attorney general's office in February. The action threatened the district with fines up to $6,000 for each day it fails to comply with the timetable.

The Bolinas district, which dumps raw sewage into the Bolinas Lagoon from 180 homes in the downtown Bolinas, has been under fire from water officials since 1963. The latest cease-and-desist order to prevent the district from continuing to pollute the lagoon was issued in June of 1970.

Today's suit by the residents charges that both water boards have failed to comply with the California Environmental Quality Act of 1970 which requires a detailed study be prepared of the environemntal impact of projects such as the waste disposal system.

"If these agencies had complied with the law and considered the project's total effects on the environment, they would have abandoned it long ago," said Michael Sanford, attorney for Stinson Beach projects, a group seeking to block the proposed system. "The people of the Bolinas-Stinson area stand ready to cooperate with water quality officials as soon as they agree to adopt a rational approach to the Bolinas sewage problem," Sanford added.

Residents in both communities have sought to halt the project because they claim it is too large and too expensive and will have disastrous effects on the population and environment of the area. The system is being planned by the Bolinas District, in conjunction with the Stinson Beach County Water District.

called. Feldstein, however, has predicted four or five a year.

But Callaghan cautioned the board that "we'll have egg on our face" if an alert is called and then the weather unexpectedly blows away the pollution. It will be up to him to call an alert.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort suggested that bridge tolls be hiked during alerts to discourage auto use, and the staff was asked to discuss his ideas with the state and Golden Gate Bridge District.

Several other directors, however, objected this would work an inequity against Marin and East Bay commuters, who have to cross bridges to get to work. Peninsula commuters, on the other hand, would be unaffected by such a step.

Marin Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. agreed with Bort that new state laws were needed to empower the district to control auto use. Without such controls, Arrigoni said, "industry is going to be penalized" by carrying the burden of cutting pollution.

Feldstein explained that the maximum levels of various pollutants that will trigger an alert were set to prevent pollution from reaching levels that affect human health.

An alert will be called throughout the nine-county district whenever the maximum level is reached at any of the 12 monitoring stations.

Feldstein acknowledged an alert may be incomprehensible in Santa Rosa when the weather there is perfect. But if, at the same time, maximum levels are exceeded at San Jose, then cutting down on pollution throughout the district will be needed because pollutants drift south from Santa Rosa, he said.

New federal regulations require the district to establish by January a three-stage emergency action plan, ranging from "alert" through "warning" to "emergency." Controls are tighter at each level, with driving banned and industry shut down at the "emergency" level.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors also:

MARIN — Received reports of six violation notices issued during the past month in Marin: Center Medical Hospital, Kentfield; Guasco Market, San Anselmo; Ducanson-Harrelson Co., Larkspur; Petrini's Meats Inc., Greenbrae; Chriy Hackney, Lagunitas; and Massman Construction Co., Mill Valley.

CODE — Dropped Callaghan's title of chief administrator in favor of air pollution control officer, and increased the daily pay of the three hearing board members from $75 to $100, effective after the current federal wage freeze.

FILM — Viewed a district film describing its achievements. Mrs. Feinstein suggested it be revised "to show what remains to be done."

INDUSTRY — Accepted an invitation from the Bay Area League of Industrial Associations for a "field trip" starting at 9 a.m. on Oct. 15. Mrs. Feinstein said she wanted to see "not only the showplaces, but the problem areas, too."

CONTRACT — Approved a contract to supply the state with meteorological forecasting and air monitoring data for $30,000 a year.

United States for the outlawed political organization.

Cahill, the most wanted man in Northern Ireland, will learn Tuesday whether he can remain in the United States.

Cahill was denied entrance to the United States Wednesday, his visa was canceled and he was detained overnight by immigration authorities.

The purpose behind Cahill's flight from Dublin to New York was to begin a four-or five-week tour of American cities in an effort to raise funds for the militant IRA faction he heads. He said the funds would be used to purchase guns to fight British troops in Northern Ireland.

Cahill agreed today to remain in custody until Sept. 7 when immigration authorities will decide whether he should be allowed to make the tour.

Slight Drop In Novato Figures

Novato Unified School District's overall enrollment for the 1971-72 school year is down 352 from last October's count, Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley reported today.

The elementary enrollment, kindergarten to sixth grade, is 6,244 as compared to 6,691 last fall, down 447 pupils.

In contrast junior high school enrollment is 2,746, up 72, and high school enrollment is 2,396, up 23.

Rail Accidents Off During Last Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— There were 994 operating and nonoperating accidents involving railroads in California in 1970, compared to 1,353 the previous year, a State Public Utilities Commission report said Wednesday.

In 1970 there were 53 fatalities, compared to 88 in 1969.

PLAN

ry operations. Also, he said such an arrangement might bridge the gap which has existed for the past two decades between the commercial and residential communities. "Under this plan the resident community would have a genuine vested interest in the success and future of the downtown area," Borgwardt explained.

Also included in the proposal would be a program to remodel existing structures in the core area and enhance the downtown by sidewalk widening, paving, planting, lighting, benches and trash receptacles.

A northern parking facility of between 600 and 1,800 spaces, with shuttle service to the downtown, would still be necessary even if parking is retained downtown, the planning director said, "because we can never provide enough spaces downtown to satisfy peak visitor demand."

Night parking revenues not used for preparing the downtown plan could be set aside in a special reserve fund to accomplish the proposed development, according to Borgwardt, or used to establish the northern parking facility.

Revenue bonds could provide initial financing of buildings and improvements, he said, with city income from rentals and parking in the area used to repay the bonded indebtedness. Before proceeding with the plan, Borgwardt urged that the city conduct a financial feasibility study of the entire project.

Robert D. Bauerle, president of the Sausalito Businessmen's Association which has often been critical of city proposals, particularly the park plaza plan, reacted favorably to Borgwardt's suggestions for downtown. "The planning director has incorporated into his plan ideas the business community has presented to him over the past few years," Bauerle said.

Raymond L. Roy, president of the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce said he liked the plan, that it "sounded good" to him.

Innocent Plea; Trial Is Set

James Willie Johnson, 40, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent today in Marin Superior Court to a charge of child molesting.

Jury trial was set for the week of Nov. 1.

Johnson was arrested July 22 after an 8-year-old Tiburon girl told Marin County sheriff's deputies that a man had forced her to commit an unnatural act in a parking lot behind the sheriff's Tiburon substation.

Sausalito Board Has Busy Agenda Tonight

Approval of reading materials and programs for the coming school year and employment of certificated and classified personnel will be considered at a special meeting of the Sausalito School District board at 7:30 p.m. today in Bayside School.

The board will also hear a progress report on remodeling of Bayside School and a report of the district's food service program. In addition, trustees will consider an agreement with the Marin County Schools Office for a program for educationally handicapped children.

Controversial Sign Wins 2-Year Stay

A scaled-down version of a controversial sign last night received a two-year lease on life from the Larkspur City Council.

The directional sign for the Bon Air Apartments may remain at the Greenbrae interchange, developer Neils J. Schultz Jr. was told, at least until June 30, 1973, at which time the city can elect to order the sign removed if the state Division of Highways provides a sign locating Larkspur and Greenbrae.

Schultz's sign may be no larger than 202-square feet, about one-third present size, the council ruled in its 3-2 vote.

Councilmen Alfred Malvino and Benton A. Sifford dissented, the latter wanting the sign slated for elimination in 1975 no matter what the Division of Highway does.

The council also ordered abatement of a long controversial fence owned by Dr. Robert G. Ceniceros at 10 Hazel Avenue, despite presentation by Ceniceros of a petition he said favored the fence and was signed by all residents within a 300-foot radius.

BIKES — Decided to "educate" rather than ban bicycle riders from using heavily travelled Magnolia Avenue between Bon Air Road and Doherty Drive, after completion of an off-street bicycle path.

RAILWAY — Approved Northwestern Pacific Railway's request to abandon service from Detour (about Tamal Vista Avenue) to Sausalito subject to the condition the state Public Utility Commission restrict Northwestern from disposing of the property until a proper public use for the right-of-way could be considered.

GATES — Approved installing two gates at each end of Meadowwood Drive to prevent vandalism and motorbike racing on the road where children play.

DEFERRED — Deferred for one month three ordinances setting fees for sewer connections and street openings, encroachments, plan checking and architectural supervision. City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said the council couldn't make a decision on the fees in light of President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

OLD MUSE — Abated effective Oct. 5 an old house at 302 Madrone Avenue owned by Helen Martin Sharpe.

HIGHWAY — Agreed that there was no adverse environmental impact on the widening of Highway 101 from Richardson Bay to the Greenbrae interchange.

Navy Announces The Goo's Gone

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The giant oil spill which has fouled up Southern California beaches since Aug. 20 is gone and now only the cleanups, investigations and legal actions remain.

The Navy Tuesday ended its oil scooping and skimming operations on grounds no concentrations of goo could be found even though less than half of the estimated 229,000 gallons which spilled from the Navy tanker Manatee have been cleaned up.

But the Navy said the remains had either dissolved or formed into thousands of small clumps.

Low-Cost Youth Fares Due Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided to investigate whether the low-cost youth air fares to Europe discriminate against older passengers.

Some New York to London round-trip fares have dropped to $190 — compared to the normal off-season tourist class fare of $452 — because of a price cutting war among trans-Atlantic air carriers.

The reduced fares generally apply to persons between the ages of 12 and 26. although some extend up to the age of 29.

Doctor Says Clinics Vital

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Medical Society's president says a boycott of the United Bay Area Crusade fund raising drive may result from plans to stop financing a dozen hospital clinics for the poor.

Dr. Paul Scholten, the president, said Wednesday the society may instead start its own fund drive for the clinics in San Francisco and Alameda counties.

"We consider it a grave error for UBAC to direct funds to grass-roots organizations, many of them devoted to propagandizing ethnic consciousness, while ignoring clinics which provide basic and vital health care to minorities."

The crusade is considering turning over the $700,000 formerly allocated to the clinics to its "New Directions" program in order to provide "concentrated services" to ghetto areas.

Batik Paintings To Be Exhibited

An exhibit of tie-dye batik paintings by Marin artist Chris Menkin will be shown until Sept. 11 at the Rotunda Gallery of the City of Paris in San Francisco.

Mrs. Menkin introduced a new treatment for tie dye batiks in her paintings, combining ancient Florentine Renaissance wax methods of preservation with modern dyes and refined waxes.

Reds List War Aid To North Viets

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union today listed the aid it has given North Vietnam and called it "one of the most important factors... in forcing the United States to stop the war."

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, took the unusual step of listing the categories of Soviet war aid and numbers of personnel involved in an article saluting the 26th anniversary of North Vietnam's independence day.

Customarily, Soviet dispatches concerning military aid to any country avoid any detail at all on the materiel involved.

"During the war years, the Soviet Union was sending to the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam the arms, ammunition and other military equipment that became the foundation of the republic's antiaircraft defense system...," Pravda said.

McCloskey Will Take To Political Trail

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., will take his quest for the GOP presidential nomination to New Hampshire this weekend, where —among other things —he will make a backpacking trip into the presidential mountain range.

McCloskey's schedule begins with a stop at a fair in Lancaster this Friday and winds up Sept. 8 with an address before the Concord Chamber of Commerce.

One Creek Project Case Dropped; Five Are Fined

Charges against one person arrested in a 1969 demonstration against the Tamalpais Creek project were dismissed yesterday and five other persons arrested in the demonstration were fined $50.

All had been charged with trespassing and failing to disperse.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court dismissed the charges against Lola Kagen Hanzel of Kentfield after her attorney attempted to enter a no contest plea in her behalf.

The attorney, Carl B. Shapiro of San Anselmo, told the judge that only the trespassing charge was to be pressed against Mrs. Hanzel because it had been determined the property she was on during the demonstration was her own.

Shapiro attempted to offer the no contest plea and recommended a $25 fine for his client, but Smallman asked Deputy Dist. Atty. Kathryn D. Mitchell how Mrs. Hanzel could possibly have been trespassing if the property was her own.

Miss Mitchell said she wasn't sure but thought the case could be researched.

Judge Smallman disagreed, refused to accept the plea and dismissed the case.

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony, who has handled the prosecution of cases stemming from the demonstration, said later that Shapiro erred in entering the plea to the trespassing charge instead of to the failure to disperse charge.

Anthony said he and the attorney had agreed there was a defense for the trespassing charge, in that it was Mrs. Hanzel's property, but less of a defense to failing to disperse. They had agreed, Anthony said, that Mrs. Hanzel would plead no contest to failing to disperse and the trespassing would be dismissed.

Shapiro, however, maintained that the agreement with Anthony had been to plead to trespassing.

In any case, Anthony said, there was nothing he could do about the case now that it was dismissed.

Mrs. Hanzel was one of 38 persons arrested in the demonstration.

Two others, James Blair Detro and Thomas Peter Brunsing, yesterday pleaded no contest to the two misdemeanor charges and were fined $50 each by Smallman.

Attorney Charles W. Pierce of San Rafael entered no contest pleas to both charges for three of the demonstrators who, he said, were out of the state.

Jane Anne Ellis, Charles Douglas Meyer and Melina Deil Fitting were each fined $50.

Of the 38 arrested, three cases have now been dismissed, 30 have been sentenced and five are awaiting court action.

Smallman yesterday continued three of the remaining cases until tomorrow.

Innocent Plea To Drug Counts

Donald Joseph Padilla, 23, of Tamalpais Valley, has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to charges of possessing marijuana and possessing LSD for sale.

Jury trial was set for the week of Nov. 8.

Padilla was arrested Oct. 14, 1970, after he sought to reclaim a sack containing what appeared to be $30,000 worth of LSD and some marijuana which had been found in shrubbery near his home by a neighbor.

Unsure Future For Sewage Plan

By PAT ANGLE

A multimillion-dollar sewage system for Bolinas and Stinson Beach which appeared until recently to be but a few penstrokes from becoming reality is now an uncertain matter indeed.

The state, urged by the Regional Water Quality Control Board, had given the project urgency by suing the superior court to force the Bolinas Community Public Utility District to speed sewer development, holding over the district the possiblity of $6,000-a-day fines for violating a cease-and-desist order against pollution of Bolinas Lagoon.

The county board of supervisors had agreed to underwrite a $5.6 million joint bond issue of the utility district and the Stinson Beach County Water District to pay for the project and was on the point of creating two assessment districts to finance the new system.

The federal government, members of the utility and water district boards believed, were looking kindly on the project to which it would be asked, along with the state, to contribute $2.5 million.

There had been no evident opposition by resident to the $8.1 million project during the many years of its development and, indeed, Jose Silva, charman of the utility district board, recently complained bitterly that "at no time did anyone show up at our meetings to protest or suggest alternative routes."

But today, the situation is very different.

In recent months, two highly vocal groups of residents — Bolinas Future Studies Center and Stinson Beach Projects — have emerged, seeking to block the project. Their impact has been felt.

The federal government, through the Environmental Protection Agency, has announced that it wants to study the project for its impact on the environment and that federal and state grants will not be approved until the study is completed, a matter of perhaps six months.

The water district board has announced that it, too, wants to take a second look at the project which it is on the verge of partnering and has asked the county supervisors for the time being to delay creation of the two assessment districts. The water district board has hired a consultant to make the study and to seek alternate solutions to the communities' sewage problems.

Stinson Beach, the water district board is well aware, is not under the gun. like Bolinas, which pollutes Bolinas Lagoon with raw sewage, drawing the fire of the water quality control board. Stinson Beach is served by septic tanks beyond the regional board's purview and its problems have been of concern largely to the county health department when septic tank failures have necessitated boiling water before using.

What are the arguments on both sides of this growing controversy which has brought the once apparently sure-fire sewage project to its present doubtful state?

Opponents of the system, which would dump treated waste into the Pacific Ocean via an outfall pipeline, say it is far too large and expensive for the 1,300 permanent residents now inhabiting the two communities, that it will force disastrous population growth and that it will damage the ecology of the region.

Those who favor the project, including directors of the utility and water districts, concede population growth may result and that the project is indeed expensive. They argue, however, that the alternative is to have no project with even worse consequences. And, they say, the system proposed is the only practical method found for the region in nearly eight years of research and planning and is the only one that will meet the Regional Water Quality Control Board standards for discharge of effluent.

Does it really taken an $8.1 million facility to handle wastes from the approximately 1,100 homes in both communities, the dissenting residents want to know? Since engineers estimate the treatment plant, which determines the capacity of the entire system, will serve about 4,650 persons, the opponents point out the project will cost about $1,750 per person.

The opponents of the large system believe a relatively inexpensive method could be found to stop the discharge from the 180 homes in Bolinas, from polluting the lagoon, which they say is the crux of the problem. They claim to have several alternative methods under study. And they think the utility and water districts should upgrade and improve septic tanks in Stinson Beach and elsewhere to take care of the remaining wastes from the two communities.

Those protesting the project say many new ways of handling wastes are being discovered all the time and claim the districts are not aware of all the latest developments in the field. Some members of Stinson Projects and the Studies Center believe some way must be found to recycle and re-use solid and liquid wastes and the water the system will use, particularly since both communities are threatened with future water shortages if the proposed sewer system is built.

Residents worry the high cost ($5.6 million to be raised by assessment) will force larger land owners to sell off lots to pay the bill, causing rapid, unwanted development in the two rural communities.

Many persons, particularly young professional people, have purchased several acres of land on which to build their homes, with no plans for future development, but only because they like the open space. But since financial consultants for the district say an average 10-acre parcel in Stinson Beach, for example, will be assessed about $16,700 if it is benefited by the system, open space may become a luxury most people cannot afford, the opponents say.

Even costs for lands not benefited by the system can mount up, at the estimated assessment of $310 an acre, according to the protestors. For example, the Audubon Canyon ranch which owns about 1,000 acres will have to pay about $200,000 toward the project cost, according to Stan Pitcher, a member of the ranch's board, who said the facility undoubtedly could not pay such an assessment.

While residents feel high costs will lead to development, many also believe the accessibility of a sewer system will raise assessed value of undeveloped land, and thus taxes, since costly septic tanks will no longer be needed for development.

And they point out the $40,000 a year which engineers estimate will be necessary for maintenance of the system, will also have to be borne by property owners in the area.

James V. Stevens, vice president of the Stinson water district, conceded the project is expensive. But he said that both districts and their engineers studied many different types of plants, designs and schemes for sewage disposal before deciding what kind of facilities would be best for the area.

At the time the decison was made to go forward with the current project, Stevens said the districts were convinced the planned system was "the least expensive, best operating, lowest maintenance" system possible, providing "the largest benefit for the money spent."

"I recognize there have been new inventions and schemes put on the market in the last year and some of these could possibly benefit us," he said. "I am more than open to any other system which would better solve the problem, but to date no one has come forward with one." He said the consultant the Stinson district has hired to study alternatives to the project may come up with a better plan and promised he would push for adoption of any more feasible solution to the problem.

Stevens also agreed that the system's high cost may force owners of large acreages to sell off lots to pay assessments and thus encourage development. But he believes the alternatives to a waste disposal system for the communities are even more grim than the prospect of a development boom.

"Our engineers studies have shown both Stinson and Bolinas are polluting the lagoon," he said, "and if nothing is done, we could be faced with a ban on all building in the area and some homes could be condemned because septic tanks just don't work in certain areas.

"We may find ourselves in a situation where the person with property is not allowed to use his land and the homeowner is forced out of his home," Stevens added.

Other concerns voiced by resident groups are ecological. Peter Warshall, of the Future Studies Center, has warned that discharge from the outfall off Agate Beach in Bolinas will return to the beaches and to Duxbury Reef and damage marine organisms on the reef and in adjacent waters. The same objections have been voiced by the Sierra Club.

Project engineers seem convinced the sewage, which will be treated in aerated lagoons with a minimum of chlorination, will be moved away from the reef and beaches by ocean currents and would not harm either area even if they should intrude.

Another complaint by both opposing groups is that the proposed system has never been put to a vote of those who will have to pay for it. Two petitions they circulated, a referendum and initiative, recently collected the required number of signatures to put the issue on the ballot. But the county counsel's office (which also represents the water and utility districts) ruled both petitions invalid on legal technicalities and has asked the courts to rule on their validity.

Meanwhile, members of the studies center have initiated a recall election Nov. 2 against two directors of the utility district board, and have entered candidates against the directors up for recall and against two other members of the five-man board whose terms expire in December. If the center's candidates take control of the board, there is an excellent chance the group will use its new authority to stop Bolinas participation in the project and seek alternative solutions to the waste dumping from the 180 homes.

If the disposal system is halted permanently — and the obstacles in its path seem to be growing daily — another problem will confront the 1,300 residents in the two tiny communities.

The two districts are committed to pay about $350,000 to Kennedy Engineers and the engineering firm of Brown and Caldwell which have completed designs for the project.

If the proposed system is scrapped and the bonds to finance it are never sold, the money to pay the engineers must be raised through property taxes in the two districts.

Point Reyes Master Plan To Be Viewed

The Point Reyes National Seashore preliminary master plan, drawn up by the National Park Service, will be discussed by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission at a special meeting next Tuesday at the Civic Center.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. in the planning commission chambers on the third floor.

Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, said the commission wants to get public reaction on such questions as these: Is the proposed 5,000 acres of wilderness area sufficient? Will cars and roads be held to a minimum within the seashore? What are the transportation and circulation plans within the seashore?

The master plan for the seashore calls for preservation of natural assets and establishment of environmental and education centers. The plan proposes a minimum of "structured activities." However, the plan is not specific enough to designate where the roads will be, where camps and centers will be set up and what accesses will be provided.

West Marin Sewage Plan Is Really Three Projects

By PAT ANGLE

A proposed $8.1 million sewage treatment and disposal system to handle wastes from the West Marin communities of Bolinas and Stinson Beach is essentially three major projects: joint use facilities and two collection systems, one for each community.

The total cost to be borne locally is estimated at $5.6 million and would be financed by two assessment districts established by Marin County supervisors with the county underwriting bond redemption. The remaining $2.5 million needed would come, developers of the project hope, from state and federal grants and assistances.

The districts would follow basically the boundaries of the Bolinas Community Public Utility and Stinson Beach County Water districts which have been planning and working toward such a system for about eight years.

Under current plans for the system, Stinson and Bolinas would share the benefit, and the cost, of $3.2 million in joint facilities, including an ocean outfall pipe, a treatment plant and a major pumping station. Each community would build and finance its own collection system.

The joint use facilities envisioned by the districts and their engineers include:

OCEAN OUTFALL

The most expensive single portion of the project, the $1.1 million outfall pipe would be located about 2,500 feet off Agate Beach in Bolinas. It will discharge treated sewage into the Pacific Ocean at a depth of 32 feet and a dilution of 80 parts water to one part waste, according to Robert L. Mills of Kennedy Engineers, a San Francisco firm which has designed both the joint facilities and the individual collection system for Bolinas.

Total capacity of the 15-inch pipe, according to Mills, would be 5.4 million gallons per day, with 3.3 million gallons coming from infiltration by rainfall, high groundwater and other seepage, and with 2.1 million gallons in actual sewage handling.

The 2.1 million gallons, Mills said, meant an ability to serve about 16,000 persons (more than 10 times the present population of roughly 1,300 in the two districts), based on average use of 100 gallons per person and taking into account peak discharge periods at times when most people use the sewer facilities.

Mills said that the large outfall pipe was decided upon since it would cost little more to construct than a smaller one,

Bolinas And Stinson Would Share Costs

would be easier to install in rough ocean current and would eliminate risk of costly expansion should the population of the area grow.

TREATMENT PLANT

The 465,000-gallon capacity of the treatment plant will actually determine how many persons the proposed system can serve, according to Mills, since all wastes must be treated in that facility.

To be located on the north side of Poplar Road on the Bolinas Mesa, the $700,000 plant is designed to serve 4,650 persons (permanent population in both communities is currently about 1,300. It could be expanded at a later date to serve more persons, Mills said.

The plant will be of an aerated lagoon type, providing secondary treatment of wastes. (Secondary treatment is said to render wastes harmless to plant and animal life).

Mills said the kind of plant envisioned for Bolinas is an extremely simple one in which wastes are allowed to settle in holding ponds until the disease-causing bacteria die off. The wastes are then oxidized to convert toxic ammonia to a non-toxic substance, and stabilize organic matter which consumes oxygen and could consequently have adverse effects on marine life, Mills said.

After treatment the quality of waste will be monitored and the sewage may be chlorinated from time to time if such disinfection is deemed necessary.

WHARF ROAD PUMP STATION

This $300,000 major pumping station to pump wastes from Stinson and downtown Bolinas to the treatment plant will have a capacity of 1.8 million gallons, since the pumps will only operate during certain hours of the day. It can ultimately serve 8,500 persons, according to the engineer.

The porposed site of the facility may have to be changed since the original location has come under fire from the Marin County Fill Committee. The committee has charged the station as planned would have a detrimental visual impact on the shoreline and could possibly increase siltation at the mouth of the Bolinas Lagoon.

A force main and gravity sewer to carry sewage from the pump station on the west side of the lagoon to the treatment plant on the Mesa will cost an estimated $200,000, the engineer said.

Under a joint powers agreement formalized by the Bolinas and Stinson districts in December of 1969, Stinson Beach will be entitled to 58 per cent of the capacity of the joint facilities and Bolinas to 42 per cent. Residents in both districts will share the cost accordingly, although the districts hope that most of the expense of the joint facilities will be paid through state and federal grants.

The majority of the costs of the individual collection systems for both communities will be borne by the property owners in the assessment districts.

BOLINAS COLLECTION SYSTEM

The proposed $1.9 million sewer system will consist chiefly of six-inch lines, according to Mills. This size pipe is consistent with standard engineering practices, he said, since smaller lines become clogged too easily, necessitating expensive, underground repairs.

Included in the Bolinas system will be four pumping stations to move sewage through the lines, located on Yucca, Olema and Nymph roads and Canyon Avenue.

Mills said the collection facilities planned for Bolinas could serve an ultimate population of 8,000 persons. In planning the capacity, the engineer said the firm considered the multitude of substandard small lots on the mesa, the "reasonable possibility" that the population of the area will double in the next 50 years, and visitor influx into the scenic area.

STINSON BEACH COLLECTION SYSTEM

The $3 million sewer system proposed for Stinson Beach could serve an ultimate winter population of 6,400, according to Richard C. Bain of Brown and Caldwell Engineers who designed the project. But the number of residents the system can serve will actually be controlled by the 2.1 million gallon capacity of the $220,000 force main which will pump Stinson's sewage across the lagoon to treatment facilities on the other side. The collection lines themselves will be able to hand 1.8 million gallons in a series of six-inch pipes, with a few eight and 12-inch gravity sewers for areas that require them. The system will include a $208,000 pumping station and compressor and six small pumping stations to pump discharge into the force main.

Cost of Stinson's system will be considerably greater than that for Bolinas for two reasons, according to Bain: high ground water levels and sandy soils will increase construction difficulties and, while Stinson has no sewer lines at present, Bolinas has a sewer system which already serves approximately 180 homes.

Exactly what the project will cost individual property owners in the area will not be known until construction bids are in and federal and state assistance has been secured.

But on the basis of available estimates, owners of improved lots in Stinson will pay an average of $2,500 per $7,500 square foot parcel, according to Michael Whipple of the consulting firm of Stone and Youngberg which is preparing individual assessments for the project.

Their counterparts in Bolinas will be assesed an average of $1,050 per parcel, with the lower cost due to the existing sewer system in that community and lower ground water levels and different soil conditions. Homes on the existing system will pay only about $150 toward the local share of the joint facilities cost, Whipple said.

Owners of unimproved land in both communities will pay assessments ranging from $2,000 to $310 an acre, depending on the amount of benefit the property will receive from the system (The $310 charge will be for land not substantially benefitted).

In addition, the landowner will be charged extra for each building site on his property which will benefit from the project and must also pay for a lateral connection from his home to the nearest sewer line.

For example, Whipple said the owner of 10 acres of benefited land in Stinson Beach would be billed an assessment of about $16,700, including all charges.

Property owners can either pay their assessments within 30 days of billing, he said, or can pay them over a 25-year period, at about 7 per cent interest.

Judge Getting Tough On Michigan's Busing Unrest

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

A federal judge, contending busing is "as American as apple pie," has refused to revise the north's first massive school desegregation order.

And Judge Damon J. Keith warned vandals at Pontiac, Mich., where 10 buses were destroyed by explosives Monday night, that "this case will not be settled in the streets.

"If necessary, we will put marshals (on the buses), we'll bring out the FBI or use whatever remedy necessary so that it's carried out," Keith said Wednesday in Detroit.

Keith dismissed a suit filed by the National Action Group to halt his order to desegregate Pontiac's 24,000-student school system, particularly blocking the busing of 8,700 children. School opens Tuesday.

In Georgia, federal Judge Alexander A. Lawrence directed two Rhode Island educators credited with drawing up the controversial Charlotte--Mecklenburg, N.C., school plan to devise a desegregation program for Richmond (Augusta) County, Ga.

Lawrence gave Myrle Herman and Dr. Howard Munzer until Sept. 21 to present a suitable plan that requires extensive busing.

Georgia's assistant school superintendent, Dr. Joseph N. Edwards, said, meanwhile, he foresees no new desegregation problems.

"I definitely think they are over," said Edwards. "Invariably, the patrons who call me are not concerned with the color of teachers anymore, they just want a qualified teacher."

At Austin, Tex., high school football coach, James W. Tolbert Jr., said Wednesday he was attacked by about 30 black youths at a newly-integrated school. "Fortunately, I was able to get up off the floor and grab a chair and start swinging," Tolbert said. School was dismissed early.

Some parents at San Francisco, where busing also is a controversy, criticzed the city's school superintendent, Thomas A. Shaheen, Wednesday for planning a trip to Europe during the opening days of the new school term in mid-September. A school spokesman said Shaheen would attend "a workshop in Germany."

And in Boise, the Idaho Supreme Court declared unconstitutional a 1970 state law allowing the use of state funds for the busing of parochial school students.

Atlantic Flier To Return Home

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—Leonard Gelfand, of Orange, Ohio, made plans today to return to the United States with his 14-year-old son Mitchel and the body of the boy's grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Krasnoff, employes at the Frommer Hotel said.

Mrs. Krasnoff, 74, died in her sleep Wednesday at the hotel after flying back and forth virtually nonstop across the Atlantic between New York and Amsterdam for several months.

Mrs. Krasnoff, of Cleveland, Ohio, died without revealing the reason for the world's longest, most costly and puzzling commuter trip.

Her grandson, Mitchel, who accompanied Mrs. Krasnoff on her transatlantic odyssey, and the boy's father also refused to give an explanation.

Santa Rosan Hurt In Crash

A 71-year-old Santa Rosa ma has been treated at Hillcrest Hospital for injuries suffered in a two-vehicle crash in Petaluma.

Police said a panel truck driven by Elmer Larsen, the Santa Rosan, and a car operated by Michael D. Wessel, 17, of 604 Crinella Drive, Petaluma, collided at 10:41 a.m. Tuesday at Petaluma Boulevard and B Street.

Larsen suffered unspecified injuries.

Span Plan Approved By Marinwood CSD

Marinwood Community Services District directors last night approved Army Corps of Engineers proposals to build a bridge across Miller Creek behind the community center.

The span project, which also must be approved by Dixie School District and utility firms, will be a training project for the engineers, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager-secretary. The bridge will open access to the site of planned additional district tennis courts.

Mrs. Bolding reported the directors received county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell's report that the district's assessed valuation for fiscal 1971-72 is $11,284,000 and the district tax rate will be $1.19 per $100 assessed property valuation. Last year's rate was $1.23, she said.

Directors accepted the resignation of Sheilla Herrfeldt from the Marinwood Park and Recreation Commission, and appointed alternate Irving Schwartz in her place. Mrs. Herrfeldt and her family are moving to Santa Rosa. Sue Cahn was also named to the commission as a representative of Upper Lucas Valley. The seat had been vacant for some time, Mrs. Bolding said.

Clothes Taken

Clothing valued at more than $2,000 was taken in a burglary of Giovanni's of Italy tailoring shop at Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center Sunday, Marin County sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Fall Enrollment To Be Near 7,000

A record 6,300 students will be signed up for classes at the College of Marin and 450 for Indian Valley Colleges when registration closes Sept. 24, the Marin Community College District board of trustees was told last night.

District President-Supt. John A. Grasham reported that 2,979 continuing students already have enrolled for the Kentfield campus, plus 2,257 students either new or returning after interrupted studies. Last year's total signup was 6,062.

Two thirds of the available classes were filled as of Aug. 24, Grasham reported.

The students signing up for Indian Valley Colleges studies will study at Hamilton Air Force Base, in Novato schools and in other temporary quarters until the new campus opens.

The Marin Community College District board also:

FOOD — Heard a report that the Associated Students of the College of Marin has recommended hiring two separate caterers for the student center — Servomation to operate the cafeteria, and R. Pace to run a natural foods snack bar.

WORKSHOP — Set a special meeting for discussion of classified personnel salary surveys at 8 p.m. Sept. 13.

BOND STRATEGY — Set a meeting with the citizens' bond committee on the Measure A bond campaign for 8 p.m. Sept. 14.

ADVISERS — Agreed to meet with the trustees' citizens' advisory committee at 8 p.m. Sept. 20, to "receive input on major issues" affecting the district.

LIBRARY — Awarded the construction contract for the Kentfield campus's new library to Ralph Larson and Son of South San Francisco, on a bid of $2,579,000. The Jasper Construction Co. of Santa Cruz was allowed to withdraw a lower bid of $2,499,613 after the firm discovered a $180,000 subcontract item had been forgotten. Budget for the project was $3,341,119, including federal and state funds.

TREES — Hired Lesley S. Mayne Associates of Burlingame as consultants for tree planting on the Indian Valley Colleges campus at a $240 fee.

EQUIPMENT — Approved purchases of $9,090 additional equipment for the new science center, headed by a $6,826 digital voltmeter with printer. Federal and state funds will pay two-thirds of the total outlay.

CHILD CARE CENTER — Following a presentation by interested mothers, students and faculty, ordered a letter sent to the county board of education, saying that the district trustees will consider establishing a Kentfield campus child care center at its Sept. 15 meeting.

MARIN CITY — Learned that federal and state vocational funds had been denied for the college's proposed classes in Marin City, on grounds the plans were centered on adult training rather than classes for unemployable youths.

VEHICLES — Approved sale of five old vehicles to highest bidders, ranging from $800 offered by David Allen Swingle for a 1956 model 21-passenger bus to $25 for a 1961 Cushman three-wheeled cart.

GIFT — Accepted with thanks the gift of 237 books from Michael Kitz-Miller, deciding to keep 155 of them worth $500 for the district libraries and to offer the balance to Sonoma State College.

ADULT CLASSES — Approved the fall semester list of 138 adult education and community service classes, including 12 new courses.

HIRINGS — Approved employment of Ann Coder as half-time librarian for one school year only; James U. Copening as coordinator of the Center for Independent Study and Joy A. Gordon as Varitypist at $581 per month.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Varitypist Joyce Madden and library clerk Virginia Slevin.

LOANS — Extended for three years the district contract with Academic Financial Services Association for service on National Defense student loans.

EQUIPMENT — Amended the district policy to permit students to borrow musical instruments and other equipment and take them off-campus after proper documentation.

COMPUTERS — Discussed plans for in-service training to be offered any district teacher, in use of the college's computers. The program will be listed for a vote on Sept. 15.

DRAKE — Learned that no action will be recommended on sale of district property to permit widening Sir Francisco Drake Boulevard, until the Sept. 15 meeting.

Trustees Say Bond Plan Not Affected

The California Supreme Court blow against property tax financing for school districts should have no effect on the $16,760,000 Marin Community College District building bond issue on the Nov. 2 county ballot, the college trustees decided last night.

Board member Martin J. Dean pointed out that the ruling involved schools' operational financing, rather than capital outlay such as the proposed Measure A on the Marin ballot.

Trustee Theodore C. Wellman reported the court decision was extensively discussed at a meeting in Sacramento yesterday of Community Colleges Chancellor Sidney W. Brossman with his advisory panel on which Wellman serves.

Whatever the outcome of the ruling, it cannot affect California's schools during the 1971-72 year, Wellman predicted last night. If State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger appeals the state ruling to the U. S. Supreme Court before the 90-day deadline, the state court order will be shelved until a federal decision is handed down.

Wellman also predicted that the Legislature will try to solve the property tax problem in the near future. He said that most solutions proposed so far, saddle local districts with too much outside control.

The college bond committee has established a campaign headquarters in free office space at the Marin Senior Coordinating Center in San Rafael, according to district Supt.-President John A. Grasham.

Cochairmen for the pro-bond committee are attorney Hadden W. Roth of Tiburon and Grace Mitchell of Novato. Treasurer for the committee will be William Murray, San Rafael bank officer, and finance chairman will be Robert A. Roumiguiere, San Rafael real estate man.

College Trustee Frances Compton reported finding that Marin "citizens were very anxious to carry the ball" for the $16.76 million bond issue. She called for a large turnout of newly franchised 18-to-21-year-old voters.

Associated Students officials reported they had registered 700 students since the voting age was lowered.

Barrows Will Present Report

John F. Barrows, newly appointed county administrator, will report to the board of supervisors Oct. 5 whether he thinks his own office ought to be reorganized.

Under the regime of Alan Bruce, who resigned in June, the office had a staff of two assistant administrators, two senior administrative analysts and two secretaries.

On the heels of his selection by a 3-2 vote Tuesday, supervisors briefly discussed whether Barrows would need two assistant administrators — then agreed to leave the issue to Barrows for his recommendation.

The administrative office had been short two men since July when analyst William R. Pryor resigned. That post was filled this week, with the arrival of Robert Peterson, 31, former personnel analyst for the City of Richmond. He will receive $914 per month.

Peterson worked as a junior systems analyst for the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in the East Bay from 1967 to '68, when he joined the city staff. During the past year, he traveled overseas and studied at Sophia University in Tokyo.

Appeal By Drumgo, Clutchette Denied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Court of Appeal yesterday turned down a habeas corpus petition filed last week by Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette, the surviving "Soledad Brothers."

The two San Quentin convicts filed Aug. 27 asking the court to remove them from the prison and place them in protective custody pending their San Francisco trial on charges of killing a Soledad State Prison guard last year.

The petition was also asked for an impartial hearing officer to hold a hearing on alleged brutality in the prison.

The petition was accompanied by a hand-written affidavit brought out of San Quentin's adjustment center and signed by 26 convicts there, protesting their treatment since the Aug. 21 escape attempt in which the third Soledad Brother, George Jackson, was killed.

The appellate court denied the petition without comment.

$1,000 Received So Far For Handicapped Program

Officials of the Petaluma High School District, seeking to raise $5,000 to give disadvantaged and handicapped students work experience, said yesterday they have obtained $1,000 of their goal.

Half of the raised sum came from the Easter Seals Society, said George Castleberry, assistant superintendent of Petaluma schools.

The school district, through a special foundation, began the fund drive in July. It intends to place about 50 students under work superviosrs for up to six hours a week.

Officials seek to encourage job dependability, proper work attitudes and good appearance and to give the students job entry skills and instill a desire for employment.

Contributions may be sent to the Petaluma Foundation for Handicapped / Disadvantaged Students, C / O Castleberry, Petaluma Schools Administration Building, Fifth and B streets, Petaluma.

Colombo's Sons Won't Answer To Pistol Thefts

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two sons of Joseph Colombo Sr., reputed Brooklyn underworld leader, refused to answer Wednesday when questioned by police about the theft of 75 pistols from Kennedy Airport two years ago.

Joseph Colombo Jr. was questioned only briefly but Anthony Colombo was interrogated for nearly 45 minutes. Anthony pleaded the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer 19 questions.

The government asked that Joseph Jr. be ordered to submit to fingerprint tests, apparently to determine if prints found on one of the stolen guns was his. Judge Orrin G. Judd ordered attorneys to present briefs on the issue next Wednesday.

Khakis Now Guard Buckingham Palace

LONDON (UPI)—Khaki-clad Royal Artillery troops took over guard duty at Buckingham Palace Wednesday because of a shortage of the regular redcoated and bearskin-hatted palace guards who are serving in Northern Ireland and overseas.

It was the third time this year that troops of other regiments have been detailed to guard the royal family's London residence because the regular guard units were not available. In November, a unit of Gurkhas, the British army's renowned soldiers from Nepal, are scheduled to take over at the palace.

New Nursing Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The army has named Lillian Dunlap, 49, San Antonio, Tex., as head of the Army Nurse Corps, and elevated her to brigadier general —only the fifth time a woman has achieved that rank.

Gen. Dunlap will be handing down orders to men as well as women in her new post since almost one quarter of the army nurses are male.

Tax Cut Petitions Circulated

An initiative petition aimed at cutting property taxes in half is being circulated in Marin.

The initiative, called the Jarvis Amendment from its sponsor, Howard Jarvis of the United Organization of Taxpayers Inc., would set a maximum property tax rate of 1 per cent of market valuation. The current state average tax rate is 2 per cent.

John Winters of Larkspur, Marin coordinator for the initiative, said yesterday about 3,000 signatures already have been collected in Marin in the drive begun a few weeks ago.

The initiative needs 520,806 bona fide signatures thoughout the state to become law.

Winters said volunteers wishing to help circulate petitions should contact him at his home.

A group of volunteers will be on hand Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Red Hill Shopping Center in San Anselmo.

The Jarvis amendment also would remove about 84,000 foundations and charitable trusts from the tax-exempt rolls. The legislature would have the power to reinstate legitimate organizations on the tax-exempt rolls, Winters said.

Man Denies Stealing Cycle

Christopher Austin Fenn, 23, of Mill Valley, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of vehicle theft and possession of stolen property.

Preliminary hearing has been set for Tuesday.

Feen was arrested July 26 when Mill Valley police stopped him for driving a motorcycle without a taillight. A check revealed the motorcycle had been stolen in San Francisco and the license plates stolen in Oakland, police said.

How Frame Homes Held Up In Quake

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Only 1 per cent of wood frame homes in the San Fernando Valley suffered damage greater than 5 per cent in the earthquake of last spring, according to a study by the insurance industry.

The 300,000 wood frame dwellings in the quake area "performed very well," Hal S. Morr, general manager of the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau said.

The agency said mobile homes suffered more damage because they were "poorly braced."

Losses to high rise buildings built to quake resistance standards never exceeded one per cent.

The insurance group said "failure of numerous freeway bridges pointed out the need for substantially increased design requirements."

The report also said that insurance companies were reviewing the problem of insuring property below dams which could be broken in an earthquake.

Clipper ships were three-masted sailing vessels noted for their speed.

Goldenaires Set Journey South

The San Rafael Goldenaires will take a three-day trip, Sept. 17 through 19 to Southern California.

Highlights of the trip include a visit to the Queen Mary in Long Beach, Santa Barbara, and Danish Days in Solvaang. Further information and reservations may be made at the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department center headquarters in Albert Field Clubhouse.

TO DISCUSS THE USE OF FUNCTIONAL CLASSIFICATION AS A BASIS FOR DETERMINING WHICH LEVEL OF GOVERNMENT SHOULD BE RESPONSIBLE FOR WHICH PART OF THE TOTAL HIGHWAY, ROAD AND STREET NETWORK.

WHERE	WHEN
Board of Supervisors Meeting Chambers	7:30 PM
Civic Center	September 16, 1971
San Rafael

The purpose of this hearing is to discuss the recently completed Functional Classification study and its possible effects upon the forthcoming Section 256 Report to the State Legislature. Functional Classification is a means of describing the purpose of each highway, road and street in serving the traveling public by grouping them into systems according to the kind of service they are intended to supply without regard to present jurisdiction. The concept of using a functional classification system as a logical basis for determining which roads should be the responsibility of the State and which roads should be the responsibility of the cities or counties will be discussed. In addition, specific tentative recommendations resulting from this study regarding ultimate additions and deletions to the State Highway System within Marin County will be discussed.

Written and oral statements from any interested persons or groups regarding the functional classification concept or the tentative recommendations, regarding possible additions or deletions to the State Highway System will be received at the hearing for entry into the official transcript. The public hearing records will be kept open for 15 days after the hearing, during which time letters of statements should be mailed to:

Supervisors Flubbed Unusual Opportunity

The word had been out that John F. Barrows probably would be named county administrator by 3-2 vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors. Tuesday it happened.

We consider if unfortunate — not because Barrows is not qualified for the job, but because the supervisors had an opportunity to make sure they got the best qualified candidate, and fumbled that opportunity.

It may be that if all the many who would apply for this high-paying position were considered, John F. Barrows would still emerge as the No. 1 choice. But we'll never know.

THE PERFORMANCE of the board of supervisors in this matter, from the time former Administrator Alan Bruce's brutal denunciation of the county health department led to pressure for his resignation down to the naming of Barrows, has done little to enhance public confidence in our elected county governing body.

At a time when many excellently qualified administrators are on the job market, and when few jobs in either public or private employment are open at better pay than that offered for Marin County administrator, the supervisors had an opportunity to choose from a wide field.

They obtained the services of five men of considerable public experience to serve as a volunteer screening committee. Then they denied the committee the privilege of working out its proposals without their interference, ignored its recommendations, and closed the door to recruiting from outside.

ORDINARILY, WE ARE all for giving Marin County jobs to Marin County people.

In the case of county administrator, however — particularly because the job had become highly controversial during the previous incumbent's years — outside recruiting appears not only preferable but almost necessary.

And for that matter, for all we know there may be men better qualified for the job right here in Marin. There is no shortage of people with high-level administrative experience in our county.

We agree with Supervisors Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis that selection of Barrows in the way it was done places him under a cloud and inhibits his performance on the job.

THERE WAS NO NEED for haste. The supervisors, in appointing Barrows, said the appointment would be subject to review in six months.

In that case, there is no reason he should not have remained in acting status for six months, giving ample time for recruiting and screening other applicants. And by then, he would have had sufficient time to demonstrate his ability, which he has not had in only two months since Bruce's departure.

We wish John Barrows well. But we doubt whether the three supervisors who voted to hire him without looking at anyone else did him a favor. More likely, they tied a millstone around his neck.

Hard To Believe

Can you believe it? Only 30 years ago, when we went to the store to buy clothing — poor, impoverished Americans! — we had a choice of about four kinds of fabrics: cotton, wool, silk, and a miracle test-tube fiber called rayon.

Today, we can look back at these simplistic days with nostalgia. With all the polyesters and other synthetics sold under a multitude of trade names, it takes a genuine expert to know what he is buying.

But we do appreciate the easy-care new-fangled fabrics.

Proposal To Hike 'Sin' Taxes Mere Trial Balloon

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Suggestion by the Reagan administration that the estimated $300 million deficit in the 1971-72 state budget be made up in part by imposition of "sin" taxes — added imposts on liquor, cigarettes and horse racing — must have been what is known as a "trial balloon."

It's hardly conceivable that any administration in its right mind would seriously seek added taxes on the already overtaxed privilege of doing a little "sinning" by having a smoke, taking a toddy, or placing a two-buck bet on the ponies.

FOR YEARS and years, the people of the state have been robbed and abused by the people they elect to represent them, whose attitude appears to be to take all the fun out of life to pay the high costs of increased salaries for legislators and other state officials, by making it the particular burden of the common man who wants to derive a little enjoyment out of humdrum existence.

So whenever there's a need for more money (which is always), the politicians turn again to the common man, and attempt to run him through the wringer to squeeze the last dollar out of his pocket.

If the administration sends up a trial balloon to see how the public will react, the reaction will not be favorable. The administration and lawmakers may have to dream up some other method to pay the state's bills, for instance heavier taxes on banks, insurance companies, and other big corporations that take profits out of the economy as the result of legislative failure to protect the public.

THE PUBLIC has no choice in the matter. Republicans and Democrats battle with each other in an effort to see which party can milk the taxpayers dry, and lay the blame for higher taxes on the other party. This rivalry would be funny if it did not concern the taxpayer, but, unfortunately, the taxpayer eventually is forced to pay the bill while the excuses and placement of blame fly from one party another.

It was in the beginning of the Reagan administration five years ago that talk commenced about tax relief and tax reform. Although the legislature has met annually, not one thing has been done to bring the talk to fruition, to evolve a plan whereby the taxpayer, even if the demands for more government money were not assuaged, could at least have the burden somewhat equalized.

Soon the taxpayer and voter is going to get disgusted with the continued excuses for these delays in action on his behalf, and start to point out that "it isn't being done."

When this takes place, it may be time for the politicians, legislative and executive, to start running. An aroused public will turn them out of office, and give someone else a chance.

Reader Questions Product Of Success

In last Saturday's "Progress" edition you ran a "Success story" on the Handi-Kup Co. of Corte Madera, which made much of that company's expansion in the last 14 years to the point that it is now producing 30 million throwaway plastic foam cups a month. Now how about an article on the mind-boggling problem of disposing of those 30 million non-biodegradable cups a month? How about a statement from Mr. (Peter) Hunt as to what the Handi-Kup Co. is doing about the plastic recycling problem?

The value of any product must include the energy costs involved in making it, and the cost of its disposal after use, both of which represent a drain on environmental resources, without necessarily restoring any of those resources. When those costs are added to the price of a throwaway cup, what will its real value be?

Urges Opposition To Birth Control Bill

Senate Bill 375 which will permit minor children, no matter how young, to obtain birth control devices without parental consent, has passed the state Senate and will soon be voted upon by the state Assembly. It most probably will come up for a vote in the Assembly, the day after Labor Day, Sept. 7.

Let us write immediately to our state Assemblyman and tell him in no uncertain terms that we, as parents, oppose legislation of this sort which can only serve to demoralize and prostitute our children behind our backs! Write also to Governor Reagan and urge him to veto this bill if it reaches his desk!

Television Coverage Called One-Sided

When something tragic occurs such as at San Quentin on Aug. 21, it is too bad the television newscasters cannot report an unbiased speech to the public. Instead of trying to give both sides of this affair, they came on showing impassioned speeches by Huey Newton who eulogized George Jackson as a real martyr, a "soldier of the people", etc., etc.

Nothing was said of existing trouble by inmates who stab each other, or make trouble for the others who try to serve their sentences quietly without being killed by the groups of militants who are stirred up constantly by outside groups, inciting them to riot.

Who would be surprised by a follow-up after that television newscast (all one-sided) of bombings, angry speeches by all revolutionaries, etc. The fact is, the television news stations do not give a darn for after-results, as long as they can snare the biggest number of viewers, by being merely sensational, instead of giving information which is what they are really supposed to do.

Plaint Of An Average Citizen: 'I Am A Sick American'

(The following article, titled "I Am a Sick American," has been reprinted from one publication to another so many times that we are unable to determine the original source. It is being reprinted here in response to requests from several readers. — Editor.)

There are those who claim ours is a "sick" society: that our country is sick, our government is sick, we are sick. Well, maybe they're right. I submit that I'm sick — and maybe you are, too.

I am sick of having policemen ridiculed and called "pigs" while cop killers are hailed as some kind of folk hero.

I am sick of being told that religion is the opiate of the people, but marijuana should be legalized.

I am sick of commentators and columnists canonizing anarchists, revolutionaries and criminal rapists, but condemning law enforcement when such criminals are brought to justice.

I am sick of being told that pornography is the right of the free press, but freedom of the press does not include being able to read the Bible on school grounds.

I AM SICK of Supreme Court decisions that turn criminals loose on society — while other decisions try to take away my means of protecting my home and family.

I am sick of being told that policemen are mad dogs who should not have guns — but that criminals who use guns to rob, maim and murder should be understood and helped back to society.

I am sick of not being able to take my family to a movie unless I want to have them exposed to nudity, homosexuality and the glorification of narcotics.

I am sick of those who say I owe them this or that because of the sins of my forefathers —when I have looked down both ends of a gun barrel to defend their rights, their liberties and their families.

I am sick of cynical attitudes toward patriotism. I am sick of politicians with no backbone.

I am sick of permissiveness.

I am sick of the dirty, the foul-mouthed, the unwashed.

I am sick of the decline of personal honesty, personal integrity and human sincerity.

MOST OF ALL, I am sick of being told I'm sick. I'm sick of being told my country is sick — when we have the greatest nation that man has ever brought forth on the face of the earth. Fully 50 per cent of the people on earth would willingly trade places with the most deprived, the most underprivileged among us.

Take note, all of you — you will not find me throwing rocks or a bomb but you will find me at work, paying taxes, serving in the community where I live. You will also find me expressing my anger and indignation to elected officials.

But, most of all, you'll find me at the polling place. There —if you listen — you can hear the thunder of the common man. There, all of us can cast our vote — for an America where people can walk the streets without fear.

Nixon Locks The Barn Door After Big Labor Steals Horse

WASHINGTON — It would be heartening to believe that the president's appeal for unity to solve the problems of the economy had been accepted by a grateful nation. But, talking with a variety of citizens across the country, the impression is that while a sizable majority would like to see the program succeed they are not prepared to make the individual sacrifices that are required.

It is also in hindsight easy to say that it might have worked if it had come a year or a year and a half earlier. During the past 12 months major unions have won big raises that have sent prices soaring upward. The horse is out of the barn, and the president's voluntary padlock is a generous hope of confining what is hardly more than a ghost of a horse.

The screams of rage from George Meany and the other labor bosses sound like the offstage noises of angry lions deprived of their raw meat. No recognition is shown of their responsibility for the price rise, the fact of American products being priced out of world markets or the first trade deficit since 1893.

A CONTINUED RISE in labor costs without a rise in productivity having some correspondence to the added labor factor was intolerable. At the same time Japanese productivity per man-hour was increasing far in excess of the American rate.

In recent years many businessmen with a liberal attitude toward trade unions have been alienated. They feel that utterly unreasoning demands have been made by competing unions, each seeking an advantage over the other. Jurisdictional disputes, of which the dock strike in San Francisco is in part an example, have tied up whole industries. As in the construction workers' prolonged walkout in Kansas City, strikes have seriously damaged the economy of whole areas.

A great weakness in the president's program is the 10 per cent tax investment credit for business. Distinguished economists such as Walter Heller, as well as angry labor spokesmen, have pointed out that this is a huge bonus to big industry. It is an example of the trickle-down theory, with the trickle likely to mean very little to the great mass of consumers.

ALL THIS UNDERSCORES something that almost no one likes to talk about. That is the enormous difference in levels of living between the top and bottom layers of American life.

Such quaint beliefs out of the past as three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves have long since been invalidated in the era of the trust fund and the professional money managers, which was the primary function of John Connally before he became secretary of the treasury. Great fortunes inevitably increase. The top-rated managers are expected to produce an annual growth of not less than 10 per cent.

The vast increase in conglomerates has tended to narrow managerial opportunities. Over-all direction of a dozen companies under one big tent tends to come from a few individuals, and the multinational companies controlling enterprises in a half-dozen countries can circumvent high wage demands in the United States.

ALL THAT IS NO secret. Leaving out of consideration the more than 25 million who live below the poverty line, the difference in life styles between Middle America and the very rich is immeasurable.

What to this observer is most unfortunate in the Nixon program is the big cut in the federal budget. It removes from consideration the prospect of improving the quality of American life in housing, conservation, or a dozen different ways in which only federal spending can make up the lag. What Mr. Nixon is proposing is "still pond, no more moving," at a point when inflation has gained a tight hold in vital necessities and when the country suffers from serious ills that cannot be simply smoothed over by hopeful rhetoric.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

New Top Man In Malta Has Good Poker Hand

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Dom Mintoff, who squeaked in as Malta's prime minister in a close election last June, is in the happy position of a poker player sitting with a royal flush in his hand.

He is using it against Britain, from whom Malta achieved independence in 1964, and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

So far as NATO is concerned the island's strategic importance has declined. But other factors have entered the picture. Included among them are Russian ambitions in the Mediterranean, the Arab-Israeli conflict and Spanish ambitions to re-occupy Gibraltar.

ANGLING FOR INFLUENCE in Malta, along with the Russians, has been Libya which sees it as a waypoint in the shipment of Mideastern oil and an important element in the fight against Israel. Mintoff already has told the U.S. Sixth Fleet to stop its calls at the Maltese port of Valetta and the Russians and Libyans are hoping for failure of the negotiations with Britain.

Moscow has promised "total" support in "liquidating colonial domination" from Malta and has promised to examine question of economic aid.

Libya also has been talking with Mintoff on questions of defense and aid.

The Libyans would like to use Malta as a base for a fleet of Arab oil tankers. Her own port facilities are inadequate.

THE QUESTION of air control over that portion of the Mediterranean also has come up. There has been speculation that when Valetta air controllers refused to let a BOAC airliner land they may have enabled the Libyan government to force the liner down at Benghazi and seize two leaders of the short-lived coup in Sudan.

The Libyan moves have brought Israel into the picture, presumably with counter-offers. These could include orders to Valetta shipyards for vessels to help build up Israel's merchant fleet.

Spain's sudden interest in NATO also is traced to Malta's status, or lack of it, in the matter of Mediterranean defenses.

The reasoning is that if the British-NATO negotiations with Malta should break down, then Gibraltar might take on new importance as a NATO base. If Spain were a member of NATO, then her ships could call on Gibraltar and possibly become an opening wedge in Spain's efforts to break Britain's 267-year-old hold on "The Rock."

THESE ARE SOME of the "iffy' questions posed by Mintoff's determination that Malta shall determine its own destiny after some 2,000 years of being controlled by others.

But despite his tough talk about throwing the British and NATO out, there is no disposition to believe he wants to turn his island over to the Russians.

British officials remain quietly optimistic about an early agreement permitting British troops to remain.

Britain had been paying "rent" of $12.5 million a year, and, with some help from NATO, has offered to bring it up to $20.4 million. Mintoff has scaled his demands down from $72 million to $36 million. The final settlement probably will be somewhere in between, ending the risk that a Russian naval base might be established there.

The British, it is said, will not object if Mintoff allows repair work to be done on Russian ships in Malta's dry docks.

Dream Of U.C. Marin Campus At Hamilton Returns To Life

All the talk about joint civilian-military use, or possible eventual pull-out of the military from Hamilton Air Force Base, recalls the stirrings of a short-lived dream of several years ago.

The dream: Why not use the permanent buildings at Hamilton as the nucleus for a North Bay campus of the University of California?

It seems like a natural. The professors and administrators should love to live in the gracious homes Hamilton built for its officers. Much of the other housing could readily be converted for married students. The base's administrative buildings could become classroom and laboratory structures for a start.

Probably, the campus aspect wouldn't even interfere with civil use of the runway and airfield facilities. Some air transport and industrial development could take place on the San Pablo Bay side of the field. Or else, a marine biology center would be a natural development there.

ABOUT FIVE YEARS ago, Bechtel Corp. was engaged in research on proposals to locate two University of California campuses westward of San Francisco Bay. One logical center was felt to be San Francisco, and there was tentative talk of someday replacing San Quentin Prison with a campus, which would be intimately linked with the Berkeley campus by the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

There also was hushed talk of using Hamilton, but in those days no one would even speak aloud of the idea that the Air Force might abandon its only real show-place base in Northern California.

Immediate proximity of a university campus could not help but attract "clean" industry such as Sunset Magazine and Lane Publishing Co. which nestle close to Stanford on the Peninsula.

The alternate thought of using San Quentin as a campus has ironic overtones in light of recent troubles there. One of the demands often repeated by pro-prisoner pickets was that "this place should have closed 117 years ago" — referring to the days of its construction.

IT ALSO REVIVES an ancient and probably apocryphal tale about the rivalry between Santa Fe and Albuquerque during New Mexico's territorial days. The legislature wrangled endlessly about which city should have a university and which a penitentiary — both considered plums in terms of local employment and income.

The tale holds that Santa Fe won the toss of a coin — and chose the penitentiary. It's true that not until just before World War Two did the campus have a larger clientele than the prison.

Getting back to education in Marin, let it be noted that the proposed countywide master plan calls for development of higher educational facilities in the vicinity of St. Vincent's Hill. Presumably neither the Hamilton idea nor the San Quentin proposal would strain the planners' concept too far.

Class Gets Really Relevant When Teacher Got No Raise

WASHINGTON — This is going to be a tough fall for schoolchildren, perhaps the toughest they've ever faced. Many teachers who were promised raises won't get them and while they will not take it out on the kids, I'm sure it will be uppermost in their minds. I can imagine what will happen in the classrooms across the nation.

The scene if Public School 349. The teacher calls the class to order.

"Now children, the first subject is arithmetic. I'm going to give you a problem If someone was promised a raise of 10 per cent on $7,000 a year at the beginning of a school term, and at the last minute it was rescinded, how much money would she have been cheated out of?"

One of the children raises his hand. "Seven hundred dollars."

"THAT'S CORRECT, Anthony. Now here is the second problem. A person has gone to college for five years to learn a profession. When she comes out of school she makes half as much money as a plumber. If a plumber makes $15,000 a year, how much will the college graduate make?"

The children work silently for five minutes. Then Susan raises her hand. "She would make $7,500."

"If she's lucky," the teacher says. "One more. If the cost of living went up 7 per cent in one year, and a person could not get an increase in her salary because of government bureaucrats, how much less would her salary be worth in three years?"

Johnny pipes up, "Twenty-one per cent."

"ALL RIGHT, you seem to know your arithmetic. Let's go on to English. Which of these two sentences is correct? 'President Nixon's economic game plan were a failure' or 'President Nixon's economic game plan was a failure'?"

Charles replies, "Was a failure."

"'The people who were caught in a wage-price freeze are those who could least afford it' or 'The people who were caught in a wage-price freeze is those who could least afford it'?"

"Are?"

"What is wrong with this sentence: 'American economists don't know nothing'?"

Carol replies, "It should read 'American economists don't know everything.'"

"YOU'RE WRONG," the schoolteacher says bitterly. "It should read 'American economists don't know anything.' Let's go on to another subject. Get out your American history books. What was President Hoover most noted for?"

David raises his hand. "A depression."

"What is a depression?"

"It's when everyone is out of work and nobody has any money to buy food," Bobby replies.

"When people don't make enough money in America what do they do?"

"They go out on strike," Freddy yelled.

"How long do they go out on strike?"

"Until the other people give them more money."

"Can everyone go out on strike in America?"

"No," Joel says. "Policemen, firemen and schoolteachers can't go on strike."

"Why not?"

EVERYONE WAS stumped.

"All right," the teacher says. "Your homework tonight is for each of you to write to President Nixon and ask him why schoolteachers can't go on strike.

"Class dismissed."

Students Flood Sonoma State

Sonoma State College officials reported yesterday nearly 1,000 students applied for spring entrance during a one-month application period which ended yesterday.

Harold J. Soeters, dean of admissions, said the college will accept about 850 out of this group and late applications yet to come.

The college, which already has enrolled 2,225 new students for the fall semester out of 4,294 applicants, is expected to reach a population of 5,000 when school begins next month.

"That's practically maximum for our facilities," he said.

Those who applied under the special 30-day period ending yesterday were incoming freshmen, junior and senior transfers and graduate students.

Cary Grant Seeks Custody

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Cary Grant, saying he was "keenly concerned" for his 5-year-old daughter's welfare, asked the superior court Wednesday to order his ex-wife, actress Dyan Cannon, to turn over custody of the child to him.

Grant, 67, was previously given custody of their daughter Jennifer for one month each year since they were divorced in 1968.

He said in his petition that Miss Cannon, 34, has ignored his request to establish a home in California with the girl and has instead been living in New York and Europe while working on films.

Attorney Attacks Writing Assessment

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Taking 25 per cent of the money a San Quentin inmate gets for his writings is equivalent to making the prisoner pay his own censor, an attorney told the California Supreme Court yesterday.

Paul Halvonik of the American Civil Liberties Union argued that this charge is an infringement on the prisoner's First Amendment rights and discourages prisoners from submitting manuscripts for possible publication.

Halvonik argued on behalf of Death Row prisoner Nathan Eli, 27, one of two inmates challenging the rule that provides the prisoner be assessed 25 per cent, with the money going to the Inmate Welfare Fund.

Halvonik said his client was "sitting on" a finished novel because of this regulation.

R. Jay Engle, arguing for the other inmate, John van Geldern, said that a man does not lose his civil rights simply because he is put in prison. He argued that the 25 per cent charge has no "legitimate custodial objective" since the inmate pays for whatever materials he uses, such as paper and typewriter ribbons.

Deputy Attorney General George Nock argued that the 25 per cent is a reasonable charge and that most of the prison expenses in connection with reading manuscripts are non-recoverable because most manuscripts never get published.

Van Geldern attempted to sell a manuscript but then refused to sign the contract with the prison which would provide the 25 per cent payment.

Prevo Takes Employee Post

Randall M. Prevo, former manager of the Marin County Employees Association, has been appointed general manager of the California Public Employees Federation.

H. W. Orcutt, federation president, announced that Prevo will coordinate action among the 85,000 public employees who belong to 45 employee groups throughout the state.

Prevo was manager of the Marin County Employees Association from July of 1968 until July of 1970, when he quit to accept a new job as personnel director for Napa County.

Francis J. O'Connell of Fairfax succeeded Prevo as manager of the Marin County Employees Association.

A DESK in the bedroom of her Greenbrae home is headquarters for this general chairman of a major fund-raising benefit. Mrs. Merilee Brand took on the chairmanship when her party idea was accepted by Jack and Jill Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers. Keeping the committee working smoothly and taking care of details that come up fast are her main duties. Her rule banning all but crucial evening telephone calls has pleased her family.

SOME WORDS OF ADVICE

The Problems Facing Fund-Raising Party Chairman

By BARBARA HOSMER

It's no mean feat to raise the hundreds of thousands of dollars that Marin women's groups do every year to help keep afloat a variety of social service projects.

How to do it — a party, a sale, a whole series of events or a one-shot big one? — that's the problem these groups face each club year. Fund-raising is the most serious job the volunteers tackle. Their raw materials are a good cause, the members themselves and hopefully some past experience and community goodwill.

The idea itself and the chairman are vital to the success of any benefit. But the degree of follow-through over the weeks or months can make or break it, and that's up to the chairman.

FINDING THE right idea was the key to finding the chairman for the Jack and Jill Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers, working toward a one big fund-raiser this fall. The branch, which asissts the pediatrics ward at the hospital, is shooting for a profit in excess of $3,000 from its single-night party.

The 35 members began immediately after last fall's event to sift through each member's evaluation sheet of that party to assess its problems, quality of food, the music, if the party was fun, too much work, or netted too little profit. And their ideas for next year.

The past few years the branch had held a one-night party previewing new models at a Corte Madera auto showroom. But the members decided that since everything had to be brought in for it, it was a lot of work. It was time for a change.

A committee gathered to research some 50 new fund-raising ideas ranging from a drawing, to a mystery trip, a dinner dance, a luncheon, tour of the bay model to a party at a mobile home park.

Then 15 ideas were presented to members for a vote.

"Mine was selected," said Mrs. Lee Branch of Greenbrae, "and then everybody looked at me."

THAT WAS Jan. 6 and ever since chairman Merilee Brand has been overseeing plans for the decorator's studio tour and style show, an evening party set Oct. 1 in San Francisco.

The manager of the showrooms was a guest at the Jack and Jill Branch party last year, and she had remembered that he had mentioned such a tour possibility.

She quickly appointed committee chairmen.

"It took me about a week to realize what I had gotten into. Since then I have had to prod people more than I thought I would, and I have made an unbelievable number of telephone calls," but she has found good general cooperation by members.

Some nine or 10 women are most active in creating the studio tour with some 70 galleries of furnishings, a fashion show of Marin clothes, refreshments, hors d'oeuvres and prizes.

SAN FRANCISCO as a location for a Marin benefit is not thought to be a problem, as the invitation list includes many from San Francisco and the Peninsula, she said.

Getting invitations and tickets designed and printed, checking parking, fitting clothes to models, hiring security guards, obtaining cost comparisons for table bouquets, deciding to have caterers serve, planning menus and food costs and even getting coat racks to the party were some of the vital details they worked on for the past eight months.

They had decided on one big fund-raiser because "we thought it was easier to put all our eggs in one basket," Mrs. Brand explained.

"We considered doing the food ourselves and serving it, but we found nobody would have time to be with their guests. Also, we wanted to have the party in Marin, but there's no place like this and we could not accommodate as many people," she said.

They also sifted through their guest list from past parties to see who would be attracted to a party such as planned, counting on some 500 persons.

KEEPING COSTS down and still putting on a nice party is the goal, she said. This year members are required to sell 10 books of drawing tickets each and if all sell they will make $3,000 on that alone, Merilee Brand said.

They estimate party expenses to run $2,000. They decided to set party tickets' price at $7.50 per couple. "That will give us $1,850 and we get some donations, say $200. The intake from the bar is not very profitable; we should make $1,000," the chairman figures.

Her advice to make money on a benefit?

"Get everything donated you possibly can. Uncles, husbands, friends donate things —ice, glasses —it's amazing."

They needed table bouquets and a member knew a leading florist who agreed to donate them. The printing chairman got bids from three printers. Then a member's husband said he could do it for half that. They saved $125.

Last year ticket prices were $6 per couple, but the committee found that food costs had gone up so much that $7.50 was a minimum they could charge this year and not put a burden on their guests.

"Their pleasure is important," Mrs. Brand added.

AS CHAIRMAN her problems have been continual, but most things she could do by telephone.

"I found that I had to do quite a few things myself, those minute details that come up that a general chairman has to do. Usually one phone call will take care of them."

She finds the hours she has to put in are increasing and this month will be hectic. Then after the party there are thank-you notes to guests and donators to be written, which include a report on how much money was made for the children's ward at the hospital.

As chairman Mrs. Brand has found some surprises.

"I thought I'd have more spare time. Things come up and have to be taken care of right away. I didn't expect that.

"It's fun, frightening at times. I've never known the problems that other committee chairmen have had until now."

HER ADVICE to other new general chairmen: "Be cool. Even though problems come up, don't dwell on them and keep as much to yourself as you can."

GOING OVER dishes that will be used at the party are the food chairman, Mrs. Michael Smith of San Rafael (left) with Jon Fowler, manager of the decorator showroom in San Francisco where the tour will be held, and general chairman Merilee Brand. Even dishes and silverware for 500 guests are among the chairman's ultimate responsibilities. Nine months of work have gone into their party.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Warning To Women: If You Want Male's Respect, Act Like A Lady

DEAR HELEN:

This is difficult to write, for I respect women. But lately they don't merit as much respect.

If I am unenlightened, I can re-learn, but let's have an understanding! The corner bar is a man's meeting place. Unescorted females, perhaps wrongly, are considered fair game. If they aren't on the make, they should stay the heck out, or come with a man who can stay comparatively sober.

I abhor the witch who scouts the old man at the bar, then shrieks like a fishwife if he "scouts" back. Too often she interrupts a business drink, and her shrewishness can foul up a whole deal.

Also, if women are going to wear hotpants (we called 'em short-shorts in my day), for cryin' out loud, can't they were panties under them? If they don't, there's no real reason for griping to the local gendarmerie if passes are made. Most males are predatory, as are some females. If they can't play for the stakes of the game, they should stay out of it!

To put it more bluntly, how many women these days know how to be a real lady, to keep from emasculating a man; to be a wife a husband is truly proud of? — JOSEPH

DEAR JOE:

Roughly, several million. But the "witches" get the attention, yes?

(And your letter will get static from the liberation front!) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm in love with a European man, but he says all American women are bossy because we've been spoiled by wishy-washy American men, who let us run the house and bank account, then call them "male chauvinists."

How can I prove I want a dominating man? He thinks I'm putting on a show to trap him — another "U.S. female characteristic."—AMERICANWOMAN

DEAR WOMAN:

A characteristic of your European male is apparently nimbleness. Not wanting marriage, a quick-thinker lays the blame on "women in general."

Tell him European men are all right to date but you wouldn't want to marry one — and maybe he'll change his tune. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Concerning the letter on a "bill of divorcement," this man's Bible version of divorce may still satisfy both God and our present court system.

If the separation is friendly and no property battles are involved, he may have properly drawn up the easily obtainable legal standard forms and submit them to the court without the aid of a lawyer.

My point is, God's law, when correctly introduced, should hold up in any just court. — FRANK

DEAR FRANK:

Don't count on it!

For the sake of argument, how about this: "When a man is newly married, he shall not go out with the army or be charged with any business: he shall be free at home one year to be happy with his wife . . ." (Deut. 24:5)

Draft boards: Take note! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A cure for cigarette moochers: When that "reformed smoker" comes around to borrow "just one more," offer him my special discourager. Get quinine capsules (five grains) at the drug store. Apply a smidgen of powder to the cigarette tip, or put a trace in the bottom of the package. Be sure it doesn't show. The taste lingers after a puff or two, so that even the sight of a cigarette repels. This is great to use on people who want to quit smoking, as well as on chronic beggars. — W.A.

Yearly Foot Exams

NEW YORK (UPI) —The American Podiatry Association recommends a foot examination a year for school-age children. This is to find hidden foot ailments which can make a child uncomfortable and even interfere with skeletal alignment. Those feet have to be kept in good shape to carry the offspring approximately 65,000 miles during his or her lifetime.

MALE IN CLASS

There's No More 'Now Girls' Stuff

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Once upon a time all the young women at one of the country's top secretarial schools wore white gloves and hats — but that would look pretty silly on Stephen Koban.

Koban, 22, a slim, dark-haired and rather serious-looking young man, is the first male student at what has been called the Vassar of secretarial schools, Katharine Gibbs. He commutes daily from his parents' home in Peekskill into New York City to attend an eight-weeks crash secretarial course designed for college graduates.

There's nothing ideological in Koban's enrolment —the only thing he is protesting is his personal unemployment.

"I'm looking for a chance to get into publishing or advertising," he said in an interview.

"When I graduated in June, an English major, I went to half a dozen employment agencies and they closed the door in my face."

KOBAN, A graduate of the University of Ohio at Athens, said agency interviewers were sympathetic, but told him he had little chance of being hired, even in a menial capacity, without experience and when business was pulling in its belt.

Not every young man would jump from there to enrollment in a previously all-girl school, intent on training for a predominantly feminine occupation.

"Well, I had already read a newspaper story that Gibbs was ready to enroll men," Koban said. "At the time I let my mind fantasize about it and I dreamed up headlines that read, 'Steve Koban first male graduate from Katie Gibbs.' Then I came with a girlfriend when she went to Gibbs to apply. We were heading up to a museum after her interview but we never made it. I began thinking about a secretarial job being a way to get a foothold in advertising or publishing. We came back and I talked to school officials about."

WHEN HE first mentioned the idea to his mother — at the tail end of a telephone conversation that evening — she said simply, "you're crazy." Koban asked her to think about it.

A later telephone call, Koban described this way:

"My mother answered and put my father on the phone. I guess she thought maybe he could snap me back to reality. I think I started talking even before he had the phone to his ear —I knew I had to keep the initiative because I couldn't afford to let him get the first word in. Then I'd just be listening —he likes to talk."

Both parents finally came around and on July 7 Stephen Koban went to school. He insists being the only male member of a class of 38 doesn't even distract him from his studies. He called stenography challenging, and as for typing:

"I had my own style of typing when I came here — what I called the Biblical system. seek and ye shall find. Now I'm learning to type without peeking."

AS FOR THE girls' reaction to their male classmate: "At first there were a few giggles, and I still get gapes from anyone who doesn't know about me. but things have settled down. I feel sorry for the teachers — they have to change their speech patterns. They start out, 'Now girls . . .' and then they have to add, 'And Mr. Koban.' "

Is he dating his classmates? "Yes and no," he said. "I date one girl — the one I knew before I came here — nd there's a question of marriage. I'm not dating in general, I've got the one I want."

TEACHERS HAVE had to change their speech patterns since he enrolled at Katharine Gibbs Secretarial School, says Stephen Koban. "They start out, 'Now, girls . . .' and then they have to add, 'and Mr. Koban,' " he says. Koban, a recent graduate of the University of Ohio, is the first male to attend the secretarial school in New York City and commutes daily from his home in Peekskill, N.Y. (UPI Telephoto)

Gourmet Cooking And What It Means

NEW YORK (UPI) —In case you've ever wondered, hear this:

Gourmet cooking is the art of making good food taste better. One expert defines gourmet foods as "products with extra quality." Some think any meal that does more than just satisfy hunger pangs probably is a gourmet meal.

Demand For Simple Satin Evening Dress

Jerry Silverman says his firm's collection of simple satin evening dresses, long and short, is in response to women all across the country who have told him, in his travels, "please, no more beads, no heavy embroidery on dresses." His designer, Shannon Rodgers, quotes one distressed woman searching for a simple satin dress: "My husband gave me a beautiful diamond necklace last year. Now he's saying 'Listen, if you're not going to wear it, give it back. I can use the money.'"

Clean Mats, Area Rugs In Washing Machine

Bath mats and area rugs up to four by six feet can be cleaned in your home washing machine. The secret to restoring the look of newness to small rugs is to wash them in a mild detergent and tumble them dry, advises the Carpet and Rug Institute.

If tumbling action is not available, then hang or spread the rugs in the shade until they are dry and brush them lightly with a stiff brush.

Forced air from a vacuum cleaner or fan is helpful, too, for faster drying.

Because dyes and colors in floor coverings, as in all types of furnishing materials, have a tendency to bleed, classify the rugs by color before placing them in the washing machine.

Whites and very light colors can be washed together, but dark colors should be washed separately.

Story Behind Southern Crossing's Obit

By BENJAMIN SHORE
(I-J Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Although the Coast Guard announced last week it had denied a permit for the proposed southern crossing bridge across San Francisco Bay, the decision actually was reached seven months earlier.

This is revealed in a study of the Coast Guard's file on the state of California's application for a navigational permit for the bridge.

However, the bridge proposal was killed not for any navigational reason, but because of major adverse environmental factors associated with the crossing.

Furthermore, the file makes clear that the decision was approved by the White House, despite the fact that the Coast Guard felt the bridge should be built.

California applied for the permit in August 1969, and it looked like a routine matter to the Coast Guard. Hearings were held in San Francisco in March 1970.

In September 1970, Coast Guard commandant, Adm. Chester R. Bender forwarded to his boss, Transportation Secretary John Volpe, a five-paragraph report on the possible environmental impact of the bridge. (Such reports are required before any federal decision that might affect the environment.)

Bender, in urging approval of the permit, saw no environmental harm in the bridge, which would span the bay from Hunter's Point in San Francisco to the City of Alameda.

"The long-term social, economic and political benefits of the Southern Crossing outweigh the adverse environmental effects," Bender told Volpe.

Volpe's acting assistant secretary for environment and urban systems, Michael Cafferty, sent the report back to the Coast Guard for more study. After brief resistance by Bender, the Coast Guard enlarged its five-paragraph report to five pages. It was mailed in early January 1971, to 15 federal agencies and 18 state and local agencies for their comments.

Cafferty had a few of his own, and in a February 1971, memo to Volpe, he not only criticized the Coast Guard for its shallow study but also laid out a wide-ranging environmental argument against the bridge.

This memo set the tone of the administration's study of the bridge, and the file indicates the bridge never had a fighting chance from that day on.

Volpe, cleared by the White House, explained this to Gov. Ronald Reagan when the two conferred in Washington on Feb. 22. On March 10, Reagan told Sacramento reporters he was "reconsidering" his support of the bridge.

The key argument against the bridge was its possible harm to the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system, a billion-dollar alternative to the congestion, fumes and freeways of automotive commuting.

The report of the Administration's Council on Environmental Quality summed up the pro-BART argument: "The BART system has been widely regarded as one of the most visible, hopeful mass transit experiments. Should it fail, other cities may lose faith."

The freeways that would be spawned by the new bridge also posed environmental damage, the government argued. Most of the reports from federal agencies said the additional freeways would lead to more low-density sprawl around the bay, as well as increase air pollution by encouraging more commuters to drive.

A precedent for denying the bridge permit on environmental grounds already had been set by the Transportation Department in the case of a bridge across the Ohio River at Weirton, W. Va. The bridge was wanted solely to allow smokey coke ovens to be built on a river island.

Innocent Plea To Robbery

Donald Clayton Nivens, 37, of Larkspur, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of attempted robbery.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Nivens was arrested Aug. 25 after a San Anselmo woman was attacked in her car in San Rafael. She fended off the attacker and got the license number of his car, which was traced to Nivens, according to San Rafael police.

Guilty Pleas In Burglary

Mario Jeff Foglesong, 18, of San Anselmo, and Vincent James Holsten, 19, of San Rafael, have pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of burglary.

They were bound over to Marin Superior Court where Holsten is to be sentenced Sept. 20, and Foglesong Oct. 18.

Holsten will also be sentenced on a misdemeanor charge of possessing narcotics paraphernalia, to which he also pleaded guilty.

Foglesong was arrested Aug. 11 when he and another man walked into a police stakeout at the Greenbrae Pet Hospital.

Holsten escaped police that night, but was arrested the next day on a warrant.

Keen Commentary On Ghetto Life

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — "The Moonlight File," which opened last night at the On Broadway Theater, is a slice of life as current as today's headlines.

While billed as a comedy, the Mick Daugherty vehicle is more of a commentary on some of the social ills facing the nation today. And the conclusions that Daugherty draws are not pretty. But he laces his script with humor in showing how it is in the ghetto.

Using any "major city" as his base, Daugherty brings to life three believable characters in a jungle of walkup flats, welfare cheating and black and white hatreds.

Basing his thesis on a welfare case, the playwright lets the cast romp through some delightful black humor. With an eye on young aspiring actors, director G. Tito Shaw has cast the show excellently.

Wendell Burton, formerly of Novato, plays Claude Proctor Hazlitt, a social worker caught up in the amours of his client. Burton's charm is his youthfulness and innocent facial expressions. And also the young actor, who got his start at Sonoma State College, has a keen sense of timing in line delivery.

Burton, who was first introduced to San Francisco audiences as the lead in the long-running, "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown," perfectly typifies an innocent "honky."

Marge Eliot as Honey Moonlight, his client, is excellent as the hooker, who lives by the rules of the ghetto and who sees life as a pair of gold shoes, a gold dress, red label Scotch and a man in her bed. Honey's cavortings would make Truman Capote's innocent Holly Golightly blush.

As Honey's slow-moving, but quick-witted protector, sometimes lover and babysitter, Quincy Short in his professional stage debut is on equal footing with his companions.

Leon Ericksen has given the cast a realistic setting — a broken down walkup flat — to play their games out, but too often the cast is stymied by Daugherty's over abundant prose.

While Daugherty's ending is the only believable one possible, he should take his shears to the script for a really fine evening of theater.

The play will be at the On Broadway Theater for an extended run before stops in Detroit and Baltimore and then a theater in New York.

The play will be presented on a Tuesday through Friday run at 8:30 p.m.; Saturdays at 7 and 10:30 p.m. and Sundays, at 3 and 7:30 p.m.

"THE MOONLIGHT FILE" — Two-act comedy by Mick Daugherty. Directed by G. Tito Shaw and production designed by Leon Ericksen. The case: Marge Eliot, Honey Moonlight; Wendell Burton, Claude Proctor Hazlitt, and Quincy Short, Junior Faulkner.

'HARVEY STARS' — Gig Young and Shirley Booth star in "Harvey," a revival of Mary Chase's comedy about Elwood P. Dowd, his harried sister Veta L. Simmons and a giant white rabbit. The comedy presented by the American Conservatory Theater, is at the Geary Theater in San Francisco through Sept. 11.

'Prince' Romanoff Dies; Self-Styled Nobleman

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Michael Romanoff, whose aristocratic airs and self-styled title of Prince of Russia turned him into a debonair Hollywood personality in the 1920s and 1930s, died Wednesday at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Romanoff, whose age was listed variously as 78 or 81 at his death, was hospitalized Friday after suffering a heart attack.

Throughout his zany Hollywood escapades he steadfastly claimed he was one of White Russian nobility. He also was the owner of the famous Romanoff's Restaurant in Beverly Hills.

When he came to Hollywood in 1927—with an Oxford accent, spats, a walking stick and mustachioed—he posed as a newly arrived Russian prince and was gladly accepted by the movie community.

He joined in a swirl of cocktail parties, film premieres and an occasional overnight stay in jail.

Reporters checking his background finally caught up with him and produced evidence the real Prince Romanoff was killed during the Russian revolution July 18, 1918.

But the disclosure did not come before he had, in addition to the prince title, passed himself off successfully as nationally known artist and illustrator and Russian grand duke.

At the end of the charade he disappeared for a year and later said he had been deported. When he returned to Hollywood, he opened the first of Romanoff's restaurants in 1939.

It quickly became the focal point of the movie colony and several incidents, such as fist fights, involving famous actors and actresses brought it national attention.

He later owned restaurants in Palm Springs and San Francisco.

Romanoff contended he had been deported 10 times but in 1958 the U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill giving him citizenship. After it passed the Senate and was signed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, he swore his allegiance.

"I hereby renounce any title to the claim that I am prince of all the Russians," he declared.

He retired in 1962. Survivors include his widow, Gloria, 47. Services were pending at Pierce Brothers Mortuary, Hollywood.

Bridge Panel Endorses Employee Pay Schedule

Salaries totaling $3.7 million a year for 293 employees in the Golden Gate Bridge District's bus system were endorsed yesterday by the finance-auditing committee.

The employee force, including 223 drivers, will be hired in increasing numbers from now to February, when the full system will be in operation.

The first of the 152 buses will arrive in a few weeks, and the system is scheduled to start running by Dec. 1.

The committee endorsed the salary schedule and organizational chart as proposed by Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White with one minor change — in White's own salary. His proposal showed his annual salary at $26,500, overlooking the 7 per cent hike given last month to all employees.

The committee added the hike to White's salary.

White compared the salary schedule to those of other transit operators, noting that the district's salaries would be considerably below those paid by the San Francisco Municipal Railway.

The committee's recommendation will go to the full board for its approval on Sept. 10.

Youth Denies Stealing Cars

Timothy Guy Tuttle, 18, of no known address, pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Municipal Court to two counts of car theft.

Preliminary hearing was set for next Wednesday.

Tuttle was arrested Monday in possession of two cars reported stolen, according to San Rafael Police, who said he might have used one of several master keys found in his possession to open the car doors.

Free Tippling At Men's Store Runs Aground

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Since the BMT men's clothing store began serving free alcoholic drinks to potential buyers, the store received national publicity and business was good.

But not only customers got the word, the Ohio Department of Liquor Control took note.

"The store was visited by one of this department's investigators," Don B. Laws, deputy director, said Wednesday. "It is illegal to use free drinks as a business attraction. The store has discontinued the practice."

Store official Tim Kenner said he had received newspaper clippings from across the country on the free drinks policy.

"A store in Syracuse, N.Y. and one in Pennsylvania wanted to adopt the plan too," Kenner said.

The store started the free alcoholic drink policy during last year's Christmas holidays and also provided coffee for non-alcoholic drinkers.

"Now we're only serving coffee," Kenner said.

Youth Named To Demo Panel

Richmond Young of Ross, a student at the College of Marin, has been named to the Marin County Democratic Central Committee — the first 18-year-old in the county to be seated on a central committee.

Young, president of the Marin County Young Democrats, was named Tuesday night to the seat vacated by the resignation of Charles Mitchell of San Rafael. Young was elected unanimously after being nominated by Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael, reported committee member Jack R. Felson of Forest Knolls.

The Marin County Republican Central Committee has 18-year-old associate members, but none sits as a regular member of the committee.

Horoscopes, But Why Not True Scientific Findings?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As science steadily piles up new understanding of the universe, the populace at large remains ignorant of the strange concepts evolved to explain creation and its subsequent development.

This strikes Dr. Paul Couderc of Paris as an extremely dangerous situation. It provides an open field for the charlatans who are always present to prey on human credulity bred of ignorance.

Until he retired in 1969, Couderc was head astronomer of the famous Paris Observatory. In an article recently published by the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), he proposed "an antidote for antiscience."

What's needed, according to Couderc, is a universal program to make the findings of science known to everybody. It should start with children.

Most persons now agree that the earth is sperical rather than flat, and that nobody is in danger of stepping off its edges into some abyss of no return.

But how many grasp the Einsteinian ideas of space-time, the curvature of space around massive bodies, and of an expanding universe in which matter is merely congealed energy and energy is simply another form of matter?

Yet, most scientists believe, these are facts of nature—facts which govern all of us and everything. If a way could be found to popularize such concepts and teach them in grade school, children would grow up accepting them "as standing to reason."

At the moment, science is being widely cursed as the author of technological inventions which, while improving the lot of man in many ways, has blighted his environment in others.

But science by definition is the search for truth, and in the absence of early instilled understanding of this fact, the charlatans and antiscience forces are thriving as never before since the Middle Ages, according to Couderc.

Couderc cited the revival in popularity of astrology, medical quackery, spiritualism, and the occult.

This may seem paradoxical in the atomic-space era. But, says Couderc, "pseudo science is quick to profit from the achievements of true science."

He regretted the fact that whereas many French newspapers carry no science column, many do "devote a fatuous column every day to astrology," which purports to read human destiny from the motions of heavenly bodies.

Such columns generally include horoscopes which foretell events in an individual's life as indicated by positions of the planets in the period when he was born.

You can read your own horoscope in many a U.S. newspaper, too.

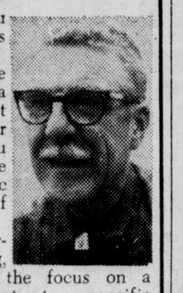
Getting Selective About Focusing



When you have objects contained within the frame of a picture that are both near and far, you encounter one of the basic problems of photography: focus. Generally speaking, the sharper the focus on a specific object at a specific distance, the more blurred other elements will be.

This "problem" can also be an advantage. If you're on vacation this month of August, you'll be taking scenic pictures often, of mountains or a bridge or historic building in the distance. By including nearby tree branches and focusing on those distant mountains, the branches will be perspective to your scene.

By the same token, if you're photographing flowers in your own garden, you'll want the flower itself shaprly in focus, but the background will be more effective if it is softly blurred, thus emphasizing the dominant flowers.

Experiment with focus, and you'll find it is an important element in more creative photography. Whatever you need for your picture hobby, to make it more creative and rewarding, you'll find it in our complete stocks . . . the names you know in equipment and supplies, film and accessories, priced right!

Divergent Views On Penal System

By MARY LEYDECKER

Wildly divertent views on "Our Present Penal System . . . Adequate or Inadequate?" were presented today by three men discussing prisons in the wake of the Aug. 21 bloodbath at San Quentin.

The three, who appeared on a KTIM radio panel, all have had experience with prisons and prisoners but their backgrounds have apparently led them to arrive at very different viewpoints.

Dr. Leo S. Stanley, who retired in 1951 after serving as chief of surgery at San Quentin since 1913, said prisons would be unnecessary if everyone obeyed moral concepts such as the Golden Rule. He viewed them as necessary institutions for "taking out of circulation" those who break laws.

Rev. Byron Eshelman, due to retire this month after 20 years as a San Quentin chaplain, said "there never can be a successful prison" and described those on the outside as "just as depraved" as those in prison.

The youngest panelist, Mark G. Dowie, of the Coordinating Council of Prison Organizations, asked for prison reforms, primarily the abolition of the indeterminate sentence.

Dr. Stanley blamed the need for prisons on lack of moral training during the youth of persons who break laws but defended prisons as places where people can reform if they want to.

"If a man behaves (in prison), he can get an education, work at a job and even get out in the forests in work camps," the doctor said.

Even though the legislature has never mandated rehabilitation as a goal for prisons, efforts have been continuously made through the years, Dr. Stanley said.

He strongly defended the indeterminate sentence as a reform measure brought about to avoid abuses by judges.

The indeterminate sentence "gives a man the opportunity to improve his conduct within prison" and then be paroled, Dr. Stanley said. Before the indeterminate sentence, "if the judge said '20 years,' a man had to serve 20 years," he added.

He also said he didn't think it was fair that "a judge in Butte County could give 20 years for a robbery and a judge in Los Angeles, five years."

Dowie disagreed, saying that the "discretionary power has been taken away from judges and given to nine men appointed by the governor who serve four-year terms."

"The assumption that prison administrators can modify behavior" was attacked by Dowie, who said that the concept "becomes doubly ridiculous when the man is locked up in a unisexual society."

He agreed with Dr. Stanley that "people can rehabilitate themselves while in prison" but he didn't think that meeting requirements of parole boards necessarily fitted people for life outside prison.

Dowie advocated treating prisons as "real institutions of society such as schools and churches" and bringing them under community control.

Eshelman, who said his views had made him unpopular with San Quentin officials, offered no concrete suggestions for prison reform but said that there are "no simplistic answers" . . . "except to confess it's beyond us."

His statements that "there are no law abiding citizens" and that those in prisons are "establishment scapegoats" brought angry response from Dr. Stanley as well as listeners to the program.

To a statement by Eshelman that "prisoners have the same malady as everyone else" and that "people who run prisons need rehabilitation as much as prisoners," Dr. Stanley snorted, "Nonsense."

Stanley said that society cannot condone crimes like "knocking a poor old lady over the head and stealing a few dollars."

Young Dowie agreed with Eshelman to the extent that "there are an awful lot of people that get away with breaking the law one way or another."

The Aug. 21 violence at the prison was touched on by the three only briefly. Eshelman described it as "chickens coming home to roost" because of the way prisoners are treated.

Dowie called it a "black miracle" that a gun "ended up in the hand of a man considered by authorities as the most dangerous person at San Quentin."

The panel discussion on KTIM's Sounding Board program will be repeated at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Deadline Set For Library Architects

Deadline for architects to apply for interviews on preliminary planning for San Rafael Library expansion will be Sept. 15, the city library board decided last night.

The board last night interviewed David P. Suloff, Sausalito architect. Milton W. Chambers, San Rafael architect, will be interviewed at 7:45 p.m. today in the children's room of the library.

School Busses Being Guarded

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Armed guards with trained dogs are watching over the chartered buses the city will use in its new school integration plan, company officials say.

"We don't want any trouble; all we're concerned about is driving buses safely," Virgil Stroud, general manager of Associated Charter Bus Co., said Wednesday. He said the vigil was "a normal precaution."

Associated, a Van Nuys firm, will operate 180 buses for the San Francisco Unified School District to achieve a court-ordered school integration plan. The contract is for $1.5 million.

Bingham Still At Large; FBI Says He Had A Valid Passport

Stephen M. Bingham, missing East Bay attorney wanted in connection with five bloody murders at San Quentin on Aug. 21, held a valid passport and may have fled the country, federal officials said.

Although the Federal Bureau of Investigation said it had "no confirmed reports" that Bingham has left the United States, a fugitive warrant was issued yesterday because "there is probable cause to believe he has fled the state of California."

Bingham, 29-year-old grandson of a former Connecticut governor and U.S. senator, is accused of smuggling a gun to Soledad Brother George Jackson setting off a bloodbath in which Jackson and five others died.

Bingham, Jackson's last visitor, has not been seen since a few hours after the violence at the prison.

It is believed he smuggled a gun to Jackson in a tape recorder.

At the prison today, officials described the institution as quiet with more normal routines being resumed each day.

Officials would not confirm or deny reports that a prisoner wounded in the escape attempt, Allan Mancino, has been transferred from the prison hospital to another Department of Corrections facility.

Sources said, however that Mancino, who suffered leg wounds from cement fragments after a guard fired during the aftermath of the bloody episode, has been taken to the state prison hospital at Vacaville.

It is believed that Mancino was moved to protect him as a possible witness.

Charges and countercharges continued to fly yesterday in the wake of the bloody violence.

Two black state legislators who visited the prison have called for a legislative investigation.

"I can't understand how anyone can go into the San Quentin adjustment center (scene of the escape attempt) and come out without saying the conditions there are horrible," Assemblyman John J. Miller, D-Oakland, said.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, said an investigation is "especially urgent since California officials have consistently refused to consider shutting down the facility."

In San Francisco, the president of the American Trial Lawyers Association, Marvin E. Lewis, called for disciplinary steps against lawyers who "tear down their own temple of justice."

Lewis spoke at a training session for 400 attorneys and said that among those to be disciplined should be any lawyer who helps a client escape from prison.

Lewis, a San Francisco trial lawyer, also noted that his association is forming a commission to investigate the need for reform in prisons, including San Quentin.

On a television interview last night, San Quentin Sgt. Stanley Laffsa said outside agitators and the permissiveness of the courts were largely responsible for the upheaval in prisons.

"Nobody seems to mention that these people in here have committed a crime," Laffsa said.

A fellow officer, Sgt. Al Boynton said he's read a lot about the death of Jackson but "nobody's saying anything about the poor officers who died."

The two sergeants and officer Martin Witkosky were interviewed on KQED.

Driver, 46, Hospitalized In Crash

A 46-year-old San Rafael man was hospitalized today following an early morning accident on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, police reported.

James Lloyd Clark of 1108 Tamalpais Avenue, San Rafael was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General hospital with multiple facial cuts, hospital authorities reported.

Clark was westbound on Francisco Boulevard at 12:25 a.m. when his car hit the rear of another westbound car near Grand Avenue, driven by Stephen N. Reist, 17, of 124 Seminary Road, San Anselmo, police reported.

Clark's car continued down the street, hitting a sign post knocking it over, went another 198 feet to a street barricade, knocking it over and then 183 feet until it stopped against the construction at the end of Francisco Boulevard, police reported. The case is still under investigation.

CHP Gives Details On Freeway Accident

The accident in which 12 persons were injured Tuesday night on Highway 101 in Novato occurred when a car, traveling at about 80 miles an hour, passed one vehicle, then cut back in front of it, striking the rear of a truck ahead in the same lane, the California Highway Patrol said today.

Officers said the driver of the car, Reuban D. Gaynor, 40, of Richmond, had a strong odor of alcohol on his breath, bloodshot eyes, dilated pupils and slurred speech.

The report today was turned over to the district attorney's office for investigation, officers said.

According to the patrol report, the driver of the car Gaynor passed, Thomas M. Pong, 19, of San Francisco, said the Model A stake bed truck carrying 11 teen-agers had two visible lights in the rear.

Pong told officers Gaynor passed him at 75 to 80 miles an hour then swerved in front of him hitting the rear end of the truck, throwing 10 of the 11 youths onto the highway.

Gaynor told the highway patrol he did not see any lights on the truck.

The accident occurred at 11:30 p.m. in the southbound lanes of Highway 101 near the Marin County line.

Gaynor, who had been admitted to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael with forehead injuries, was released yesterday in good condition.

Mark Larsor., 17, of 1462 Donna Street, Novato, the most seriously injured youth, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital.

Novatan Denies Inn Burglary

I-J Special Report

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO — A Novato man has pleaded innocent to a burglary charge and is scheduled to appear at 2 p.m. Sept. 13 for a preliminary hearing.

Joseph Edwin Tucker, 31, of 50 Calipso Shores, is free on $2,500 bail.

Tucker was arrested and arraigned on a burglary charge in San Mateo County Municipal Court, Northern Judicial District, in South San Francisco.

He was arrested Aug. 12 after a chase that started at the Holiday Inn near San Francisco Airport when an alarm went off that had been installed to protect television sets from theft, according to police.

No Complaint Against Pair

No complaint has been filed in Marin Municipal Court against two men arrested Monday in Fairfax.

The district attorney's office reported complaints would not be filed pending further investigation.

Stone Marston Uhl, 20, of San Geronimo and Edward Paul Leclair, 20, of San Anselmo, were booked on suspicion of concealing a color television set that had been reported stolen.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 2, the 245th day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Vrigo.

American poet and humorist Eugene Field was born Sept. 3, 1850.

On this day in history:

In 1935 one of the worst hurricanes to hit the U.S. mainland ripped through the Florida Keys, killing more than 365 persons.

In 1945 Japan signed an unconditional surrender aboard the U.S. battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay, ending World War II.

In 1964 World War I hero Alvin York died at the age of 76.

In 1968 the death toll in an earthquake which hit Iran was fixed at 12,000

A thought for today: American Gen. Douglas MacArthur said, "It is fatal to enter any war without the will to win it."

State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger is scheduled to speak on the "Crisis in the Courts" Sept. 27 at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium, Petaluma.

The 7 P.M. dinner session is sponsored by the Petaluma Area Republican Women Federated. About 350 persons are expected to attend.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Saving Of Just One Trick May Lead To Achieving Bid

The principle of keeping the dangerous opponent out of the lead is most important at no-trump contracts since you have to worry about being swamped by an entire long suit. Even at a trump contract, however, you must still keep the dangerous opponent out; saving one trick may be important.

CLEVER SHIFT

West leads the king of hearts and then cleverly shifts to the deuce of clubs. Who is the dangerous opponent (if any), and what can you do about keeping that opponent out of the lead?

East is the villain of the piece. If East wins a trick he will lead diamonds through your king. This will give the enemy two diamond tricks if West happens to hold the ace of diamonds. You cannot afford to lose two diamonds, one heart and one club.

West is not dangerous. If West leads diamonds, your king will win a trick. You can afford to give up one diamond trick.

DEVELOP CLUBS

You must plan to develop dummy's clubs in order to get rid of your diamonds. If the clubs break badly you can eventually play the diamonds in the hope that East has the ace. But you must develop the clubs in such a way as to keep East out of the lead.

Win the second trick with the ace of clubs and return the queen of hearts, discarding the nine of clubs from your hand. This gives West an unexpected heart trick but prevents East from gaining the lead in clubs.

BEST DEFENSE

If West leads a trump (his best defense), win with dummy's nine, ruff a club; lead a trump to the seven, and ruff another club. Now lead a trump to the ace and discard two diamonds on dummy's established clubs.

DAILY QUESTION

♥ - 9 7 6 4 2
♦ - Q J 10 9

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts.

This promises strong trump support (often five or more trumps, always four trumps or more), a side singleton or void suit, and not more than nine points in high cards.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Best Preventive To Cholera Is Personal Hygiene, Good Water

During 1970, the seventh cholera pandemic in 150 years moved out of its old Asian haunts and into the USSR, Turkey, Czechoslovakia and Africa. According to World Health Organization (WHO), at least 46 countries were affected. Cholera appears as a very different entity in different places. It has been dubbed the "iceberg" disease because most cases are mild enough to pass unnoticed. Vibrio cholera, the causative organism, can be harbored by carriers who spread but never get the disease. In contrast, some victims become seriously ill with diarrhea, vomiting, dehydration and collapse. Death results from severe dehydration which strikes with appalling suddenness.

RAPID IMPROVEMENT follows the use of intravenous solutions to replace the fluids lost from vomiting and diarrhea. Antibiotics, such as the tetracyclines, shorten the attack and eliminate the vibrio. These measures have reduced the death rate from 3o to one per cent.

Cholera flourishes where hygiene is poor. It is passed along thru food and water contaminated by human waste. The best preventive is personal cleanliness and a good water supply. According to the World Health Organization "there are also moderately effective vaccines but they need improvement."

SINCE THE first pandemic, cholera has killed so many people that its bad reputation is difficult to shake, despite the fact that mortalities have been reduced to one per cent. The latest outbreaks have created no end of hysteria in certain countries. Exports from some of the affected countries have been forbidden, even though the materials have nothing to do with transmission of the disease. In many instances, cholera scares have had an adverse effect on tourism and above all the wariness of the reactions that the word cholera unleashes.

ESTIMATING FUTURE HEIGHT

A reader writes: My daughter is 35 inches tall but only two years old. Is there any way to determine whether she will continue to grow at this rate and will be a tall woman?

REPLY

In general, the height of an adult is about twice what it was when the individual was two years old. At this rate, this girl should be five feet, 10 inches tall, but women tend to be somewhat shorter when this rule is used. How tall are the mother and father?

LEG IS SHORTER

J. B. writes: When a person has had a fractured hip, why does one leg become a little shorter than the other?

REPLY

The answer depends upon the exact location of the fracture. Shortening occurs when there is overlapping of the broken ends, when a small part of the bone withers away, or the muscles atrophy.

SILVER NITRATE DROPS

L. L. N. writes: Why do doctors put medicine in a newborn baby's eyes?

REPLY

Silver nitrate drops are used as a prophylaxis against the spread of venereal disease to the eyes. Gonorrhea of the eyes of babies was one of the most common causes of blindness before health laws made this procedure mandatory.

ABDOMINAL DISTRESS

Mrs. G. writes: Are the symptoms of intestinal allergy and spastic colon the same?

REPLY

Both may produce abdominal cramping and diarrhea.

Today's Health Hint — Never give or take medicine in the dark.

Nixon Invited To Attend Fair

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State Fair officials believe President Nixon, a native son, should visit the fair while he is at the Western White House so he can "move among Californians who are in a festive mood."

"We think the President should not go back to Washington without having the opportunity to have a fun day at the showcase of his native state," the officials said in a telegram sent to Nixon Wednesday.

"We are prepared to designate one of the remaining days of the fair as Presidential Day," the wire added. Last week about 75 persons were arrested when rock-throwing teen-agers engaged police equipped with riot gear in three nights of confrontations.

Dominican Sets Weaving Classes

Panel To Study Harbor Plan

A revised master plan for development of the Sausalito Yacht Harbor was taken under study last night by the Sausalito Planning Commission, Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt reported today.

He said the planners asked architect Roland Mays for two weeks to review his plan, which was changed to incorporate some revisions suggested by the commission at its July 21 meeting.

The commission will consider the proposal again at its Sept. 15 meeting, Borgwardt said.

In other business, the planners turned down a variance request from Robert Dunbar who had asked relief from city requirements to provide two offstreet parking spaces for a dwelling at 564 Bridgeway.

The commission granted Donald Duncan permission to divide a 12,000-square-foot lot at 66 Prospect Avenue into two parcels.

Time For Tennis Clubs Requested

The Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended that Fairfax tennis clubs be given a special time for use of the city's tennis courts.

Because the tennis clubs have helped in maintenance of the courts and helped install night lighting, the commission decided Tuesday night to ask City Adm. Robert E. Crowe to reserve the courts two nights a week for the clubs, according to Ernestine Healy, commission secretary.

Tony Barbera, recreation director, was given approval to use the city ball field on Saturday mornings for dog training classes if there was no conflict with use of the ball park.

The commission asked Crowe to see what action had been taken toward selling the pool table at the pavilion. The commission recommended their sale last Jan. 19, Mrs. Healy reported.

The commission discussed play equipment, rest rooms and other items which should go into the city park, but took no action on any recommendations for the park, she said.

Nader Asserts Car Hazards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader says millions of late model cars are hazardous, partly because the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) is too slow in probing suspected defects.

Nader issued a list of faults Wednesday that included "exploding" side windows in General Motors cars, engine fires in the 1971 Mercury Capri, and "dangerous" motor mounts in Chevrolets.

In a letter to NHTSA Administrator Douglas W. Toms, Nader said there have been investigations of defective engine mounts on Chevrolets for more than a year, but no action. Although the agency's files contain evidence of the failure of energy absorbing steering columns, he said, there is no action.

Dominican Sets Fall Registration

Registration for the fall semester at Dominican College in San Rafael will be held Monday in Guzman Hall on the campus.

Students may register between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. that day.

This will be the first time that the 81-year-old college will be coeducational. The fall semester starts next Wednesday and ends on Dec. 17.

The college is offering 221 courses including 48 late afternoon and evening classes between 4:10 and 9 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Archaeology will be a new course including excavation of an Indian mount on the Dominican campus.

A one unit lecture and discussion group on western civilization will be given in connection with the free showing of the 13-part color film series "Civilization" by historian Kenneth Clark.

The college will offer programs on fitness including Aikido, Yoga and Ski Conditioning, in addition to full schedule of graduate and undergraduate courses in liberal arts.

Draft Ruling Is Challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federally funded agency that provides legal help to the indigent filed suit Tuesday seeking to employ conscientious objectors who want to work off their two years of alternate service.

The suit by the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation was filed in U.S. District Court and challenges a Selective Service rule against men working with it in lieu of military service.

Such a rule is arbitrary, unreasonable, capricious and unjustified the suit contended.

It also deprives the agency of workers who could advise indigents concerning Selective Service problems, the suit added.

Otepka Confident He'll Win Job

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Otto F. Otepka moved from a tiny room in the State Department to a luxurious office of the Subversive Activities Control Board three years ago but his work hasn't changed much.

He's still sitting and waiting.

Otepka has been a controversial figure since 1963 when State Secretary Dean Rusk ordered him fired from his $19,000-a-year job as chief security officer in the department for giving secret personnel documents to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee.

But Otepka remained on the payroll — sometimes at a lower salary — for several years while he appealed his dismissal. During that time, he was given a small office where he said his only assignment was to read the Congressional Record.

The Civil Service Commission ultimately refused to reinstate him in his old job. However, President Nixon in June, 1969, nominated him to fill an unexpired term — at a $36,000 salary — as a member of the SACB.

Some liberals opposed the nomination but the Senate gave its approval in a 61-28 vote for Otepka. The term ran out Aug. 9, 1970, and Nixon then proposed him for a full five-year appointment.

The Senate did not act on the President's request last year and the nomination was resubmitted by the White House this year. It was approved by the Judiciary Committee, 13 to 3, but there has not yet been a Senate vote on confirmation.

If the Senate adjourns again this year without voting on the nomination, Otepka's current recess appointment will expire and he will go off the payroll.

So, once again as at the State Department, he is watching and waiting, and hoping for a vote soon after the Senate reconvenes after the summer recess.

He says he is not worried about how the vote would come out.

"I feel very confident," he said in an interview. "Certainly the administration supports me."

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Internal Security Subcommittee to which Otepka gave the Department documents, has applauded Nixon's nomination and described Otepka as "a man who has performed a vital service to his country."

Some liberals, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., among them, charged Otepka associated too much with rightist groups.

A syndicated columnist, Carl T. Rowan, recently described Otepka as "a sort of Daniel Ellsberg in reverse." Ellsberg is accused of furnishing newspapers with classified Defense Department documents — the celebrated "Pentagon papers" on origins and conduct of the Vietnam War.

In the interview, Otepka rejected the comparison with Ellsberg. Otepka said he gave no classified documents to newspapers, but merely provided senators, at their request, with information to support his own sworn testimony.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt created the SACB in 1939 to help the attorney general draw up a list of organizations considered to be subversive. The Supreme Court in recent years sharply curbed the board's powers, and it was virtually dormant until the Johnson administration referred some cases to it.

Last year, Otepka said, the Nixon administration referred 15 cases to the Board.

Early last July, President Nixon issued an executive order extending the board's jurisdiction to cover "violent-action oriented organizations" that deny others their constitutional or legal rights.

Otepka said former attorneys general were to blame for the board's long period of inaction.

"The board is not a self-generating agency, and may not begin an investigation or initiate work on its own," Otepka said. "The former Attorney Generals — Robert F. Kennedy, Nicholas Katzenbach, and Ramsey Clark — were antagonistic to the board, so the fault lay there."

He said Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told the House Internal Security Committee that he planned to send 25 cases to the board for investigation. The list is expected soon, Otepka said.

Meanwhile, he said, the SACB is drawing up regulations for approval by the Office of Management and Budget, under Nixon's new directive, and is preparing to rewrite the list of subversive organizations. He said it is outdated and estimated that more than half the named should be removed.

Switzerland To Recognize Hanoi

BERN, Switzerland (UPI)— The Swiss government announced today it will grant diplomatic recognition to North Vietnam, but left the level of relations open to negotiations with Hanoi.

In an official communique following the regular meeting of the seven-man Swiss cabinet this morning, the government said it had decided to recognize Hanoi "because of international developments...and to give existing relations an official character."

Fine, Probation On Grand Theft

Sally Jean Taylor, 29, of San Rafael, has been fined $315 in Marin Municipal Court for misdemeanor grand theft.

Judge David Menary Jr. also placed her on probation for one year.

She was originally charged with felony counts of grand theft and burglary, but the burglary charge was dismissed when she pleaded guilty to the reduced grand theft charge in July.

She was arrested May 21 outside the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center after taking clothing valued at $395 from the store, San Rafael police reported.

JIM GILMARTIN

New Staff Member An Exuberant Man

During the past month you've probably noticed a new by-line on these pages. It belongs to Ron Lent who has replaced Dave Einstein on our ace staff.

Einstein has forsaken the Marin County sports beat to move to Israel with his attractive wife, Diane, there to toil on a farm and study the Hebrew language. He had excellent training here, sweating over a hot typewriter and deciphering scorebooks.

I mention the change in our sports staff simply to notify my parish pastor that I already have given up Einstein for Lent.

I haven't heard from Einstein since his departure, but Lent tells me he understands Dave already has become the first Israelite ever to be offered an athletic scholarship to the University of Cairo. The Egyptians want him to be first string javelin catcher on their track and field team, having completely exhausted their supply of returning lettermen. Einstein rejected the offer, pointlessly, I thought.

Anyway, before he left, Einstein promised he would cover the Matzo Bowl for us next New Year's Day. It just might be a six-day assignment.

The Marin sporting gentry will appreciate Lent, an exuberant young man of 23 summers. An early riser, he reports to work ahead of his appointed hour, eager to plunge into his assignments. While the rest of us are reluctant to telephone news sources at the dawning hour of 6 a.m., Lent relishes the assignment. The kid has telephonitis.

While the rest of the world sleeps, Ron is Ma Bell's best friend. "Good morning, coach," he chirps brightly. "Am I per chance your alarm clock this morning? Hah-Hah. Got any goodies for this bright morning?"

I can just hear the yawning and growling on the other end of the line. But so far, Lent has enjoyed remarkable success. Thus far, only five of his news contacts have slammed the phone in his ear.

As I said, the Marin sporting gentry will appreciate this bright young man. Good morning, coach. Rise and shine.

ONE OF Marin's newest tax payers is Bobby Lutz, former Davis Cupper and Wimbledon doubles champion (with Stan Smith) who is now under professional contract with World Championship Tennis.

A bachelor, Lutz recently purchased a home in Tiburon and already has established himself with the local gentry as "quite a swinger," with or without a racquet.

You might catch this young star in action at the Tiburon Peninsula Club courts one of these days practicing for the Redwood Bank's International Open Championships scheduled Sept. 25-Oct. 3 in Berkeley and San Francisco. His practice partner of late has been Barry MacKay of Ross, another ex-Davis Cup star who is serving as tourney director for the Redwood Bank.

The San Rafael-headquartered bank has in the offing what probably will be the best tennis tournament in the country this year. Especially since many of the top players like Rod Laver and his WCT cohorts who have withdrawn from this week's U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y. will play in the Bay Area event. According to Chairman MacKay: "We'll have all 32 of the contract pros from WCT along with 32 independent pros and the country's best amateurs in our competition."

MARIN COUNTY Woman's Bowling Association is losing one of its brightest personalities this weekend as Dottie Reiman, one of the county's high average keglerettes and member of the "600" Club, is pulling up stakes and moving to her native Mississippi. Mrs. Reiman's legion of friends are hoping her defection will be brief. And if you compare Ol' Miss. with Marvelous Marin, it will be.

Speaking of keglerettes, Marilyn Epidendio, Marin's representative in the recent Ladies West Coast Match Game eliminations in San Francisco, picked up $70 for her seventh place finish.

MARIN TARS ROAR FOR SEASON IN STORE

College of Marin backs and ends sprinted on the Kentfield campus baseball field yesterday for the first of two practice sessions. This 19-man group joined some 16 linemen in training for next Saturday's scrimmages with Diablo Valley College. Coach Dick Read's Tars will go through double practices tomorrow, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, hoping to round into top form for the Diablo Valley encounter. On that day, DVC will bring its defense to Marin for a two-hour battle starting at 10 a.m. The Tar defense will return the favor by travelling to Pleasant Hill for a 120-minute war against the Diablo Valley offense at 5 p.m. that same day.

A's Big Number Reduced To 12

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The Oakland A's have all but cinched the title in the American League West with 27 games to play and a 17-game lead over second-place Kansas City.

The A's came here Tuesday night with a two-game losing streak, routed the California Angels in two straight and headed for Minnesota where they open a four-game weekend series Friday after a day of rest today.

Manager Dick Williams plans to use Diego Segui, 9-5, and the fabulous Vida Blue, 23-6, in the Friday night doubleheader.

After his A's beat the Angels, 7-0, Wednesday night with Chuck Dobson pitching his first shutout of the year and Reggie Jackson hitting his 26th homer, Williams said:

"We haven't cinched the division yet. Our magic number is twelve. But I think now I will rest some of our fellows, some regulars, and take a look at some of the others ... like Garrett, he broke in with a bang with two hits and a walk."

Garrett is Adrian Garrett, 28year-old outfielder who was purchased from Tacoma and got his first and second major league hits Wednesday night.

"I've got to get my bullpen working," said Williams. "We've had 53 complete ball games."

Dobson ran his record to 15-3, letting the Angels down with seven scattered hits.

"You know, it's funny," he said. "Last year I had five shutouts but this year I just can't seem to get them very easily. Of course it doesn't really matter as long as we win."

Then he added with an impish grin, "I'm hitting too. You can help yourself a lot hitting."

The big right hander slashed a single to center in the sixth inning to score Rick Monday from third. Garrett opened the inning with a single off Andy Messersmith but was forced at second by Monday. Dick Green singled to send Monday to third and then Dobson got his hit. Green advanced to third and scored on Campy Campaneris' sacrifice fly to make it 5-0.

Jackson ran his RBI streak to nine games —he has 10 runs batted in for the last nine games during which he has hit six homers.

"As long as you play every day, you're bound to hit," said Jackson. "Hitting Messersmith is not easy.

"I think he has the best righthanded stuff in the league although he was a little off. The Angels have their problems. If he was with us, he'd be a 20-game winner."

"Andy deserved a better fate," said Angel manager Lefty Phillips.

Messersmith took his 13th loss against 14 victories. The A's got their first run in the third inning whem Campaneris walked and stole second. Jackson brought him home with a single to center.

In the fourth, Monday, walked and Green singled to left where Tony Gonzalez fielded the ball and threw wild to the infield. The ball stopped in

Kodes In Stunner Over Newcombe

NEW YORK (UPI)—"I feel great. I didn't expect to win one set, but I win three."

That was the reaction of Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia after his stunning 2-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-3 opening round victory over top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Wednesday.

"I'm not mad, just disgusted," said Newcombe, a Wimbledon two-time back to back champion. "I played awful tennis. My serve had no sting to it and after the first set, Jan just kept swinging away at everything. He had nothing to lose and everything he hit kept going in."

The shock of the top seed bowing out in the first round of the $160,000 tournament brought a huge grin from tournament chairman Bill Talbert, who had said that this would be a "wide open open."

Talbert had hoped for upsets and for some old familiar faces to come through for gate purposes. Pancho Gonzalez didn't disappoint him. The old lion of the court, now 43, disposed of another Wimbledon champion by defeating Bob Kreiss of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Pancho's patented act of complaining about the surface, the ball and the officials was played to the hilt to the delight of the announced attendance of 8,661, and Pancho, who won at Forest Hills before his first round opponent was born, now goes into the second round against Stan Matthews of Great Britain, who won a tiebreak marathon over Richard Russell of Jamaica, BWI, 6-7, 6-7, 7-6, 76, 6-3.

While Pancho was keeping faith with Talbert, Gussie Moran of the famous lace panties of two decades ago, failed, losing to Czechoslovakia's Alena Palmeova-West, 6-2, 6-3.

The quick exit of Gussie was the only notable moment in the first day's women's play. Second-seeded Rosemary Casals of San Francisco had some mild trouble before downing Betty Stove of the Netherlands, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3. Sixth seeded Judy Dalton of Australia whipped Vicke Berner of Canada, 6-0, 6-1 and eighth-seeded Julie Hedman of Houston briskly eliminated Marjorie Gengler of Locust Valley, N.Y. 6-3, 6-4.

The other men's seeds advanced without incident. Third-ranked Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., topped Dick Knight of Bellevue, Wash., 6-3, 6-4, 6-1. Sixth-seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., halted Davis Cup teammate Charles Pasarell of Santurce, P.R., 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 and the volatile Ilie Nastase of Romania halted Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico 6-2, 7-5, 6-4.

Squids Top Eagles In Rec Softball

The Squids squashed 666 Eagles, 20-4; Fairfax Shell flattened The Bums, 8-2; Cain's Tire edged Terra Linda Mellow Fellows, 4-3, and Glue Gloves downed Don Rumpf 7-4 in San Rafael Recreation Department softball last night on Albert Field.

Mike Gamos and Ken Becker each had three hits for the Squids. Once again, Stan Gilstrap turned in a solid pitching performance for Fairfax Shell, holding The Bums to a pair of runs.

Carty Case: 3 Policemen Are Fired

ATLANTA (UPI)—Atlanta's aldermanic police committee, after a 7 1-2 hour hearing, early today fired three policemen accused of beating Atlanta Braves baseball player Rico Carty.

One of the officers called the trial "a railroad job."

"We were guilty before we went in there," said C.E. Turner.

Turner, L.D. Smith and R.E. McEarchern were charged with assaulting Carty Aug. 24 after the 31-year-old player from the Dominican Republic complained he was harassed by two white men while driving down a street. He said the men called him "nigger."

Carty testified he stopped his car when he saw a police car and reported the incident to patrolman McEarchern. The two men also stopped, Carty said, and attacked him and the policeman joined in the beating.

"I yelled, 'I'm Rico' ", Carty said.

He said the uniformed patrolman replied, "Who the hell cares who he is."

Carty, who led the National League in hitting last year, said the patrolman hit him in the face with a "slap jack." He said he suffered two black eyes, one of which may be permanently damaged, and a number of bruises.

Carty said the patrolman also hit his brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez, with a pistol.

He said McEarchern later told the two white men to leave. The men subsequently were identified as Turner and Smith, who were off-duty policemen and in plain clothes.

Raider Rookie Trio Missing, Presumed Cut

SANTA ROSA (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders never talk about player cuts, but three players are missing from training camp and the obvious conclusion is that they are victims of roster trimming.

Defensive lineman Tim Oesterling, wide receiver Frank Foreman and defensive back Clarence Oliver were not in camp Wednesday as the Raiders prepared for their exhibition game Saturday against San Francisco.

The Raiders also shifted Ted Koy from tight end to running back, where he played at the University of Texas. The shifting of Koy coincided with doubtful status for Saturday's game of rookie Clarence Davis, who underwent an examination for a damaged ankle.

The Koy change also may indicate Bob Moore, a rookie from Stanford, is proving a good backup man for tight end Ray Chester.

GIANTS GET DAY OFF

Back-To-Back Shutouts Leave Braves Reeling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Everything is coming up roses these days for the San Francisco Giants, which has to be bad news for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Giants are playing the kind of baseball of late which they did early in the year while running away from the opposition in the National League West.

In Wednesday's 4-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves, the Giants blended timely hitting, powerful pitching and a crisp defense that left the Braves wondering what it's all about.

Ralph Garr, Atlanta's young outfielder, made a couple of over-anxious throws in the first inning and the Giants took advantage to score a pair of unearned runs. In the third they combined a lusty double by Willie McCovey, singles by Al Gallagher and Chris Speier and an error by catcher Earl Williams into two more runs, and that was all she wrote.

Meanwhile, Speier, at short, Gallagher, at third, and McCovey, at first, pulled off half a dozen sparkling plays and John Cumbeland, the tough lefthander who rises to the occasion, limited the Braves to four hits.

"When Cumberland pitches like that," said manager Charlie Fox, "There isn't a team he can't beat. He kept the ball low, used his screwball to great advantage and had the Braves guessing what he was going to do next."

Cumberland, now 8-3, said he didn't pitch much differently this time than he had in the past, except that he worked extra hard on Hank Aaron and Williams, the young catcher-first baseman who has blossomed into a fine hitter, and a dangerous one, too.

"I feel I can get my fastball and screwball over for strikes anytime I like," said Cumberland, "so most of the time that's what I threw each batter on the first pitch because I wanted to get out in front.

"With Aaron and Williams, though, I changed the pattern. One time I started Hank off with a slider, another time with a curve, the third time with a fastball and the fourth time with a screwball. I did the same with Williams but I mixed the order around.

"I feel that anytime I can get those two out I have nothing to worry about."

Aaron flied out twice, grounded out and struck out. Williams flied out, struck out, singled and walked.

Three of the four hits off Cumberland were singles and the only man to reach second on him was Marty Perez, who doubled after one out in the eighth.

Gallagher's single extended his hot streak. He now has hit safely at least once in 24 of the last 28 games while raising his average from .250 to just a shade under .300.

Cumberland's performance gave the San Francisco staff, once maybe the leakiest in the National League outside of Pittsburgh, its 11th complete game in the last 20. In the stretch Juan Marichal pitched five complete games, Gaylord Perry four and Cumberland two.

While the Giants inch their way toward a division title Fox is playing things cool.

"We'll stick to our regular lineup, except to give a guy a breather or two, until we are mathematically assured of the title," he said. "Until then, we'll play every game as though it was our last and we had to win it."

Fox will have to do, though, without Dave Kingman, the big slugging first baseman-outfielder, who was operated on late Wednesday for the removal of his appendix.

Kingman reported to the ball park as usual Wednesday but complained of nausea and was

49ERS' DICK NOLAN

Working On Two Fronts

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI)—San Francisco 49ers coach Dick Nolan is working on two fronts—juggling the roster and preparing for Saturday's contest with the Oakland Raiders.

Nolan got his squad down to the required 49 players Tuesday by putting seven players on waivers Tuesday, but only five players' names were released.

On Wednesday, the 49ers announced that Jim McCann, a rookie punter from Arizona State and the team's eighth round draft choice, had passed through the 24-hour waiver recall period and had been put on the taxi squad.

The seventh player, Doug Berry, a free agent wide receiver from Southern Utah, was released.

Nolan still has other cuts to make, but they will come after the game with the Raiders.

Although he will want to get a further look at some new faces, Nolan also will be trying a bit harder to beat his crossbay rivals from Oakland. The Raiders have won the last three exhibitions following the 49ers victory in the 1967 opener.

Jenkins Turns On The Power

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ferguson Jenkins, the leading candidate for the National League Cy Young Award, and Tom Seaver, a former winner, both turned in sparkling winning performances Wednesday night to remind their teammates of what might have been in 1971 if only...

If only there had been more hitting, more consistency, fewer injuries, and just a wee bit more luck, things certainly would have been different. If only, if only...

Instead, the Chicago Cubs, for whom Jenkins has won 21 games, and the New York Mets, for whom Seaver has chalked up 233 strikeouts and the lowest ERA this side of Vida Blue, are straddled in third and fourth place in the National League East, 8 1-2 and 12 1-2 games respectively behind the first place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Jenkins led the Cubs to a 5-2 victory over Montreal by limiting the Expos to only six hits and driving in three runs with a pair of homers. In the conclusion of a suspended game from Tuesday, the Expos, aided by an eight-run sixth inning, downed the Cubs 11-2.

Jenkins, who has won 20 games for five straight seasons, trailed 2-1 going into the last of the fifth inning, but unloaded his third homer of the year with a man aboard to put the Cubs ahead to stay. After Jim Hickman tripled home Brock Davis, who had singled, in the sixth, Jenkins led off the seventh with another homer to close out the Cubs' scoring.

Seaver (16-8) fired a four-hitter for his fifth consecutive complete game victory as the Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-1.

Seaver, besting Bob Gibson for the third time this season, has allowed only four runs over the last 54 innings and has not lost a game since Aug. 1. He lowered his league-leading ERA to 1.92.

New York knocked Gibson, now 13-12, out of the game with three runs in the seventh after having scored one in the second and two in the third.

"We still have a decent chance to win the pennant, Seaver said with more hope than conviction. "Well, we have a slight chance," he added.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh won its fourth game in a row, defeating Philadelphia 10-7, Los Angeles trounced Houston 9-2, San Diego dumped Cincinnati 3-1 and San Francisco beat Atlanta 4-0.

Manny Sanguillen singled in a five-run first inning and hit a two run homer in the second as the Pirates extended their longest winning streak since late July, when they reeled off 11 straight victories.

Dave Roberts pitched a five-hitter against the Reds to lower his ERA to 1.99 and gain his 12th victory against 14 losses. A single by Enzo Hernandez a sacrifice and a single by nate Colbert in the first inning gave the Padres their first run off Gary Nolan who yielded only five hits before being lifted for a pinch-hitter after eight innings.

Don Sutton held the Astros to only four hits and rode an eight-run Dodger outburst in the second inning as he turned in his best performance of the year, striking out 12 and walking only one. He also chipped in a single in the decisive rally.

COMPLETE PITCHER — Chicago Cubs righthander Ferguson Jenkins accepts congratulations at the plate from Don Kessinger (11) after belting his first of two home runs yesterday enroute to recording his 21st win, 5-2 over Montreal at Wrigley Field. (UPI Telephoto)

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Orioles Still Have A Season's Goal

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Baltimore Orioles now have exactly one month before they play another game that really means something.

On Saturday, Oct. 2, the Orioles will play host to Oakland and Vida Blue in the first game of the American League playoffs as they shoot for their third straight pennant.

But that doesn't mean the Orioles are going to have a dull fical month. They still have quite a goal to shoot for. They have a realistic chance of becoming the first team in 51 years to boast four 20-game winners.

Mike Cuellar became the second pitcher on the staff to record No. 17 Tuesday night when he pitched a six-hitter as the Orioles clobbered the Boston Red Sox 8-2.

Merv Rettenmund, who is the Orioles' leading hitter with a .307 average but isn't guaranteed a place in the starting lineup in that first playoff game, hit a three-run homer in the five-run second inning and Cuellar coasted to the triumph.

This is how the records for the Orioles' "big four" now look:

Cuellar 17-7; Pat Dobson 17-6; Dave McNally 16-4; Jim Palmer 16-7.

The odds are still against all four pitchers making the 20game circle but they've certainly got a chance.

The interesting thing about their success is that in 1968, three of the four pitchers weren't even with the Orioles. Palmer was a sore-armed minor leaguer whose career was in jeopardy while Dobson had a 5-8 record with Detroit and Cuellar was 8-11 with Houston.

But Palmer's arm problems cleared up in 1969 and the Orioles picked up Cuellar for Curt Blefary in a steal of a trade. Dobson went to San Diego in the expansion draft and the Orioles completed their foursome last winter when they picked him up in a seven-player deal.

In the other AL games, Washington blanked New York 2-0, Milwaukee nipped Kansas City 3-2, Detroit edge Cleveland 4-3, Chicago topped Minnesota 2-0 in 11 innings and Oakland blanked California 7-0.

Bert Blyleven pitched 10 scoreless innings but Chicago jumped on reliever Bob Gebhard for two runs in the 11th to beat Minnesota. Carlos May's bloop single and Walt Williams' sacrifice fly produced the only runs of the game. Wilbur Wood pitched nine scoreless innings for Chicago but Bart Johnson got the victory in relief. Wood, 18-10, was pitching with two days rest and has now started five games in the last two weeks.

Ike Brown hit a three-run homer in the second and Bill Freehan singled home the deciding run in the sixth to lift Detroit past Cleveland. Les Cain went eight innings to get the victory and Fred Scherman finished up for his 19th save.

rushed to the hospital where his condition was diagnosed quickly.

"We hate to lose Dave," said Fox, "just when he was starting to get the hang of things. The doctors tell me he won't be able to play for at least three weeks."

With McCovey rested, first base will be his in the stretch, and if he needs a rest, Fox said he will call on Willie Mays, Ken Henderson, Hal Lanier or Russ Gibson.

"All four of them have played first before," said Fox, "and I'm sure any one of them could do it again if we have to rest McCovey a day or two."

All the Giants will be resting today—an off day in the schedule—but they go back to work Friday night against the Houston Astros. Marichal (14-9) will pitch Friday night, Don Carrithers (3-2) will work Saturday afternoon and in Sunday's doubleheader, the last of the year at Candlestick Park, it will be Perry (14-10) and Jim Willoughby. The latter was brought up from Phoenix the other day and will be making his major league debuts.

Stanford Receiver Picked By Patriots

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI)— The New England Patriots have picked up wide receiver Randy Vataha, the Stanford star drafted by Los Angeles but cut last week.

Vataha is thus reunited with Jim Plunkett, who combined with Vataha to break about every Stanford passing mark last season.

Speedy Crown Wins Easily

Du Quoin, Ill. — Speedy Crown, a $20,000 purchase little more than a year ago, returned the investment threefold Wednesday, trotting to an easy victory in straight heats in harness racing's classic Hambeltonian for 3-year-old trotters.

Speedy Crown, driven by Howard Beissinger, who piloted his second Hambletonian winner in three years, missed the world record by less than a second and the race record by 3/5 of a second when he trotted the first heat in 1:57 2/5 to win by three lengths.

It was the second fastest speed ever recorded in the Hambletonian, bettered only by the 1964 winner Ayres with 1:56 4/5, and equalled the seventh fastest speed ever by a 3-year-old trotter.

In the second heat, Speedy Crown, who earned $64,885, the fourth biggest payoff ever to a Hambletonian winner, was timed in 1:58 1/5. The race grossed $129,770, also the fourth biggest in the 46-year history of the event.

Swimming

PARIS — American swimmers have arrived in Euope one year before the Olympics with the youngest and strongest team ever to cross the Atlantic, but they face, both now and at Munich in 1972 the fiercest competition to date.

For Europen swimmers, led by East Germany and the Soviet Union whom the U.S. team meet Sept. 3-4 and 9-11 respectively, have never been faster or shown so much promise.

On the surface, the U.S. superiority is obvious. While the Russians and East Germans were busy breaking European records, American swimmers were shattering the world marks.

Comparative times favor the U.S. men in 11 of the 15 distances swum and the American girls in the 10 out of 14 races over similar lengths. But the once-dominant American teenagers now have often less than a second'sadvantage over their European rivals — and the gap appears to be narrowing.

Raiders Underdogs For Saturday Tilt

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI)— The San Francisco 49ers have been established as 2 1-2 point favorites in their game Saturday against Oakland by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

In a Super Bowl rematch, Dallas was listed Wednesday as a 1 1-2 point favorite over Baltimore Saturday.

Basketball

NEW YORK — Six players, including Tom Payne, the first black player to play basketball for the University of Kentucky, were declared eligible for the National Basketball Association's first supplementary draft of "hardship cases" Sept. 10.

Also named on the list announced Wednesday by NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy were Phil Chenier of California, Ed Ownes of Weber State, Cyril Baptiste of Creighton, Nate Williams of Utah State and Joe Hammond, who does not attend college but is not eligible for NBA play since his high school class has yet to graduate.

Football

BERKELEY — Pacific Eight Skywriters came to California Wednesday where they heard the case discussed that put the school on indefinite NCAA suspension.

Star halfback Isaac Curtis and others failed to take the test required of all athletes to predict a 1.6 grade point average.

Coach Ray Willsey blamed the whole thing on a clerical error and said that the school was looking into channels to protest the verdict but in no way planned to "defy" the NCAA.

NEW YORK — National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle believes it is "not realistic" to consider granting a new football franchise in New York City.

However, Rozelle, who met with Mayor John V. Lindsay at City Hall Wednesday for over an hour, said he was not committed one way or another.

Baseball

The regular Pacific Coast League season has come to a soggy close and now it is playoff time.

Northern division champion Tacoma calls on southern division king Salt Lake tonight in the opener of the best-of-five set.

Play One At A Time, Says Charlie Fox

Charlie Fox rarely interrupts an interviewer. But this time the manager of the Giants did. "I know what you are leading up to and I don't want to hear it — don't tell me," said Fox.

The question Fox interrupted started this way: "If the Giants win half of their remaining games and the Dodgers — ". That was as far as the questioner got.

FOX IS WELL aware of what the magic number is for the Giants in their drive to a division championship in the National League West. But he refuses to play the magic number game.

"I know only one way to play baseball," said Fox. "That's one game at a time. There's no other way to play any sport. Take golf, for example. The pros play that game one shot at a time. They give each individual shot their utmost concentration. I don't know one golf pro who plays a course. Any golf pro who starts thinking about the course instead of the shot in front of him is headed for trouble.

"AND ANY baseball team that starts thinking about how many games are left instead of c ncentrating on the one at hand is inviting potential trouble. We've come as far as we have playing them one at a time and we're not about to change now."

Fox also refused to be drawn into any speculative guessing about the National League's eastern division race. Assuming that the Giants do wrap it up neatly in the western division, would he prefer to face the Pirates, Cardinals or Cubs in the pennant playoffs?

"I just want our Giants to qualify for the playoffs," said Fox. "I'm not concerned who we play just as long as we play."

BUT WOULDN'T he prefer to meet the Pirates in the playoffs? Or the Cubs in preference to the Cardinals? After all, the Giants beat both Pirates and Cubs 9-3 in season play but lost the season series 5-7 to the Cardinals whose ace Bob Gibson beat the Giants four times.

"Gibson was rough on us," Fox acknowledged, "but as I said I'm not concerned who we play just so long as we qualify for the playoffs."

Well, then, what about the World Series, assuming the Giants not only are successful in their drive for a division flag but also the playoffs?

"I'D GIVE MY eye teeth to get in the World Series," said Fox.

Would he prefer to meet the A's or Orioles?

"The A's," said Fox. "Just imagine a bridge series between Oakland and San Francisco! It would be wonderful."

67 Is Tops In Amateur Golf Opener

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI)— Marty West, 23, just got out of school a few months ago. Now his chief nemesis in the U.S. National Amateur Golf Championship is a teacher who makes his own maps of the golf courses on which he plays.

West, a recent graduate of the University of North Carolina playing golf while awaiting a call by the military, shot a four-under-par 67 Wednesday to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the 72-hole tournament at Wilmington Golf Club.

West had to struggle out of bed before dawn Wednesday to be in the second threesome that teed off on the par-71, 6,872yard course, yet his round of one bogey and five birdies was not threatened until very late in the day when George Haines, 28, came in with a two-under 69.

Haines, who lives in Fair Hills, N.J. but teaches math in a secondary school in nearby Westtown, Pa., scrambled all over the course, missing more fairways with his drives than he made, but still compiling a round of two bogeys and four birdies.

During a practice round Tuesday for the U.S. Amateur, Haines prepared a meticulous map of the course—a procedure he follows on every course he plays, measuring the distance of his shots, plotting the pin placements and charting hazards.

The field of 148 was finding the club's south course hard to master with only 12 players matching or bettering par despite the opening round good weather of cloudy skies, cool temperatures and relatively little wind.

Those at one-under 70, three strokes behind West, were 1966 champion Gary Cowan, of Canada, fellow Canadian Nick Weslock, veteran amateur Bill Hyndman III of Huntingdon Valley, Pa., and youngsters Eddie Pearce, 19, of Tampa, Fla., and Robert Boyle, 20, of Summerville, S.C.

Giants Recall 14 For Next Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Giants have recalled 14 optioned players with five reporting to the team Friday and the others reporting to the team's spring training next year.

The Giants announced Wednesday that righthanded pitchers Steve Stone and Jim Moyer, catcher Dave Rader, infielder Chris Arnold and outfielder Bernie Williams, all from Phoenix, will join the team this week.

The other nine players who will report to spring training are pitchers Frank Reberger, Rich Robertson, Steve Koker, Lee Pitlock and Mike Davison and outfielders Frank Johnson, Floyd Wicker and Garry Maddox.

PREP FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Teams 'Gun' For Terra Linda

(Third in a series on Marin County Athletic League football prospects.)

By RON LENT

Terra Linda High again might use some "Lucas-pucas" magic to retain its Marin County Athletic League title this fall.

Trojan coach Don Lucas dismisses his team's hard-earned top status to "an eight-year lucky streak." His rivals around the league won't buy that, so they are again "pointing" toward Terra Linda.

This fact doesn't bother a winner like Lucas. Year after year, he continues turning out championship models, a trend reminiscent to that set by the Cleveland Browns in the 1950s.

The analogy continues on when viewing the coach's profile and squad style. Like erstwhile Cleveland mentor Paul Brown, Lucas methodically produces well-disciplined, ball control-oriented teams. When a component broke down or left, the bald-domed Brown would merely trot out a finely-tuned replacement; the same holds true for Lucas.

This annum, the Trojan leader must replace quarterback Larry Kerr, a proven leader and fine runner, along with backs John Scozzafava and Matt Bowman. Seemingly oblivious to the magnitude of the challenge, Lucas listed the likes of Kevin Donohoe, John Buckley and Mike Sabel as their replacements.

The new trio may provide the backbone to Terra Linda's forever solid grid group. Donohoe, a Napa refugee, is touted the key performer. Lucas calls him a "complete football player with great athletic sense, fine passing ability and good running style." He will need these qualities in abundance if he is to adequately replace the multi-talented Kerr at quarterback.

Lucas is confident his protege from the northeast will fill the bill, thus freeing veteran John Buckley to handle halfback duties. Prior to Donohoe's emergence, Lucas was listing Buckley as his number one signal calling candidate.

Fullback Mike Sabel, 5-foot-11 inches, 170 pounds, is the Trojan's largest thoroughbred in an otherwise smallish rushing unit. Sizewise, the backfield is typical of the Lucas mold. "We've never had big clubs. We've always depended on quickness to operate our shifting "I," slots and pro sets," he adds.

As in previous years, graduation has sapped much of the team's strength, particularly in this fall's offensive line. Lucas explains, "We have to replace our entire (starting) unit. When practice opened Aug. 23, Lucas greeted only three attacking segment interior line returnees. They are: Steve Rowell, 6-1, 190; Brian Jordan, 5-10, 180; and Billy Dobbs, 5-10, 180. The first named will move from guard to tackle. Though not built big, Rowell has the toughness necessary to be a good tackle, according to Lucas. Jordan will shift from guard to center, and Dobbs will fill Rowell's newly created vacancy.

Both Jordan and Dobbs played some defense last year, and will probably log more time there this year as linebackers. However, Lucas intends to try Jordan at tackle. If he works out there, this will strengthen a line that already includes Sabel at end. The only other known quality on this platoon is Buckley, Lucas's choice for the monster back role.

While certain question marks remain unanswered in the defensive alignment, such as in the secondary and line areas, one thing is sure — will be a typical, hard-hitting unit that defends the Terra Linda football honor this season.

The players must certainly believe in the man for "Lucas took us there before." True.

Stanford Has Good Chance To Repeat As Pac-8 Champ

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Wiles Hallock, who started out on the West Coast, wandered around the Midwest and Rockies for a while and now has come home again, starts his first year as Pacific Eight Conference Commissioner, and what a football year he picked.

Easily, it could be the best ever even with the ramifications of the NCAA suspension of California and UCLA for scholastic irregularities involving Isaac Curtis and James McAlister.

Stanford, as the defending champion and Rose Bowl winner, is the team everyone will be shooting at, and while many feel the Indians from Palo Alto will wind up with the title again, you can find just as many observers who think every other team in the conference has a shot at it with the exception of Washington State.

And the Cougars from Pullman aren't all that bad with a strong group of former redshirts and 32 returning lettermen.

Washington and Oregon, with fine quarterbacks in Sonny Sixkiller and Dan Fouts, a veteran Oregon State squad and usually tough USC figure to make it a close fight with Stanford for the league title. UCLA and California aren't more than a half a step away, but even should one of them win, the next place team will wind up in the Rose Bowl.

That fact, though, won't detract one bit from a tough race.

"They can take it away from us at a meeting but what we win on the field no one can take away," says California Coach Ray Willsey. "The fact we are on suspension from post-season play doesn't take anything away from our desire to play. We'll be as tough as we have to be."

Pepper Rodgers is starting out fresh at UCLA —taking over for Tommy Prothro —so he's not as outspoken about his school's suspension, but he's optimistic. "We don't have a quarterback as of the moment," says Rodgers, "but I know we'll be better later than we'll be in our first three games."

John Ralston, the "good guy" coach at Stanford, feels his Indians could be every bit as good as they were a year ago and maybe even stronger.

He bases his view on the fact that with Jim Plunkett gone Stanford will open up its offense.

"We'll still be a passing team," says Ralston, "but we'll do a lot of new things this year with Don Bunce as our quarterback."

Bunce, unlike Plunkett, is a rollout quarterback, but he can throw from the pocket if need be. With two fine running backs —and excellent pass catchers —in Jackie Brown and Hillary Shockley, Ralston will stick to a pro-type offense —with the quarterback throwing to the backs more than in the past.

Bunce is a durable runner so Ralston will use his talents to the fullest, or so he promises.

The Indians also have an experienced offensive line and an equally experienced defensive eleven, so seemingly Ralston could be right when he says "at the very least we're as good as the best team in our league, and maybe better."

Oregon State's strength lies in its experience.

"A lot of people are overlooking the fact we have most of our club back from last season," says Coach Dee Andros, "and we were as good as anybody in the final three games last year."

Andros says if his Beavers get by the first four games (Georgia, Iowa, Michigan State and UCLA), "You won't have to worry about us. We'll be on our way."

John McKay, who coached USC to four consecutive Pac-8 titles until Stanford and Plunkett stole his thunder last year, says his Trojans are the equal of any team in the league this year.

"This team has as good a chance of winning it as anybody," he says, basing his optimism on an improved defense and an offense headed by quarterback Jimmy Jones, the running of Sam Cunningham and Bill Holland and a huge offensive line.

UCLA's problem, besides the loss of McAlister, is no regular quarterback. However, the Bruins should be solid on defense and have a pair of fine running backs in Randy Tyler and Gary Campbell.

California may spend the entire season trying to develop a quarterback from a flock of candidates, and by the time the Bears come up with a man, it may be too late. However, they are solid in every other department and Willsey has a way of getting the most out of the least.

MARIN-SONOMA GOLF

Club Championship Time On The Links

With the 1971 Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions only 10 days in the history books, area courses will be starting tournaments to renew their club champs this month.

First club off the tee will be Indian Valley of Novato which starts its men's club championship Sunday, George Scherba defending his title. On Sept. 11, Peacock Gap of San Rafael and Marin Country Club of Novato begin their tourneys. Robert Bond is the current champ at Peacock Gap.

Marin C.C. is technically without a defending champ, although Mat Palacio Jr. is the winner of the Aug. 22 Tournament of Champions played at Peacock Gap. Palacio represented Marin Country Club after winning a playoff for the spot. The club champ, Milt Morley, had moved out of the state and wasn't available for the tourney. And Palacio, a scratch golfer, will be heavily favored to win the Marin C.C. title.

Jim Brown will be defending his title at Mill Valley Municipal when that club holds its championship tourney beginning Sept. 19.

Qualifying round for the San Geronimo National club championship will be Oct. 9. Meadow Club of Fairfax does not issue any golf tournament information to the Independent-Journal.

RUSS GARDINER shot a 79 to win the age 15-17 division of San Geronimo's first junior tournament Monday. Jamie Tufts fired an 88 to win in age 13-14, and Patrick Fahy's 98 won in 10-12.

GORDON JOHNSON, who lives in Peacock Gap, near the course itself, was really on target last Saturday during a club tourney. He aced the 140-yard 10th hole, the ball landing in the cup on the fly.

THE FUZZ cwas all over the Peacock Gap course yesterday (Wednesday) when 100 San Francisco policemen blanketed the course. It was a San Francisco Police Golf Tournament, so no arrests were made.

MARIN COUNTRY CLUB'S 12-man travel team still holds the lead in the Bay Area Golf League with 157 points and takes on second place Contra Costa (140) Sept. 17 in the final match of the season. It will be played at the Contra Costa Country Club.

MARIN COUNTY Real Estate Board golf tourney will be held Sept. 17 at Marin Country Club, a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Handling reservations is Art Schallock. Low handicap golfer (4) is Art Schallock. Hmmmm.

Advantages Of Foreign Shares

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Please explain ADRs, their advantages, disadvantages, voting and legal aspects and vulnerability to governmental interference or bank failure? — C.C.

A. American Depository Receipts represent shares of foreign securities held in overseas depository banks. Receipts for these shares are issued by one of a handful of major U.S. banks. The foreign and domestic banks involved are large commercial institutions and in very little danger of failing.

The probability of governmental interference with ADRs or their underlying securities is no different than for the directly-owned foreign security.

Direct purchases of foreign securities from a foreigner are usually subject to an 11.25 per cent interest equalization tax. ADRs are priced equivalently higher than their foreign counterparts to reflect exemption from this tax. Because receipts are issued in registered form, foreign share ownership is greatly simplified for Americans.

The issuing U.S. bank has the responsibility of forwarding dividends, minus nonresident taxes imposed by many nations, payable in U.S. dollars. Most overseas corporations issue only bearer stock with dividends paid in foreign currency and collectable at specified banks.

Q. I would appreciate any information you can give me on Agway, Inc. — G.G.

This farmers' co-operative was organized in Jan. 1964 to succeed the Eastern States Co-operative and Grange League Federation. It serves 12 Eastern states and operates retail garden and agricultural stores. Late last year in a combined underwriting, more than $23 million was raised to be used for debt repayment, expansion and working capital.

Voting common stockholders are the member farmers who produce for and buy from the co-operative. Common shares are issued and redeemed by Agway for $25, one share for each bona fide farmer operator. There is no public market in the common.

Subs Show Promise In Commerce

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The noted oceanographer, Dr. Jacques Piccard, predicted recently that a commercial market for submarines at last is becoming a reality.

Ever since the Germans sent the submarine freighter Deutschland across the Atlantic to get a cargo of grain in 1916, underwater enthusiasts have insisted that someday submarines would carry a lot of the world commerce.

The newest proposal for cargo submarines is that of General Dynamics' Electric Boat division at Groton, Conn.. It sees underwater supertankers hauling oil from the Arctic slope of Alaska under the ice floes of the Northwest Passage to Atlantic ports. The Esso group has given this proposal serious consideration.

In the August issue of the Compass, a house organ of Marine Office-Appleton & Cox Corp., a big insurance group, Dr. Piccard, experienced in small research submarines, says they are about to become everyday commercial working tools like the truck, the bulldozer or the tugboat.

He says they will be used by oil companies to monitor and even to help lay thousands of miles of undersea pipelines and drilling stations.

Dr. Piccard also foresees submarines being used in ship salvaging, treasure hunting, fisheries research, life-saving operations and cargo carrying.

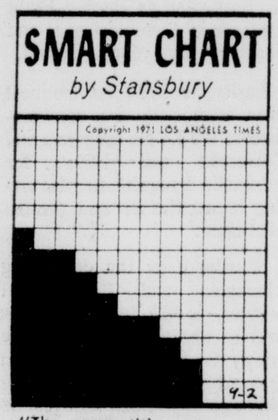
The submarine's greatest advantage over surface craft is its invulnerability to storms. At 200 feet down it would not even feel a hurricane severe enough to snap a big surface liner. Even on the surface its profile offers little target to wind and waves.

Modern naval submarines are nuclear powered and have unlimited range. Dr. Piccard concedes nuclear fuel is too expensive for commercial submarines, but he says the Walther diesel process developed by the Germans in World War II and improved by the British after the war could power workboat submarines economically. This method uses hydrogen peroxide instead of air to enable the craft to operate diesel engines while submerged.

American submarine builders say Dr. Piccard may be too enthusiastic. At present the only active market for submarines other than naval craft is for small electric or manually propelled subs used by scuba divers for sport and research. They are made by Perry Submarine Builders of Riviera Beach, Calif., American Submarine Co. of Lorain, Ohio, and International Hydrodynamics of Vancouver, among others.

But the companies that have built research submarines a little bigger —25 to more than 50 feet long —say they ran into problems. Only Electric Boat has managed to sell more than one. Others who have built such craft are Grumman Aerospace, Ingalls shipbuilding division of Litton Industries, North American Rockwell, Westingthouse Electric, Lockheed Aircraft, Lear-Siegler and Reynolds Metals.

"Except for straight scientific research, the craft have not been used nearly as much as anticipated," said a spokesman for Ingalls. It built the Alvin for the Woods Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institute. The Alvin justified her cost by a single achievement, the recovery of a hydrogen bomb dropped off the Spanish coast from a B-52 bomber.



"The competition says we must have had the world's smartest customers because they aren't buying from us anymore."

Very Little Change On The Market

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market showed a steady tone in light trading near noon today.

It was a typical pre-holiday market and analysts said they looked for little change in behavior until after Labor Day.

The government reported that wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent in August. It said, however, the latest statistics were based on surveys made prior to the start of the Aug. 16 wage-price freeze.

Prices were slightly higher in quiet trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Among the most active Amex issues were Morse Electro Products down slightly on 65,000 shares, Pickwick International fractionally higher on 33,000 shares.

On the Big Board Plessey and Amerada Hess, running one-two on the most active list, were off 1-8 and up 1 1-2, respectively.

Steels, motors, rails, airlines and aircrafts generally followed narrowly irregular paths. Monsanto lost 1⅛ in the chemicals, and Superior Oil dropped a point in its group.

Fred Temps Leaves Insurance Field For Upholstery Firm

Now it can be told — after almost 10 months of ownership of the Sam Busschaert upholstery business in San Rafael, Fred W. Temps can come out openly and admit the fact.

Temps, who lives in San Rafael, puchased the business from Mrs. Busschaert last November, but had built up his own position as district manager in Marin County for Farmers Insurance Co. over 14 pears and was too involved with over 1,500 accounts to break free of it completely.

Now he has done so and is giving all his time to the upholstery firm founded by the late Sam Busschaert, who died about two years ago. The business will be carried under the same name without any change.

Taking over as Farmers district manager is James G. Bartley of Novato, who plans on establishing new offices in the San Rafael area.

RICHARD A. OLRICH of San Rafael, manager of Wells Fargo Bank's Cow Hollow office in San Francisco, has been promoted to assistant vice president. He opened the office as manager last February and has been with the bank since 1964. During this time he was credit manager and assistant manager in the Petaluma office and was manager of the Greenbrae office in 1969.

Olrich

Clayton

WILLIAM EARLE CLAYTON, former merchandise manager at the Emporium's Northgate store, has been made manager of the Emporium at Coddingtown Shopping Center in Santa Rosa. He has been with the company since 1958 and has been living in South San Francisco. No replacement for Clayton as merchandise manager at Northgate has yet been made.

KEITH L. WARFIELD of San Rafael has been named division business sales manager of Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies in San Francisco. He was previously with the company's Minnesota office as district sales manager and before that worked in St. Louis and Detroit.

FOUR SAN RAFAEL MEN, Raymond K. Sullivan, Hendrik Van Dijke, Charles Wollborg and Andrew Nagy, have been graduated from the home office Business Management Certification Program of the Bechtel Corp. Completion of the program, which takes three years of classwork, is equivalent to a year of accredited university graduate study.

REAL ESTATE: Roy Farrington Jones of Ross will observe his 25th anniversary as a licensed real estate broker on Monday. He is a partner with his father in the San Anselmo office of Farrington Jones and Son.

Tokyo Has World's Worst Air Pollution

By FREDERICK H. MARKS

TOKYO (UPI) —Tokyo, the world's most populous city, has what many observers believe to be the world's worst air pollution.

And the Japanese government's environmental agency and the Tokyo municipal government disagree about whether the smog is getting better or worse.

"Air pollution over Japan's larger cities is much less of a problem this year than last," a federal environmental agency official said.

"The air over Tokyo is much dirtier this year than last," counters a municipal official.

Although the air over Tokyo during the hot summer months this year did seem cleaner than in the comparable season last year, the number of persons who have suffered ill effects from air pollution this year jumped 630 per cent.

Last summer 3,785 persons reported ill effects from the smog, while this summer over 23,505 persons have been physically affected by the dirty air.

Pollution alerts —when drivers are asked to leave their cars home, residents are warned to stay indoors and factories are asked to use fuel with a low sulfur content — have been issued 22 times this year, as opposed to nine times last year.

But the fact remains that the air doesn't seem as dirty as last year.

One possible explanation is that this summer has not been as hot as last year. Another explanation is that people are better informed on the effects of smog. Runny eyes and noses may not be the result of a summer cold, rather they could be the result of dirty air. And because more people know this, more people are reporting it.

The Tokyo municipal government has increased its detection stations from three to 14 facilities. The national government now has 225 air pollution detection stations and are planning to build 15 more.

But what the people of Japan need now is not more detection stations —they know the smog is there —but increased efforts to curb the air pollution.

The Diet (Parliament) this year passed a new, revised air pollution control law, which provides a $280 dollar fine and six-month jail term for anyone convicted of knowingly contributing to air pollution.

But even though the law has been in effect since June, it has yet to be used. Not one person or firm has been charged under the new law, even though the air pollution continues to affect thousands of people.

One official on the new environmental agency, created July 1, said action would probably be taken this year only if there were a "serious" outbreak of people being affected by smog. The official implied that the outbreak would have to be similar to the occurrence last summer when nearly 50 school children playing during a recess were severely affected by smog, some of them experiencing temporary paralysis in their legs.

That attitude infuriates officials of the Tokyo municipal government who charge the federal government with being subservient to big business. The ties between business and the federal government, city officials say, have resulted in virtually no action being taken against either factories contaminating the air or auto companies that don't equip cars sold in Japan with anti-pollution devices.

And municipal officials are convinced the smog is as bad as ever this year.

The Tokyo government this week released a study on air pollution which concluded that the smog above Tokyo is caused mostly by the exhaust from automobiles and trucks.

"We now believe that exhaust from automobiles is the major cause of air pollution in Tokyo," the report said. "In our studies, we believe that there is a layer of sticky and thick smog that remains high in the air above Tokyo. Air currents and the hot sun cause the layer to drop down on the city during the summer."

Toshio Ohira, director of the city's environmental center, added, "Although we put the major responsibility of the smog on auto exhaust, we still do not take lightly the contamination from industrial sources."

Life Shows Two Marin Structures

Life magazine depicts two Marin County structures as colorful examples of a new wave of floating real estate, in its Sept. 3 special issue devoted to "Americans outdoors."

Sculptor Chris Roberts's towering, still uncompleted "Madonna" on a barge, and Mary Holt's redwood water tank converted into a home are shown. Both are on the shores of Richardson Bay.

Also to be seen is a photograph of the houseboat home of two former Marinites, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pratt, at Portage Bay in the Seattle area. Anchored alongside is their ketch Sans Souci, aboard which they made their home in the Sausalito yacht harbor before moving north where Pratt works for a lumber company. Mrs. Pratt worked for the Marin Probation Department while in the county.

Boys Club Drive Gets A Boost

The Novato Boys Club's $100,000 building fund drive has reached $13,389, Edward T. Ghirardo, chairman of the bond division, reported today.

The fund was boosted with a $1,000 contribution from Dr. Raymond R. Rediske, a veterinarian, making a total of seven who have contributed $1,000.

There have been 59 contributors, Ghirardo said. The drive, in which contributors are given Boys Club bonds, will continue until Oct. 1.

Government Scores Victory In Thermal Pollution Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government claimed victory Wednesday in its first case against thermal pollution when an electrical utility agreed to stop discharging hot water into the Florida bay on which President Nixon has a vacation home.

Florida Power and Light Co. estimated that its agreement to stop discharging heated water into Biscayne Bay from its big Turkey Point generating station would cost $30 million.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced that a proposed consent order had been filed in U.S. District Court in Miami against Florida Power and Light. It marked a victory in the government's effort to stop damage to marine life in the bay because of the hot waste water discharged from the cooling system of two coal fired generating plants.

The utility is constructing two new nuclear generating plants at the station, and the problem of thermal pollution would have been much more critical when they began operating had the agreement not been reached.

Marine life damage has been limited to immediately around the Turkey Point station, on Biscayne Bay about 25 miles south of Miami, and has not affected the beach in front of the President's home which is several miles away.

The utility agreed to build a reservoir cooling system within five years, and to build a canal within four years to divert hot water five miles south to Card Sound. Florida Power and Light originally proposed the canal as its only cooling system, but the federal and Florida state governments said that would only transfer the problem from Biscayne Bay to Card Sound.

Under the consent order, the company agreed to immediately stop dumping water hotter than 95 degrees into either Biscayne Bay or Card Sound, and to rely as much as possible on other sources of power pending completion of the cooling system.

Once the cooling system is completed, the cooled water will then reflow through the plant, largely eliminating the need to take water from the bay. The only dumping then allowed would be to prevent the constantly recycled water from becoming too salty, and it could be dumped only into the canal.

A hearing on the proposed consent order was scheduled for Sept. 9 in the case, which the Justice Department first brought at the Interior Department's request. The new Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has since taken over the pollution control function of the Interior Department.

Government biologists believe at least some damage had already taken place over about 300 acres of the bay. They said water temperatures have reached as much as 103 degrees 300 yards offshore from the plants, and 95 degrees over the affected area.

They said this was critical, particularly in Biscayne Bay because its natural temperature already is high —90 degrees — and marine life had adjusted its life cycle to a delicate balance at the high temperature. They said even a temperature rise to 92 degrees can cause damage.

Increasing the temperature of water can kill small fish or fish eggs, can cause adult fish to spawn at the wrong time or fail to spawn altogether. The higher temperatures also alter the growth of plant life.

A Lack Of VD Teaching Cited

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A report prepared for the state Board of Education concludes antivenereal disease instruction at most California schools is inadequate to stem the rising VD rate.

The study says none of the state's 7th and 8th grade textbooks even mention the topic. It said some schools are buying paperbacks about VD to fill the void.

The survey, which the board will consider at its meeting next week, said outdated materials and a fear by teachers of violating state restrictions on sex education are the two major reasons for the inadequate instruction on venereal disease.

New Burglar/Fire Alarm Provides "Plug-in" Protection

You program the Preventor II alarm system like a computer to perform what you want it to do . . . turn on lights, sound alarm, call police, etc. It generates silent sound waves that create an invisible "no man's land" which an intruder cannot get through without triggering the alarm. A direct spin-off of advanced space age and military security technology. It protects against fire and smoke too. No wiring or installation — just plugs in. Looks like an expensive stereo. That's Preventor II — the world's most foolproof, yet inexpensive alarm system. Seeing is believing.

Waiver Of Taxes Asked For West Coast Ships

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Correspondent

WASHINGTON — California's two Democratic Senators have appealed to Treasury Secretary John Connally to waive the 10 per cent surcharge on imported goods in vessels which arrived in West Coast ports before Aug. 16 but were unable to unload because of the dock strike.

Sens. Alan Cranston and John V. Tunney, in a joint letter to Connally, said 87 ships with cargo valued at $291 million were in the ports as of 12:01 a.m. Aug. 16 when President Nixon's new economic rules went into effect.

West Coast docks have been shut down since July 1.

Cranston and Tunney pointed out that American importers had either paid for the merchandise or agreed to pay a certain price before Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge was announced.

In some cases, the senators said, importers already had negotiated a resale price to retailers which they are contractually bound to meet.

"Importers in other parts of the nation, not having to absorb the delayed unloading, now have similar merchandise, which was ordered during the same period, on the market and at a price 10 per cent below what their West Coast competitors will be required to charge," they said.

"To require that the West Coast importers pay the surcharge on cargo in ships tied up in strike-closed ports has the effect of penalizing them for a strike to which they are not a party."

Cranston and Tunney said the dock strike already had penalized importers who have had to pay more for extended credit while cargo, which they borrowed money to purchase, remains on board.

Further extra costs have been incurred by importers who had goods unloaded in Mexican and Canadian ports and shipped to them by rail and truck.

Under these circumstances, Cranston and Tunney told Connally, the imposition of the 10 per cent surcharge "clearly discriminates against the importers."

They said the surcharge in this instance "serves no useful purpose in improving the balance of power position of the U.S. and would create such an extreme hardship on the West Coast economy."

RIGHT NOW, AMERICAN MOTORS WILL REFUND THE 7% FEDERAL EXCISE TAX ON ANY '71 YOU BUY. NO MATTER WHAT CONGRESS DECIDES TO DO.

Make a deal with your dealer.
Then American Motors will send you a check for $100 to $200.

On August 15, the President recommended that the 7% Federal Excise Tax on automobiles be repealed.

But it won't become official until Congress votes on the recommendation sometime next month. And nobody knows exactly what they'll do.

But, right now, American Motors is refunding the tax, no matter what happens.

So, when you buy a '71 from us, you won't have to wonder what's going to happen.

And, at a time when American Motors dealers are making their best deals of the year, we're making it an even better deal.

When you settle on a price with him, he sends us a card. Then we'll send you a check for $100 to $200, depending on the price of the car you buy.

This offer is valid on all our 1971 Gremlins, Sportabouts, Hornets, Javelins, Matadors and Ambassadors. It's also good on all Jeep models, except trucks.

And, if you bought a new '71 from one of our dealers on or after August 16, see him about your refund from the company.

So, while all the other car companies are waiting around for Congress to act, American Motors is acting.

See your dealer now.

With the deals he's giving, plus the refund we're giving, this could be the best automobile buy in history.

NEW SAUSALITO DOWNTOWN PLAN

Planner Borgwardt Outlines Development With Revenues Coming From Parking Lots

A comprehensive development plan for downtown Sausalito, including city-owned commercial and professional buildings, underground parking and a northern parking lot, has been proposed by the city's planning director.

In a report presented to city officials, merchants and residents this week, planner H. Eric Borgwardt called for the city to prepare such a plan and offered his own suggestions of what it should contain.

The plan would be financed, he said, by revenues from recently initiated night operation of Municipal Parking Lots No. 1 and 3. It would incorporate (and revise) existing proposals for the city's core area, among them the Park Plaza and Bridgeway improvement plans and suggested changes in the Park Plaza plan suggested to the city last month by the Sausalito Park and Recreation Commission.

Borgwardt's development scheme, which was greeted with approval by two Sausalito businessmen's groups, would make three major changes in existing plans for Sausalito:

The Park Plaza plan calls for turning the city's 180-space Municipal Parking Lot No. 1 into an open park area, a suggestion which has roused the ire of the business community. The Borgwardt proposal suggests that semi-subterranean parking for 150 vehicles be provided in the area now occupied by Lot No. 1 and Vina del Mar Plaza. A water-oriented plaza of lawn and paved area, stretching down to the bay, would be constructed above the parking facility.

At present the Golden Gate Bridge District, which operates a San Francisco-Sausalito ferry service, has a temporary terminal south of the ferry Berkeley near El Portal. Borgwardt suggests the terminal be moved north to the area of Anchor Street.

A third suggestion, one not included in other official city plans, is for two city-owned commercial and professional buildings in the heart of downtown, both designed in harmony with Sausalito's victorian architecture.

One such structure would be built on the south side of Anchor Street, between Bridgeway and Humboldt Street and would include the proposed ferry terminal in its bayside wing, the planning director said. A similar building would be located north of the Bank of America in the area now occupied by Lot No. 2.

The planning director said he favored city ownership of the professional and commercial structures and the ferry terminal because, as a downtown landlord, the city could control the quality of business and fer-

BELFAST BLAST — Rubble from the bomb-shattered entrance to the headquarters of the Unionist Party litters a Belfast street. Terrorist bombs exploded at several locations in the embattled city today as workers crowded the streets on their lunch hours. At least 32 were injured, six seriously. Ambulances raced through the streets, picking up the wounded and taking them to hospitals.

Explosions Rock Belfast In New Ulster Violence

Wounded Rushed To Hospitals Following Noontime Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A series of explosions rocked downtown Belfast today as office workers went to lunch. The streets filled with screaming women and racing ambulances and fire engines.

Police said preliminary reports indicated at least 27 persons, some of them children, were injured — six of them seriously.

The first blast ripped the Glengall Street headquarters of Premier Brian Faulkner's ruling Unionist Party.

Five minutes later two simultaneous blasts ripped an underground car park in Franklin Street, causing a fire, and another car park in Adelaide Street behind Bedford House, home of the Northern Ireland Arts Council Gallery and the Community Relations Commission.

Two dozen ambulances raced through the streets, picking up from pavements men and women who lay groaning and bleeding.

Outside Bedford house bystanders wept as they told of seeing soldiers carrying injured children. School classes often visit the building.

The explosion at Unionist Party headquarters smashed the front door, demolished a staircase and blew out dozens of windows.

"I was very lucky I had my back to the window or I would have been badly cut," said party assistant secretary John Ogle. "As far as I know only two men of the dozen people in the building were hurt."

Robin Stewart, 21, was parking his car nearby when the blast blew out the vehicle's windows. He and a passenger both were taken to a hospital with cuts.

The explosion also shattered dozens of windows in the Europa Hotel across the street, Northern Ireland's biggest and most costly hotel which opened only seven weeks ago.

Crying women wandered dazed through the area, which was overhung by a pall of smoke. Much of the smoke came from the fire in the underground car park. Firemen wearing breathing apparatus battled the blaze and searched among the shattered cars for possible casualties.

Troops and police swarmed into the downtown area, cordoned it off and evacuated dozens of offices and shops. Police said immediately after the explosions many offices and shops received anonymous telephone calls warning that more bombs had been planted in their premises.

In another incident, an unidentified assailant threw a stick of gelignite at British troops in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district of Belfast, wounding one soldier slightly, an army spokesman said.

The soldier suffered slight leg lacerations and was taken to a hospital for a medical check, the spokesman said.

The wounding followed bombings of a border customs post and a Belfast bacon factory by men who army officials said were members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

The explosions caused heavy damage, but no casualties, an army spokesman said.

Thieu Asks Voter Support

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said tonight he would consider his one-man presidential election as a vote of confidence and that if he has lost the people's confidence he will resign and never run again.

He said he would run alone in the election because he must comply with the constitution, because of his patriotism and his opposition to communism. He said once peace has been restored to Vietnam he will resign the job which he said he does not covet.

"If the electoral results clearly show to me you no longer have any confidence in me I will withdraw of my own free will and will not accept the four-year term," Thieu said in a nationwide television speech. "In that case, I will never run again, ever."

"I will use all of my power to bring about peace," Thieu said. "When peace is restored, if you the people give me permission, I will resign." Thieu has long advocated a military solution to end the war rather than political negotiations.

Thieu, wearing a dark suit and tie, never smiled during the 27-minute broadcast.

"I must comply with the constitution, which requires that elections be held on or before the four-week period preceding the end of my term in office," Thieu said in a 24-minute national television address.

Their conferred for an hour with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, presumably to inform him of the contents of the speech. The United States was reported hopeful that Thieu would demote the election to a simple vote of confidence and thus ease the embarrassment of there being only one candidate.

"The fact that there were originally four slates and three are now out is either because they withdrew on their own or because they were eliminated by legislative requirements," Thieu said.

Thieu was referring to Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and retired Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh who have withdrawn from the race on grounds it is being rigged by Thieu and his followers.

"There will be only one slate, which is the Nguyen Van Thieu-Tran Van Huong slate," the president said. Huong is a former prime minister who is Thieu's running mate.

"If I did not run, I would be giving in to the tricks of the enemy," he said. "I would not be so irresponsible as to do this."

Thieu publicly and officially rejected Ky's recent proposal that they both resign and let the constitutional process take over. Under this plan, the speaker of the senate would become interim president and organize new elections within 90 days.

"The vice president said that he and I should make 'a small sacrifice.' Whatever I do (as president) has an influence on the national destiny. To accept that proposal is not a sacrifice, but a matter of desertion. I cannot do it.

"It would be dangerous to the nation and advantageous only to the Communists,"

As Thieu and Bunker conferred, Hanoi Radio observed North Vietnamese independence day by condemning the forthcoming Oct. 3 election as a farce.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong said the way the election was being handled helped the Communists and marked "the certain defeat of the Vietnamization program."

Legally, Thieu has several options open to him and has met frequently with Bunker in recent days to discuss them.

The United States government is dismayed at a one-man presidential race in South Vietnam, having hoped for a contested, fair election to demonstrate that democracy flourishes.

In its weekly casualty report, the U.S. military command said 19 Americans were killed in the war last week and 97 were wounded. The U.S. losses were the highest since the week ended July 17. It brought to 45,471 the number of Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1961.

The command also disclosed for the first time that 142 men were missing "not as a result of hostile action" and said the total was for Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos since the beginning of 1961. Spokesmen said they were listed as casualties and that next of kin were informed but that those missing did not include any known cases of absent without leave or desertion.

Freeze Challenge Raises Questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal district judge held today that the first legal challenge of President Nixon's wage-price freeze raised sufficient constitutional questions that broader court hearings might be warranted.

Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. denied a request by four law professors for a temporary injunction against the 90-day freeze, but held the record open for additional arguments to help him decide whether to recommend a higher court hearing.

Robinson concluded that "the constitutional question is substantial" and gave the Justice Department and the attorney for four Catholic University professors 10 days in which to supplement the record.

For the time being he ruled, however, that the professors — who lost out on pay raises as a result of the Aug. 16 freeze — had failed to show they were entitled to injunctive relief even though he agreed there was, in fact, "a case in controversy." In an oral opinion from the bench after an hour-long argument, Robinson denied the injunction request on grounds the professors had failed to show a likelihood they would succeed in proving their case. He said they also failed to show they had suffered "irreparable harm" —two criteria that must be met before an injunction is issued.

The Justice Department argued that an injunction could lead to "a massive dislocation of the administration's efforts to improve ... a serious economic situation."

The government attorney, David Anderson, asked Robinson to dismiss Nixon as a party to the suit, noting that in his official capacity he was not subject to its jurisdiction. The judge agreed.

Other developments:

—The Labor Department reported that wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent last month, based on data gathered prior to Nixon's announcement of the freeze. When adjusted for seasonal factors, they rose 0.7 per cent.

—The dollar continued to decline slightly in value on foreign markets in relation to other major currencies. It dropped in Japan, France, Britain, and West Germany.

The nation's biggest teacher organization attacked as a "great dis-service" an assertion by the Treasury's undersecretary that the freeze would bar pay increases for most school teachers this fall.

Air Pollution Directors Adopt Smog Alert Plan

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

REDWOOD CITY — A smog alert system calling for voluntary curtailment of automobile use, industrial operations and backyard barbecuing was adopted yesterday by Bay Area smog officials.

San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein objected to calling alerts only when weather forecasts indicated maximum pollution levels would continue for 12 hours. She said 12 hours was "just too long," but went along with the majority in the 12-1 vote by Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors.

The only "no" vote was by Portola Valley City Councilman Nevin K. Heister. He predicted public annoyance with the system because the district has no power to enforce it.

The district's director of technical services, Dr. Milton Feldstein, assured Mrs. Feinstein that many industries needed 12 hours to curtail operations, and that this was why the 12-hour period was set in the alert system.

A different explanation, however, was offered by a consulting engineer on the district's advisory council, Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael. He said the time period "depends on how often you want to call an alert."

The district's air pollution control officer, D. J. Callaghan, had suggested in previous hearings on the alert system that 128 alerts a year could be

Voters Approve Arab Coalition

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

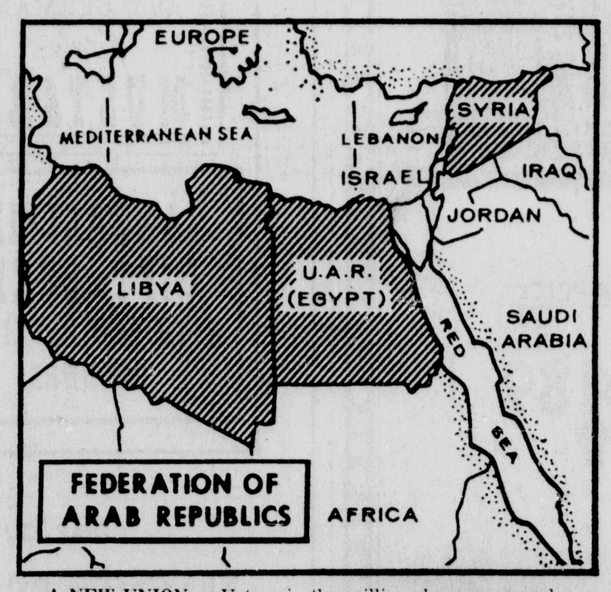
Egypt, Syria and Libya loosely united as the Federation of Arab Republics today with the announcement over Arab radios that voters in those nations overwhelmingly approved the union in referendum balloting.

Described by Egyptian, Syrian and Libyan leaders as a bulwark against Israel, the union was the first in the Arab world since the three-year federation of Egypt and Syria — the United Arab Republic — collapsed in 1961.

Egyptian Interior Minister Mamdouh Salem said 99.9 per cent of the 7.7 million ballots cast in the referendum voting in Egypt Wednesday favored the loosely structured political, military and economic union of nearly half the 100 million persons in the Arab sphere.

"The people have said 'yes' to the decisive battle (with Israel). They have said 'yes' to the acceptance of great responsibilities. They have said 'yes' to overall Arab unity. They have said 'yes' to a state built on faith and science," he said over Cairo Radio, proclaiming the creation of "the Egyptian Arab Republic."

Syrian Interior Minister Ali Zaza said over Damascus Radio that 96.4 per cent of the 1.8 million Syrians who cast ballots favored federation and 3.5 per cent disapproved. The remainder were spoiled ballots, he said.



A NEW UNION — Voters in the millions have approved a new linkup of Egypt, Syria and Libya into the Federation of Arab Republics. The slanted lines on the UPI newsmap pinpoint the new coalition.

Zaza said public approval of the federation, first created at Benghazi, Libya, last April during a meeting of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyan Premier Moammar Khadafy, provided "a strong base for the Arab struggle with Israel, the immutable base of Arab unity and the decisive answer to aggression and aggressors."

Libya did not announce the ballot total immediately, but political sources said the percentage figure for approval was certain to be in the high nineties.

The referendum asked the voters to approve the federation's constitution, agreed to in Damascus Friday by Sadat, Assad and Khadafy.

In Jordan, King Hussein said in a speech broadcast by Amman Radio that the weapons used by the Jordanian army "are Arab weapons, regardless of their source. The weapons are Arab as long as they are in our hands."

Hussein apparently was referring to a charge made by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Sunday that Jordan has received U.S. tanks and other arms for use against Syria. The monarch did not make clear, however, the source of the weapons used by Jordan.

Officials estimated that about 10 million persons over 18 voted in the referendum, the first in modern history to be held simultaneously in three Arab nations. Political sources in Beirut said it was likely 98 par cent or 99 per cent of the voters favored the federation.

Damascus Radio said the 5,000 polling stations in Syria stayed open late Wednesday because of the "heavy turnout of voters and to give everybody the chance to cast his ballot. It said the polls in Libya also were open late.

The Sudan is expected next year to join the federation, described by the Egyptian, Syrian and Libyan leaders as the "Arab answer to Israeli aggression."

Hike In Wholesale Prices Last Month

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent in August, the government reported today. It said the latest statistics were based on surveys made prior to the start Aug. 16 of the wage-price freeze.

The August increase, without adjustment for seasonal factors, was the same as the rise in July. When adjusted, the August increase was much greater—0.7 per cent compared to an adjusted increase of 0.2 per cent in July.

The August increase was led by a 0.5 per cent upswing in a broad range of industrial commodities. This was partially offset by a 0.3 per cent decrease in the price of farm products and processed foods and feeds. There was also a 0.3 per cent decline for farm products the previous month.

But the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said farm prices did not decline as much as usual in August, and therefore after seasonal adjustment the index for farm products and processed foods and feeds rose 1.4 per cent, compared to an adjusted 1 per cent decline in July.

The BLS said the wholesale price index in August was 114.9, meaning that goods which cost $10 wholesale in 1967 cost $11.49 in August. That was 4 per cent above the August 1970.

Unadjusted wholesale prices on consumer-finished goods went up by 0.3 per cent in August following a 0.1 per cent decline in July, the bureau said. Consumer foods alone increased 0.4 per cent.

The report said industrial commodity prices advanced 0.5 per cent mostly because of a 3.1 per cent increase in lumber and wood product prices, including a 7.9 per cent advance for plywood, as well as a 1.4 per cent increase in the prices of metals and metal products.

Iron and steel prices went up 2.8 per cent, reflecting price increases by steel producers following a new contract settlement with the steel workers union.

The report said the lower unadjusted farm product prices stemmed mostly from sharp declines for grains and chickens. Live poultry prices fell 16.8 per cent and grain prices dipped 9.5 per cent. But those declines were mostly offset by a 23.2 per cent increase in the price of eggs.

Prices for processed meats, poultry and fish went down 1.6 per cent and dairy products fell 0.7 per cent.

The BLS said seasonally adjusted prices for consumerfinished goods went up 1.1 per cent, including a 2.2 per cent advance for consumer foods, largely as a result of higher prices for eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables, and sugar.

Under Suspension

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — County Public Administrator Baldo M. Kristovich was suspended from his post by the Board of Supervisors Wednesday after the Los Angeles Grand Jury was ordered to investigate his handling of private estates.

Kristovich, 56, was accused of selling property to friends and then falsifying probate court records. He was unanimously suspended by the board for 30 days after he failed to appear to answer the charges against him.

Kristovich accused County Counsel John D. Maharg of a personal vendetta against him and said of estates under his control totaling $100 million "not one penny is missing. All the money is in the bank."

He said he will appeal to the County Civil Service Commission within 10 days for reinstatement.

Pact Is Delayed

BERLIN (UPI) — A dispute over the German text of the Big Four agreement on Berlin today forced postponement of the signing of the accord by the ambassadors in West Berlin.

The ambassadors did not appear for the 1 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) ceremony at the former Allied Control Authority building in the American sector because last minute meetings of four power working parties still had not agreed on the German text of the accord.

Western allied diplomatic sources said there was no thought that the East-West dispute would torpedo the first agreement on Berlin since the one ending the 1948-1949 Berlin blockade.

Ask More Flights

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Lunar scientists, marveling over new findings about the moon made possible by the Apollo spaceflights, called on the space agency Wednesday to revive Apollo 18 and 19.

The two flights were canceled when the space program's budget was trimmed. But scientists at NASA headquarters said the moon is too interesting to stop exploring after the scheduled end of the Apollo program next year.

Dr. Gary Lathan of New York's Lamont-Doherty Observatory reported new methods of studying moonquakes initiated by the most recent Apollo 15 landing detected "swarms" of tiny quakes that ripple through the moon at high speeds for more than two days at a time.

A Phone Hookup

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China has agreed to establish indirect telephone communications with the United States, apparently in preparation for President Nixon's trip to China, it was disclosed today.

Kokusan Denshin Denwa (KDD), the Japanese telephone and telegraph company, said Peking had agreed to the indirect line, scheduled to go into service Friday, in response to a query from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The new service, which will be relayed through Tokyo, will cost $12 for the first three minutes. KDD said it did not know when the service would be suspended.

Will Leave FDA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William W. Goodrich announced his retirement as Food and Drug Administration (FDA) general counsel on May 28 and recommended that Peter B. Hutt, a friend and private attorney, succeed him.

Hutt got the job despite opposition from Ralph Nader and other consumer advocates who complained that Hutt might find it difficult to regulate his former law clients — food industry groups including the Institute of Shortening and Edible Oils.

Hutt, 37, started work at the FDA Tuesday. The day before, Goodrich, 56, started a new job, too — as president of the Institute of Shortening and Edible Oils. The association's 15 member firms are subject to FDA regulation.

Sato: Ties Remain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato says neither President Nixon's proposed trip to mainland China nor the U.S. surcharge on imported goods has damaged relations between America and Japan, the New York Times reported today.

"So that there can be no misunderstanding about our basic position, I would like to repeat this: The basis of our foreign policy is our close relationship with the U.S.," Sato was quoted as saying.

Sato said although Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge added to goods imported into the United States will hurt some Japanese industry, such as the export and shipping trade, Sato said the new U.S. economic policy would also in some ways benefit his country.

Jets To Germany

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, citing a hope that the United States can be put off conflict within 18 months, has announced the sale of 175 phantom jets to West Germany for increased security.

Laird said at a news conference Wednesday that the sale of the fighter-bombers to the Bonn government would "add quite significantly" to West Germany's ability to defend itself.

The estimated $750 million sale was believed to be one of the biggest foreign orders for Phantoms ever placed.

Legion Asks Ban On Flags

HOUSTON (UPI)—A resolution adopted by the American Legion asks Congress to make it a crime to fly a flag of any nation or revolutionary group hostile to the United States.

The legion Wednesday also asked President Nixon and the Congress to restore patriotic holidays to their original dates. This includes Memorial Day and Veterans Day, which were moved to Mondays to give three-day weekends.

The antiflag law asked by legionnaires at their 53rd convention would also apply to any country which holds Amricans as prisoners of war. The United States has no such law, and Viet Cong and North Vietnamese flags are often carried at antiwar demonstrations.

Vote Stand By Mitchell Challenged

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI)—Attorney General John N. Mitchell suggested Wednesday that newly enfranchised students, attending school away from home, should be forced to vote by absentee ballot and not be allowed to participate in the college town elections.

Mitchell said the federal government will not provide guidelines to make it easier for college students to vote in the 1972 presidential elections.

Speaking to the annual convention of the National Association of Secretaries of State—made up of officials who usually enforce state voting procedures—Mitchell said allowing students to vote in college towns would discriminate against other voters, particularly servicemen.

Mitchell's suggestion drew a charge from the Democratic National Committee that he was playing politics with the voting rights of young Americans.

The issue is controversial in some small college towns where officials fear that students could take over the government from the outnumbered townspeople. But some states have no provisions for absentee ballots, and students away at college would be unable to vote.

The Democratic committee issued a statement saying Mitchell was "clearly attempting to use the authority of his high office to influence Richard Nixon's 1972 election fortunes...it is clearly a political tactic by Mr. Nixon's chief political strategist."

Mitchell denied the charge, saying "this has nothing to do with the President's re-election. This is a matter for the states to decide, and it always has been a matter for the states."

Bill To Hike Military Pay May Outflank The Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A potential blockbusting exemption to President Nixon's wageprice freeze looms in the form of a $2.4 billion military pay raise tentatively scheduled to take effect Oct. 1.

The annual salary hike is embodied in a pending draft extension bill that has been approved by the House but still awaits final action by the Senate.

The size of the pay raise and its effective date were agreed on by House and Senate negotiators shortly before Congress left on its summer recess and just before Nixon froze wages and prices as part of his new economic program.

On Wednesday Nixon, acting in the spirit of that policy decision, formally postponed for six months a Jan. 1 pay boost for 5.6 million government workers, military and civilian alike—and he hinted a planned October, 1972, raise might also be put off.

Because of differences in the way the military and civilian laws were drawn it won't be that easy for the President to delay the military salary increases.

Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., of the House Armed Services Committee, backed up by House legal experts, contends that the President will have no choice but to raise military pay as of Oct. 1 if he signs the draft bill.

The theory buttressing this argument is that Congress was aware of the controls but decided it still wanted the armed forces to get its pay raise.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally already has ruled that longevity raises and other military benefits flowing from existing law are frozen; but the new military pay raise would be from a new law, once Congress passes the draft extension —and it was Congress which gave the President authority to impose the freeze in the first place. "I can't conceive of the President not paying the raises if he signs the bill," said one congressional technician.

The President has the option of vetoing the bill. But since a protracted battle over an anti-war amendment to the measure has already left the President without authority to induct men into the armed services since June 30 he is likely to want the draft to resume as soon as possible.

Neither the administration, nor the organ it created to administer the freeze, the Cost of Living Council, has yet announced what it would do about the military pay hike.

Some Congressional observers speculate that the President may try to persuade the Senate to hold up action until both it and the House have had a chance to reconsider the pay raise in light of the freeze.

Should Congress send Nixon a bill with an Oct. 1 pay raise the President conceivably could take the position that the freeze applied to it too. If he does there may not be much Congress can do about it.

But a member of the armed forces, such as a recruit whose annual compensation would rise from $3,165 to $4,872, could ask a federal court to order the President to pay the new wage scales —contending they were now the law of the land.

Petaluma Backs Regional Plan; Pressure Charged

With one city councilman reversing his previous stand amid implication of pressure from a state senator, Petaluma's city council last night did an about-face and endorsed formation of a regional government of northern counties.

Changing his stand was Councilman William A. Perry who on Monday had gone to Sacramento at the invitation of Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

Collier has introduced legislation creating a north county regional government and was said to have been annoyed at Petaluma's announced preference for remaining in the Association of Bay Area Governments.

When Perry, accompanied by Councilman Robert A. Brunner, went to Sacramento the announced purpose was to persuade Collier to help end a suddenly developed delay in funding of the Washington Street interchange in the city.

Perry's change of vote last night, creating a 4-to-3 endorsement of the Collier proposal, followed sharp council discussion of possible pressure brought to bear on Perry.

Mayor Pro-Tem John W. Cavanagh Jr., and councilmen Perry, Brunner and Robert E. Daly voted for the endorsement while Mayor Helen Putnam and councilmen Richard W. Clecak and Fred V. Mattei voted against it.

After more than an hour of talking about regional governments and how they should operate, Councilman Mattei exploded about the pressures which had been put on Perry.

He said Perry told him "he had had the full treatment." Mattei said he had also heard second-hand of pressure brought to bear on Perry to change his vote. The pressure, Mattei said, came from Supervisor Phillip Joerger, from Jeffry Cohen, Senator Collier's representative in Santa Rosa and finally from Collier himself. Collier had asked Perry to Sacramento where, Mattei said, hints of delay in the $1.3 million Washington Street interchange were probably made. Mattei said that pressures had even come from Perry's business associates.

"Why Perry? Why not me? Why not Mayor Putnam or Councilman Clecak?" Mattei asked.

A sudden stillness came over the 60-member audience and council as they awaited Perry's answer.

"I have not been under any pressure," Perry said. He said that he and Brunner went to Sacramento to see Senator Collier just "to have better rapport with him."

(After the meeting, Perry denied that Senator Collier had made any threats about the Washington Street project. He also denied that the subject of the Washington Street project ever came up in conversation with Collier. He did say that the trip to Sacramento Monday was at the invitation of Senator Collier.)

It was after the Sacramento trip that the four members of the council requested last night's special meeting to consider endorsing Collier's Senate Bill 920 creating the northern county regional government.

"Just what did you learn from Senator Collier that made you suddenly change your mind?" Mayor Putnam asked Perry. "Tell the rest of us here on the council so that we might know. Maybe we would all change our minds."

Perry was slow to answer. "There is something in Senate Bill 920 which we can get amendments so Sonoma County could be included or not," he said.

"Then I can't see why the urgency to back the bill. Let's wait until they put in the amendments and then back the bill we want," the Mayor said. This remark drew applause from the audience.

Perry admitted that it would take more study and changes to get the bill that they wanted.

After the vote, Mayor Putnam said, "This community is a portion of the state and cannot disassociate itself from either the Bay Area or the northern counties," she said, adjourning the meeting until 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Party Is Delayed; Yearbooks Are Late

The Novato High School yearbook party scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the school cafeteria has been cancelled, Asst. Principal Edward Kraft reported yesterday.

Fog Clears Up, Pigeons Return

DERBY, England (UPI)—Fog cleared and hundreds of pigeons lost in "the greatest disaster in the history of homing pigeon racing" flapped home, racing federation officials said today.

Organizers said an estimated 20,000 homing pigeons worth about $600,000 became lost when fog closed in over eastern England during a race last weekend.

"The greatest disaster in the history of homing pigeon racing," the organizers, the North Road Federation of Derby, said at the time.

"There has been a considerable improvement in the weather and change in wind direction, and I am pleased to say that a good percentage of the birds have now returned," Harry Bexon, a federation official said today.

Watson Claims Complete Brainwashing By Manson

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles (Tex) Watson, on trial for the Tate-LaBianca murders, has confessed on the witness stand, pleading that he heard "Charlie's voice saying kill everyone in the place."

Watson, 25, who has entered a defense of not guilty by reason of insanity, told a jury Wednesday he was so brainwashed by drugs, women, music and Charles Manson's philosophy that "I had no identity of my own."

With his mother listening from the rear of the courtroom, the neatly dressed Watson related calmly and in detail the slayings and said the victims were just "blobs without faces or expressions."

Watson denied he had told actress Sharon Tate and the others that "We are devils here to do the devil's work."

"Charlie had taught us that we could do no wrong," he said.

The former high school star athlete and scholar told of coming to Los Angeles in 1968 seeking "adventure." He had never been away from his tiny hometown of Copeville, Tex., except for three years in college in Denton, 50 miles away.

He had smoked one marijuana cigarette the day he left, Watson said, but he soon entered a world of LSD, peyote, hash and belladonna and joined the commune at the Spahn Ranch where he found a "magnetic pull" from which he could not escape.

REFLECTIONS OF A FAIR

Composer Burt Bacharach's lyrics "raindrops keep falling on their heads ..." captures the spirit at the Oregon State Fair in Salem. Yesterday late summer showers fell in the area, but they didn't dampen the enthusiams in the carnival area of the fair where visitors were mirrored in a puddle of water. (UPI Telephoto)

New Twist Is Slashing Of Woman

Clues hint that whoever slashed Sharon Kay Del Santo twice in two weeks may have been someone close to the family rather than a foe of her policeman husband, San Rafael police revealed today.

Mrs. Del Santo suffered superficial cuts and her home was left in a shambles Tuesday night. A similar attack took place on Aug. 18. Her husband, Robert Del Santo, a San Anselmo police officer, was on duty both times.

San Rafael investigators reported today that the woman said that while she was being held and slashed with an electric knife by a silent, masked attacker Tuesday night, she heard sounds of typing elsewhere in the house, as well as of breakage. Police found a typewritten note. They said the message alluded to aspects of family life and to a new unlisted telephone number that could not have been known to a stranger.

The note was turned over to E. Don Stottlemeyer of the state Criminal Investigation and Identification Bureau, to undergo laboratory tests in Sacramento.

Police also reported that Mrs. Del Santo said she fired a shot after her attacker released her and retreated. The bullet plowed through a picture and into the wall.

Inspector Richard A. Douglas said today, "We just haven't been able to establish any motive behind the entire thing." He said Officer Del Santo was well liked, and had no known enemies.

Mrs. Del Santo said she saw only one attacker Tuesday night, but saw two youths during the Aug. 18 intrusion of the home.

Two Carpenters Hurt By Stairs

Two carpenters were injured yesterday when concrete steps fell on them as they were working in a San Rafael home.

Ronald Grime, 22, of 126 Cypress Drive, Fairfax, was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts on his left leg and scrapes on his left arm and forehead.

Daniel Parson, 51, same address, was treated at Marin General Hospital for scrapes on both hands and a pain in the foot, hospital authorities reported.

San Rafael police reported that the two were working on the basement steps at the home of William Frazer at 151 Greenfield Avenue, San Rafael, when the scaffolding gave way about 10:10 a.m., dropping 400 pounds of concrete steps on them.

Suit Filed Against Project's Timetable

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A group of Stinson Beach residents today filed suit in San Francisco Superior Court to restrain state and regional water quality control officials from ordering Bolinas to move ahead with its portion of an $8.1 million sewage disposal project for both communities.

(See stories pages 6 and 7 describing the Bolinas-Stinson Beach project and the controversy over it)

The action, by 101 residents, also asks the court to restrain the state Water Resources Control and Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board from leveling fines against the Bolinas Community Public Utility District if the district does not speed up completion.

On Aug. 9 the state attorney general's office, at the request of the regional water board, filed suit to force Bolinas to adhere to a timetable for construction of the system, a schedule set by the attorney general's office in February. The action threatened the district with fines up to $6,000 for each day it fails to comply with the timetable.

The Bolinas district, which dumps raw sewage into the Bolinas Lagoon from 180 homes in the downtown Bolinas, has been under fire from water officials since 1963. The latest cease-and-desist order to prevent the district from continuing to pollute the lagoon was issued in June of 1970.

Today's suit by the residents charges that both water boards have failed to comply with the California Environmental Quality Act of 1970 which requires a detailed study be prepared of the environemntal impact of projects such as the waste disposal system.

"If these agencies had complied with the law and considered the project's total effects on the environment, they would have abandoned it long ago," said Michael Sanford, attorney for Stinson Beach projects, a group seeking to block the proposed system. "The people of the Bolinas-Stinson area stand ready to cooperate with water quality officials as soon as they agree to adopt a rational approach to the Bolinas sewage problem," Sanford added.

Residents in both communities have sought to halt the project because they claim it is too large and too expensive and will have disastrous effects on the population and environment of the area. The system is being planned by the Bolinas District, in conjunction with the Stinson Beach County Water District.

called. Feldstein, however, has predicted four or five a year.

But Callaghan cautioned the board that "we'll have egg on our face" if an alert is called and then the weather unexpectedly blows away the pollution. It will be up to him to call an alert.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort suggested that bridge tolls be hiked during alerts to discourage auto use, and the staff was asked to discuss his ideas with the state and Golden Gate Bridge District.

Several other directors, however, objected this would work an inequity against Marin and East Bay commuters, who have to cross bridges to get to work. Peninsula commuters, on the other hand, would be unaffected by such a step.

Marin Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. agreed with Bort that new state laws were needed to empower the district to control auto use. Without such controls, Arrigoni said, "industry is going to be penalized" by carrying the burden of cutting pollution.

Feldstein explained that the maximum levels of various pollutants that will trigger an alert were set to prevent pollution from reaching levels that affect human health.

An alert will be called throughout the nine-county district whenever the maximum level is reached at any of the 12 monitoring stations.

Feldstein acknowledged an alert may be incomprehensible in Santa Rosa when the weather there is perfect. But if, at the same time, maximum levels are exceeded at San Jose, then cutting down on pollution throughout the district will be needed because pollutants drift south from Santa Rosa, he said.

New federal regulations require the district to establish by January a three-stage emergency action plan, ranging from "alert" through "warning" to "emergency." Controls are tighter at each level, with driving banned and industry shut down at the "emergency" level.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors also:

MARIN — Received reports of six violation notices issued during the past month in Marin: Center Medical Hospital, Kentfield; Guasco Market, San Anselmo; Ducanson-Harrelson Co., Larkspur; Petrini's Meats Inc., Greenbrae; Chriy Hackney, Lagunitas; and Massman Construction Co., Mill Valley.

CODE — Dropped Callaghan's title of chief administrator in favor of air pollution control officer, and increased the daily pay of the three hearing board members from $75 to $100, effective after the current federal wage freeze.

FILM — Viewed a district film describing its achievements. Mrs. Feinstein suggested it be revised "to show what remains to be done."

INDUSTRY — Accepted an invitation from the Bay Area League of Industrial Associations for a "field trip" starting at 9 a.m. on Oct. 15. Mrs. Feinstein said she wanted to see "not only the showplaces, but the problem areas, too."

CONTRACT — Approved a contract to supply the state with meteorological forecasting and air monitoring data for $30,000 a year.

United States for the outlawed political organization.

Cahill, the most wanted man in Northern Ireland, will learn Tuesday whether he can remain in the United States.

Cahill was denied entrance to the United States Wednesday, his visa was canceled and he was detained overnight by immigration authorities.

The purpose behind Cahill's flight from Dublin to New York was to begin a four-or five-week tour of American cities in an effort to raise funds for the militant IRA faction he heads. He said the funds would be used to purchase guns to fight British troops in Northern Ireland.

Cahill agreed today to remain in custody until Sept. 7 when immigration authorities will decide whether he should be allowed to make the tour.

Controversial Sign Wins 2-Year Stay

A scaled-down version of a controversial sign last night received a two-year lease on life from the Larkspur City Council.

The directional sign for the Bon Air Apartments may remain at the Greenbrae interchange, developer Neils J. Schultz Jr. was told, at least until June 30, 1973, at which time the city can elect to order the sign removed if the state Division of Highways provides a sign locating Larkspur and Greenbrae.

Schultz's sign may be no larger than 202-square feet, about one-third present size, the council ruled in its 3-2 vote.

Councilmen Alfred Malvino and Benton A. Sifford dissented, the latter wanting the sign slated for elimination in 1975 no matter what the Division of Highway does.

The council also ordered abatement of a long controversial fence owned by Dr. Robert G. Ceniceros at 10 Hazel Avenue, despite presentation by Ceniceros of a petition he said favored the fence and was signed by all residents within a 300-foot radius.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

BIKES — Decided to "educate" rather than ban bicycle riders from using heavily travelled Magnolia Avenue between Bon Air Road and Doherty Drive, after completion of an off-street bicycle path.

RAILWAY — Approved Northwestern Pacific Railway's request to abandon service from Detour (about Tamal Vista Avenue) to Sausalito subject to the condition the state Public Utility Commission restrict Northwestern from disposing of the property until a proper public use for the right-of-way could be considered.

GATES — Approved installing two gates at each end of Meadowwood Drive to prevent vandalism and motorbike racing on the road where children play.

DEFERRED — Deferred for one month three ordinances setting fees for sewer connections and street openings, encroachments, plan checking and architectural supervision. City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said the council couldn't make a decision on the fees in light of President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

OLD MUSE — Abated effective Oct. 5 an old house at 302 Madrone Avenue owned by Helen Martin Sharpe.

HIGHWAY — Agreed that there was no adverse environmental impact on the widening of Highway 101 from Richardson Bay to the Greenbrae interchange.

INSURANCE — Allocated $145 for an appraiser to estimate the cost for replacements in the city buildings for insurance purposes.

CLAIM — Denied a claim by Wayne Allan York for $10,634 for injuries received when cleaning up fireworks in a park after July 4.

ARCHITECTURAL REVIEW — Set a tentative date of Oct. 20 to meet with the planning commission to determine if the architectural review board is a help or hindrance in expediting city work.

PLANNING STAFF — Deferred a decision to hire an additional member to the planning staff until an application for funds under the Emergency Employment Act of 1971 could be processed. If the city gets the funds it would have to pay only 10 per cent of the total wages for the new employee.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a regular meeting Oct. 6.

Navy Announces The Goo's Gone

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The giant oil spill which has fouled up Southern California beaches since Aug. 20 is gone and now only the cleanups, investigations and legal actions remain.

The Navy Tuesday ended its oil scooping and skimming operations on grounds no concentrations of goo could be found even though less than half of the estimated 229,000 gallons which spilled from the Navy tanker Manatee have been cleaned up.

But the Navy said the remains had either dissolved or formed into thousands of small clumps.

A 245-man Navy working party continued to inspect and clean up the approximately 60 miles of shoreline between Oceanside and the International border. The beach of President Nixon's Western White House was one of those covered with goo.

Low-Cost Youth Fares Due Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided to investigate whether the low-cost youth air fares to Europe discriminate against older passengers.

Some New York to London round-trip fares have dropped to $190 — compared to the normal off-season tourist class fare of $452 — because of a price cutting war among trans-Atlantic air carriers.

The reduced fares generally apply to persons between the ages of 12 and 26, although some extend up to the age of 29.

Doctor Says Clinics Vital

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Medical Society's president says a boycott of the United Bay Area Crusade fund raising drive may result from plans to stop financing a dozen hospital clinics for the poor.

Dr. Paul Scholten, the president, said Wednesday the society may instead start its own fund drive for the clinics in San Francisco and Alameda counties.

"We consider it a grave error for UBAC to direct funds to grass-roots organizations, many of them devoted to propagandizing ethnic consciousness, while ignoring clinics which provide basic and vital health care to minorities."

The crusade is considering turning over the $700,000 formerly allocated to the clinics to its "New Directions" program in order to provide "concentrated services" to ghetto areas.

Batik Paintings To Be Exhibited

An exhibit of tie-dye batik paintings by Marin artist Chris Menkin will be shown until Sept. 11 at the Rotunda Gallery of the City of Paris in San Francisco.

Mrs. Menkin introduced a new treatment for tie dye batiks in her paintings, combining ancient Florentine Renaissance wax methods of preservation with modern dyes and refined waxes.

Reds List War Aid To North Viets

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union today listed the aid it has given North Vietnam and called it "one of the most important factors... in forcing the United States to stop the war."

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, took the unusual step of listing the categories of Soviet war aid and numbers of personnel involved in an article saluting the 26th anniversary of North Vietnam's independence day.

Customarily, Soviet dispatches concerning military aid to any country avoid any detail at all on the materiel involved.

"During the war years, the Soviet Union was sending to the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam the arms, ammunition and other military equipment that became the foundation of the republic's antiaircraft defense system...," Pravda said.

McCloskey Will Take To Political Trail

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., will take his quest for the GOP presidential nomination to New Hampshire this weekend, where —among other things —he will make a backpacking trip into the presidential mountain range.

McCloskey's schedule begins with a stop at a fair in Lancaster this Friday and winds up Sept. 8 with an address before the Concord Chamber of Commerce.

Forgets To Protect His Own Dwelling

MALDEN, Mass. (UPI) — Arthur A. Tanger makes burglar alarm systems but forgot to put one on his garage.

Police said Wednesday he returned from a vacation and found thieves had broke into the garage through a breezeway and made off with one of his $200 models.

One Creek Project Case Dropped; Five Are Fined

Charges against one person arrested in a 1969 demonstration against the Tamalpais Creek project were dismissed yesterday and five other persons arrested in the demonstration were fined $50.

All had been charged with trespassing and failing to disperse.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court dismissed the charges against Lola Kagen Hanzel of Kentfield after her attorney attempted to enter a no contest plea in her behalf.

The attorney, Carl B. Shapiro of San Anselmo, told the judge that only the trespassing charge was to be pressed against Mrs. Hanzel because it had been determined the property she was on during the demonstration was her own.

Shapiro attempted to offer the no contest plea and recommended a $25 fine for his client, but Smallman asked Deputy Dist. Atty. Kathryn D. Mitchell how Mrs. Hanzel could possibly have been trespassing if the property was her own.

Miss Mitchell said she wasn't sure but thought the case could be researched.

Judge Smallman disagreed, refused to accept the plea and dismissed the case.

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony, who has handled the prosecution of cases stemming from the demonstration, said later that Shapiro erred in entering the plea to the trespassing charge instead of to the failure to disperse charge.

Anthony said he and the attorney had agreed there was a defense for the trespassing charge, in that it was Mrs. Hanzel's property, but less of a defense to failing to disperse. They had agreed, Anthony said, that Mrs. Hanzel would plead no contest to failing to disperse and the trespassing would be dismissed.

Shapiro, however, maintained that the agreement with Anthony had been to plead to trespassing.

In any case, Anthony said, there was nothing he could do about the case now that it was dismissed.

Mrs. Hanzel was one of 38 persons arrested in the demonstration.

Two others, James Blair Detro and Thomas Peter Brunsing, yesterday pleaded no contest to the two misdemeanor charges and were fined $50 each by Smallman.

Attorney Charles W. Pierce of San Rafael entered no contest pleas to both charges for three of the demonstrators who, he said, were out of the state.

Jane Anne Ellis, Charles Douglas Meyer and Melina Deil Fitting were each fined $50.

Of the 38 arrested, three cases have now been dismissed, 30 have been sentenced and five are awaiting court action.

Smallman yesterday continued three of the remaining cases until tomorrow.

Innocent Plea To Drug Counts

Donald Joseph Padilla, 23, of Tamalpais Valley, has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to charges of possessing marijuana and possessing LSD for sale.

Jury trial was set for the week of Nov. 8.

Padilla was arrested Oct. 14, 1970, after he sought to reclaim a sack containing what appeared to be $30,000 worth of LSD and some marijuana which had been found in shrubbery near his home by a neighbor.

Unsure Future For Sewage Plan

By PAT ANGLE

A multimillion-dollar sewage system for Bolinas and Stinson Beach which appeared until recently to be but a few pen-strokes from becoming reality is now an uncertain matter indeed.

The state, urged by the Regional Water Quality Control Board, had given the project urgency by suing the superior court to force the Bolinas Community Public Utility District to speed sewer development, holding over the district the possiblity of $6,000-a-day fines for violating a cease-and-desist order against pollution of Bolinas Lagoon.

The county board of supervisors had agreed to underwrite a $5.6 million joint bond issue of the utility district and the Stinson Beach County Water District to pay for the project and was on the point of creating two assessment districts to finance the new system.

The federal government, members of the utility and water district boards believed, were looking kindly on the project to which it would be asked, along with the state, to contribute $2.5 million.

There had been no evident opposition by resident to the $8.1 million project during the many years of its development and, indeed, Jose Silva, charman of the utility district board, recently complained bitterly that "at no time did anyone show up at our meetings to protest or suggest alternative routes."

But today, the situation is very different.

In recent months, two highly vocal groups of residents — Bolinas Future Studies Center and Stinson Beach Projects — have emerged, seeking to block the project. Their impact has been felt.

The federal government, through the Environmental Protection Agency, has announced that it wants to study the project for its impact on the environment and that federal and state grants will not be approved until the study is completed, a matter of perhaps six months.

The water district board has announced that it, too, wants to take a second look at the project which it is on the verge of partnering and has asked the county supervisors for the time being to delay creation of the two assessment districts. The water district board has hired a consultant to make the study and to seek alternate solutions to the communities' sewage problems.

Stinson Beach, the water district board is well aware, is not under the gun, like Bolinas, which pollutes Bolinas Lagoon with raw sewage, drawing the fire of the water quality control board. Stinson Beach is served by septic tanks beyond the regional board's purview and its problems have been of concern largely to the county health department when septic tank failures have necessitated boiling water before using.

What are the arguments on both sides of this growing controversy which has brought the once apparently sure-fire sewage project to its present doubtful state?

Opponents of the system, which would dump treated waste into the Pacific Ocean via an outfall pipeline, say it is far too large and expensive for the 1,300 permanent residents now inhabiting the two communities, that it will force disastrous population growth and that it will damage the ecology of the region.

Those who favor the project, including directors of the utility and water districts, concede population growth may result and that the project is indeed expensive. They argue, however, that the alternative is to have no project with even worse consequences. And, they say, the system proposed is the only practical method found for the region in nearly eight years of research and planning and is the only one that will meet the Regional Water Quality Control Board standards for discharge of effluent.

Does it really taken an $8.1 million facility to handle wastes from the approximately 1,100 homes in both communities, the dissenting residents want to know? Since engineers estimate the treatment plant, which determines the capacity of the entire system, will serve about 4,650 persons, the opponents point out the project will cost about $1,750 per person.

The opponents of the large system believe a relatively inexpensive method could be found to stop the discharge from the 180 homes in Bolinas, from polluting the lagoon, which they say is the crux of the problem. They claim to have several alternative methods under study. And they think the utility and water districts should upgrade and improve septic tanks in Stinson Beach and elsewhere to take care of the remaining wastes from the two communities.

Those protesting the project say many new ways of handling wastes are being discovered all the time and claim the districts are not aware of all the latest developments in the field. Some members of Stinson Projects and the Studies Center believe some way must be found to recycle and re-use solid and liquid wastes and the water the system will use, particularly since both communities are threatened with future water shortages if the proposed sewer system is built.

Residents worry the high cost ($5.6 million to be raised by assessment) will force larger land owners to sell off lots to pay the bill, causing rapid, unwanted development in the two rural communities.

Many persons, particularly young professional people, have purchased several acres of land on which to build their homes, with no plans for future development, but only because they like the open space. But since financial consultants for the district say an average 10-acre parcel in Stinson Beach, for example, will be assessed about $16,700 if it is benefited by the system, open space may become a luxury most people cannot afford, the opponents say.

Even costs for lands not benefited by the system can mount up, at the estimated assessment of $310 an acre, according to the protestors. For example, the Audubon Canyon ranch which owns about 1,000 acres will have to pay about $200,000 toward the project cost, according to Stan Pitcher, a member of the ranch's board, who said the facility undoubtedly could not pay such an assessment.

While residents feel high costs will lead to development, many also believe the accessibility of a sewer system will raise assessed value of undeveloped land, and thus taxes, since costly septic tanks will no longer be needed for development.

And they point out the $40,000 a year which engineers estimate will be necessary for maintenance of the system, will also have to be borne by property owners in the area.

James V. Stevens, vice president of the Stinson water district, conceded the project is expensive. But he said that both districts and their engineers studied many different types of plants, designs and schemes for sewage disposal before deciding what kind of facilities would be best for the area.

At the time the decison was made to go forward with the current project, Stevens said the districts were convinced the planned system was "the least expensive, best operating, lowest maintenance" system possible, providing "the largest benefit for the money spent."

"I recognize there have been new inventions and schemes put on the market in the last year and some of these could possibly benefit us," he said. "I am more than open to any other system which would better solve the problem, but to date no one has come forward with one." He said the consultant the Stinson district has hired to study alternatives to the project may come up with a better plan and promised he would push for adoption of any more feasible solution to the problem.

Stevens also agreed that the system's high cost may force owners of large acreages to sell off lots to pay assessments and thus encourage development. But he believes the alternatives to a waste disposal system for the communities are even more grim than the prospect of a development boom.

"Our engineers studies have shown both Stinson and Bolinas are polluting the lagoon," he said, "and if nothing is done, we could be faced with a ban on all building in the area and some homes could be condemned because septic tanks just don't work in certain areas.

"We may find ourselves in a situation where the person with property is not allowed to use his land and the homeowner is forced out of his home," Stevens added.

Other concerns voiced by resident groups are ecological. Peter Warshall, of the Future Studies Center, has warned that discharge from the outfall off Agate Beach in Bolinas will return to the beaches and to Duxbury Reef and damage marine organisms on the reef and in adjacent waters. The same objections have been voiced by the Sierra Club.

Project engineers seem convinced the sewage, which will be treated in aerated lagoons with a minimum of chlorination, will be moved away from the reef and beaches by ocean currents and would not harm either area even if they should intrude.

Another complaint by both opposing groups is that the proposed system has never been put to a vote of those who will have to pay for it. Two petitions they circulated, a referendum and initiative, recently collected the required number of signatures to put the issue on the ballot. But the county counsel's office (which also represents the water and utility districts) ruled both petitions invalid on legal technicalities and has asked the courts to rule on their validity.

Meanwhile, members of the studies center have initiated a recall election Nov. 2 against two directors of the utility district board, and have entered candidates against the directors up for recall and against two other members of the five-man board whose terms expire in December. If the center's candidates take control of the board, there is an excellent chance the group will use its new authority to stop Bolinas participation in the project and seek alternative solutions to the waste dumping from the 180 homes.

If the disposal system is halted permanently — and the obstacles in its path seem to be growing daily — another problem will confront the 1,300 residents in the two tiny communities.

The two districts are committed to pay about $350,000 to Kennedy Engineers and the engineering firm of Brown and Caldwell which have completed designs for the project.

If the proposed system is scrapped and the bonds to finance it are never sold, the money to pay the engineers must be raised through property taxes in the two districts.

Point Reyes Master Plan To Be Viewed

The Point Reyes National Seashore preliminary master plan, drawn up by the National Park Service, will be discussed by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission at a special meeting next Tuesday at the Civic Center.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. in the planning commission chambers on the third floor.

Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, said the commission wants to get public reaction on such questions as these: Is the proposed 5,000 acres of wilderness area sufficient? Will cars and roads be held to a minimum within the seashore? What are the transportation and circulation plans within the seashore?

The master plan for the seashore calls for preservation of natural assets and establishment of environmental and education centers. The plan proposes a minimum of "structured activities." However, the plan is not specific enough to designate where the roads will be, where camps and centers will be set up and what accesses will be provided.

West Marin Sewage Plan Is Really Three Projects

By PAT ANGLE

A proposed $8.1 million sewage treatment and disposal system to handle wastes from the West Marin communities of Bolinas and Stinson Beach is essentially three major projects: joint use facilities and two collection systems, one for each community.

The total cost to be borne locally is estimated at $5.6 million and would be financed by two assessment districts established by Marin County supervisors with the county underwriting bond redemption. The remaining $2.5 million needed would come, developers of the project hope, from state and federal grants and assistances.

The districts would follow basically the boundaries of the Bolinas Community Public Utility and Stinson Beach County Water districts which have been planning and working toward such a system for about eight years.

Under current plans for the system, Stinson and Bolinas would share the benefit, and the cost, of $3.2 million in joint facilities, including an ocean outfall pipe, a treatment plant and a major pumping station. Each community would build and finance its own collection system.

The joint use facilities envisioned by the districts and their engineers include:

OCEAN OUTFALL

The most expensive single portion of the project, the $1.1 million outfall pipe would be located about 2,500 feet off Agate Beach in Bolinas. It will discharge treated sewage into the Pacific Ocean at a depth of 32 feet and a dilution of 80 parts water to one part waste, according to Robert L. Mills of Kennedy Engineers, a San Francisco firm which has designed both the joint facilities and the individual collection system for Bolinas.

Total capacity of the 15-inch pipe, according to Mills, would be 5.4 million gallons per day, with 3.3 million gallons coming from infiltration by rainfall, high groundwater and other seepage, and with 2.1 million gallons in actual sewage handling.

The 2.1 million gallons, Mills said, meant an ability to serve about 16,000 persons (more than 10 times the present population of roughly 1,300 in the two districts), based on average use of 100 gallons per person and taking into account peak discharge periods at times when most people use the sewer facilities.

Mills said that the large outfall pipe was decided upon since it would cost little more to construct than a smaller one, would be easier to install in rough ocean current and would eliminate risk of costly expansion should the population of the area grow.

Bolinas And Stinson Would Share Costs

TREATMENT PLANT

The 465,000-gallon capacity of the treatment plant will actually determine how many persons the proposed system can serve, according to Mills, since all wastes must be treated in that facility.

To be located on the north side of Poplar Road on the Bolinas Mesa, the $700,000 plant is designed to serve 4,650 persons (permanent population in both communities is currently about 1,300. It could be expanded at a later date to serve more persons, Mills said.

The plant will be of an aerated lagoon type, providing secondary treatment of wastes. (Secondary treatment is said to render wastes harmless to plant and animal life).

Mills said the kind of plant envisioned for Bolinas is an extremely simple one in which wastes are allowed to settle in holding ponds until the disease-causing bacteria die off. The wastes are then oxidized to convert toxic ammonia to a non-toxic substance, and stabilize organic matter which consumes oxygen and could consequently have adverse effects on marine life, Mills said.

After treatment the quality of waste will be monitored and the sewage may be chlorinated from time to time if such disinfection is deemed necessary.

WHARF ROAD PUMP STATION

This $300,000 major pumping station to pump wastes from Stinson and downtown Bolinas to the treatment plant will have a capacity of 1.8 million gallons, since the pumps will only operate during certain hours of the day. It can ultimately serve 8,500 persons, according to the engineer.

The porposed site of the facility may have to be changed since the original location has come under fire from the Marin County Fill Committee. The committee has charged the station as planned would have a detrimental visual impact on the shoreline and could possibly increase siltation at the mouth of the Bolinas Lagoon.

A force main and gravity sewer to carry sewage from the pump station on the west side of the lagoon to the treatment plant on the Mesa will cost an estimated $200,000, the engineer said.

Under a joint powers agreement formalized by the Bolinas and Stinson districts in December of 1969, Stinson Beach will be entitled to 58 per cent of the capacity of the joint facilities and Bolinas to 42 per cent. Residents in both districts will share the cost accordingly, although the districts hope that most of the expense of the joint facilities will be paid through state and federal grants.

The majority of the costs of the individual collection systems for both communities will be borne by the property owners in the assessment districts.

BOLINAS COLLECTION SYSTEM

The proposed $1.9 million sewer system will consist chiefly of six-inch lines, according to Mills. This size pipe is consistent with standard engineering practices, he said, since smaller lines become clogged too easily, necessitating expensive, underground repairs.

Included in the Bolinas system will be four pumping stations to move sewage through the lines, located on Yucca, Olema and Nymph roads and Canyon Avenue.

Mills said the collection facilities planned for Bolinas could serve an ultimate population of 8,000 persons. In planning the capacity, the engineer said the firm considered the multitude of substandard small lots on the mesa, the "reasonable possibility" that the population of the area will double in the next 50 years, and visitor influx into the scenic area.

STINSON BEACH COLLECTION SYSTEM

The $3 million sewer system proposed for Stinson Beach could serve an ultimate winter population of 6,400, according to Richard C. Bain of Brown and Caldwell Engineers who designed the project. But the number of residents the system can serve will actually be controlled by the 2.1 million gallon capacity of the $220,000 force main which will pump Stinson's sewage across the lagoon to treatment facilities on the other side. The collection lines themselves will be able to hand 1.8 million gallons in a series of six-inch pipes, with a few eight and 12-inch gravity sewers for areas that require them. The system will include a $208,000 pumping station and compressor and six small pumping stations to pump discharge into the force main.

Cost of Stinson's system will be considerably greater than that for Bolinas for two reasons, according to Bain: high ground water levels and sandy soils will increase construction difficulties and, while Stinson has no sewer lines at present, Bolinas has a sewer system which already serves approximately 180 homes.

Exactly what the project will cost individual property owners in the area will not be known until construction bids are in and federal and state assistance has been secured.

But on the basis of available estimates, owners of improved lots in Stinson will pay an average of $2,500 per $7,500 square foot parcel, according to Michael Whipple of the consulting firm of Stone and Youngberg which is preparing individual assessments for the project.

Their counterparts in Bolinas will be assesed an average of $1,050 per parcel, with the lower cost due to the existing sewer system in that community and lower ground water levels and different soil conditions. Homes on the existing system will pay only about $150 toward the local share of the joint facilities cost, Whipple said.

Owners of unimproved land in both communities will pay assessments ranging from $2,000 to $310 an acre, depending on the amount of benefit the property will receive from the system (The $310 charge will be for land not substantially benefitted).

In addition, the landowner will be charged extra for each building site on his property which will benefit from the project and must also pay for a lateral connection from his home to the nearest sewer line.

For example, Whipple said the owner of 10 acres of benefitted land in Stinson Beach would be billed an assessment of about $16,700, including all charges.

Property owners can either pay their assessments within 30 days of billing, he said, or can pay them over a 25-year period, at about 7 per cent interest.

Judge Getting Tough On Michigan's Busing Unrest

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

A federal judge, contending busing is "as American as apple pie," has refused to revise the north's first massive school desegregation order.

And Judge Damon J. Keith warned vandals at Pontiac, Mich., where 10 buses were destroyed by explosives Monday night, that "this case will not be settled in the streets.

"If necessary, we will put marshals (on the buses), we'll bring out the FBI or use whatever remedy necessary so that it's carried out," Keith said Wednesday in Detroit.

Keith dismissed a suit filed by the National Action Group to halt his order to desegregate Pontiac's 24,000-student school system, particularly blocking the busing of 8,700 children. School opens Tuesday.

In Georgia, federal Judge Alexander A. Lawrence directed two Rhode Island educators credited with drawing up the controversial Charlotte--Mecklenburg, N.C., school plan to devise a desegregation program for Richmond (Augusta) County, Ga.

Lawrence gave Myrle Herman and Dr. Howard Munzer until Sept. 21 to present a suitable plan that requires extensive busing.

Georgia's assistant school superintendent, Dr. Joseph N. Edwards, said, meanwhile, he foresees no new desegregation problems.

"I definitely think they are over," said Edwards. "Invariably, the patrons who call me are not concerned with the color of teachers anymore, they just want a qualified teacher."

At Austin, Tex., high school football coach, James W. Tolbert Jr., said Wednesday he was attacked by about 30 black youths at a newly-integrated school. "Fortunately, I was able to get up off the floor and grab a chair and start swinging," Tolbert said. School was dismissed early.

Some parents at San Francisco, where busing also is a controversy, criticzed the city's school superintendent, Thomas A. Shaheen, Wednesday for planning a trip to Europe during the opening days of the new school term in mid-September. A school spokesman said Shaheen would attend "a workshop in Germany."

And in Boise, the Idaho Supreme Court declared unconstitutional a 1970 state law allowing the use of state funds for the busing of parochial school students.

Atlantic Flier To Return Home

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—— Leonard Gelfand, of Orange, Ohio, made plans today to return to the United States with his 14-year-old son Mitchel and the body of the boy's grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Krasnoff, employes at the Frommer Hotel said.

Mrs. Krasnoff, 74, died in her sleep Wednesday at the hotel after flying back and forth virtually nonstop across the Atlantic between New York and Amsterdam for several months.

Mrs. Krasnoff, of Cleveland, Ohio, died without revealing the reason for the world's longest, most costly and puzzling commuter trip.

Her grandson, Mitchel, who accompanied Mrs. Krasnoff on her transatlantic odyssey, and the boy's father also refused to give an explanation.

Deadline Set For Art Competition

Deadline for entry in the art competition at the Marin County Fair has been set for Tuesday, Marcelle McCoy, fair manager, has announced.

A total of $445 in prizes will be given to the top five entries from the nine Bay Area counties. Entry forms are available at the fair office at the Civic Center and some stores in Marin County and San Francisco.

Santa Rosan Hurt In Crash

A 71-year-old Santa Rosa ma has been treated at Hillcrest Hospital for injuries suffered in a two-vehicle crash in Petaluma.

Police said a panel truck driven by Elmer Larsen, the Santa Rosan, and a car operated by Michael D. Wessel, 17, of 604 Crinella Drive, Petaluma, collided at 10:41 a.m. Tuesday at Petaluma Boulevard and B Street.

Larsen suffered unspecified injuries.

Span Plan Approved By Marinwood CSD

Marinwood Community Services District directors last night approved Army Corps of Engineers proposals to build a bridge across Miller Creek behind the community center.

The span project, which also must be approved by Dixie School District and utility firms, will be a training project for the engineers, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager-secretary. The bridge will open access to the site of planned additional district tennis courts.

Mrs. Bolding reported the directors received county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell's report that the district's assessed valuation for fiscal 1971-72 is $11,284,000 and the district tax rate will be $1.19 per $100 assessed property valuation. Last year's rate was $1.23, she said.

Directors accepted the resignation of Sheilla Herrfeldt from the Marinwood Park and Recreation Commission, and appointed alternate Irving Schwartz in her place. Mrs. Herrfeldt and her family are moving to Santa Rosa. Sue Cahn was also named to the commission as a representative of Upper Lucas Valley. The seat had been vacant for some time, Mrs. Bolding said.

Clothes Taken

Clothing valued at more than $2,000 was taken in a burglary of Giovanni's of Italy tailoring shop at Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center Sunday, Marin County sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Fall Enrollment To Be Near 7,000

A record 6,300 students will be signed up for classes at the College of Marin and 450 for Indian Valley Colleges when registration closes Sept. 24, the Marin Community College District board of trustees was told last night.

District President-Supt. John A. Grasham reported that 2,979 continuing students already have enrolled for the Kentfield campus, plus 2,257 students either new or returning after interrupted studies. Last year's total signup was 6,062.

Two thirds of the available classes were filled as of Aug. 24, Grasham reported.

The students signing up for Indian Valley Colleges studies will study at Hamilton Air Force Base, in Novato schools and in other temporary quarters until the new campus opens.

The Marin Community College District board also:

FOOD — Heard a report that the Associated Students of the College of Marin has recommended hiring two separate caterers for the student center — Servomation to operate the cafeteria, and R. Pace to run a natural foods snack bar.

WORKSHOP — Set a special meeting for discussion of classified personnel salary surveys at 8 p.m. Sept. 13.

BOND STRATEGY — Set a meeting with the citizens' bond committee on the Measure A bond campaign for 8 p.m. Sept. 14.

ADVISERS — Agreed to meet with the trustees' citizens' advisory committee at 8 p.m. Sept. 20, to "receive input on major issues" affecting the district.

LIBRARY — Awarded the construction contract for the Kentfield campus's new library to Ralph Larson and Son of South San Francisco, on a bid of $2,579,000. The Jasper Construction Co. of Santa Cruz was allowed to withdraw a lower bid of $2,499,613 after the firm discovered a $180,000 subcontract item had been forgotten. Budget for the project was $3,341,119, including federal and state funds.

TREES — Hired Lesley S. Mayne Associates of Burlingame as consultants for tree planting on the Indian Valley Colleges campus at a $240 fee.

EQUIPMENT — Approved purchases of $9,090 additional equipment for the new science center, headed by a $6,826 digital voltmeter with printer. Federal and state funds will pay two-thirds of the total outlay.

CHILD CARE CENTER — Following a presentation by interested mothers, students and faculty, ordered a letter sent to the county board of education, saying that the district trustees will consider establishing a Kentfield campus child care center at its Sept. 15 meeting.

MARIN CITY — Learned that federal and state vocational funds had been denied for the college's proposed classes in Marin City, on grounds the plans were centered on adult training rather than classes for unemployable youths.

VEHICLES — Approved sale of five old vehicles to highest bidders, ranging from $800 offered by David Allen Swingle for a 1956 model 21-passenger bus to $25 for a 1961 Cushman three-wheeled cart.

GIFT — Accepted with thanks the gift of 237 books from Michael Kitz-Miller, deciding to keep 155 of them worth $500 for the district libraries and to offer the balance to Sonoma State College.

ADULT CLASSES — Approved the fall semester list of 138 adult education and community service classes, including 12 new courses.

HIRINGS — Approved employment of Ann Coder as half-time librarian for one school year only; James U. Copening as coordinator of the Center for Independent Study and Joy A. Gordon as Varitypist at $581 per month.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Varitypist Joyce Madden and library clerk Virginia Slevin.

LOANS — Extended for three years the district contract with Academic Financial Services Association for service on National Defense student loans.

EQUIPMENT — Amended the district policy to permit students to borrow musical instruments and other equipment and take them off-campus after proper documentation.

COMPUTERS — Discussed plans for in-service training to be offered any district teacher, in use of the college's computers. The program will be listed for a vote on Sept. 15.

DRAKE — Learned that no action will be recommended on sale of district property to permit widening Sir Francisco Drake Boulevard, until the Sept. 15 meeting.

Trustees Say Bond Plan Not Affected

The California Supreme Court blow against property tax financing for school districts should have no effect on the $16,760,000 Marin Community College District building bond issue on the Nov. 2 county ballot, the college trustees decided last night.

Board member Martin J. Dean pointed out that the ruling involved schools' operational financing, rather than capital outlay such as the proposed Measure A on the Marin ballot.

Trustee Theodore C. Wellman reported the court decision was extensively discussed at a meeting in Sacramento yesterday of Community Colleges Chancellor Sidney W. Brossman with his advisory panel on which Wellman serves.

Whatever the outcome of the ruling, it cannot affect California's schools during the 1971-72 year, Wellman predicted last night. If State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger appeals the state ruling to the U. S. Supreme Court before the 90-day deadline, the state court order will be shelved until a federal decision is handed down.

Wellman also predicted that the Legislature will try to solve the property tax problem in the near future. He said that most solutions proposed so far, saddle local districts with too much outside control.

The college bond committee has established a campaign headquarters in free office space at the Marin Senior Coordinating Center in San Rafael, according to district Supt.-President John A. Grasham.

Cochairmen for the pro-bond committee are attorney Hadden W. Roth of Tiburon and Grace Mitchell of Novato. Treasurer for the committee will be William Murray, San Rafael bank officer, and finance chairman will be Robert A. Roumiguiere, San Rafael real estate man.

College Trustee Frances Compton reported finding that Marin "citizens were very anxious to carry the ball" for the $16.76 million bond issue. She called for a large turnout of newly franchised 18-to-21-year-old voters.

Associated Students officials reported they had registered 700 students since the voting age was lowered.

Barrows Will Present Report

John F. Barrows, newly appointed county administrator, will report to the board of supervisors Oct. 5 whether he thinks his own office ought to be reorganized.

Under the regime of Alan Bruce, who resigned in June, the office had a staff of two assistant administrators, two senior administrative analysts and two secretaries.

On the heels of his selection by a 3-2 vote Tuesday, supervisors briefly discussed whether Barrows would need two assistant administrators — then agreed to leave the issue to Barrows for his recommendation.

The administrative office had been short two men since July when analyst William R. Pryor resigned. That post was filled this week, with the arrival of Robert Peterson, 31, former personnel analyst for the City of Richmond. He will receive $914 per month.

Peterson worked as a junior systems analyst for the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in the East Bay from 1967 to '68, when he joined the city staff. During the past year, he traveled overseas and studied at Sophia University in Tokyo.

Appeal By Drumgo, Clutchette Denied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Court of Appeal yesterday turned down a habeas corpus petition filed last week by Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette, the surviving "Soledad Brothers."

The two San Quentin convicts filed Aug. 27 asking the court to remove them from the prison and place them in protective custody pending their San Francisco trial on charges of killing a Soledad State Prison guard last year.

The petition was also asked for an impartial hearing officer to hold a hearing on alleged brutality in the prison.

The petition was accompanied by a hand-written affidavit brought out of San Quentin's adjustment center and signed by 26 convicts there, protesting their treatment since the Aug. 21 escape attempt in which the third Soledad Brother, George Jackson, was killed.

The appellate court denied the petition without comment.

$1,000 Received So Far For Handicapped Program

Officials of the Petaluma High School District, seeking to raise $5,000 to give disadvantaged and handicapped students work experience, said yesterday they have obtained $1,000 of their goal.

Half of the raised sum came from the Easter Seals Society, said George Castleberry, assistant superintendent of Petaluma schools.

The school district, through a special foundation, began the fund drive in July. It intends to place about 50 students under work superviosrs for up to six hours a week.

Officials seek to encourage job dependability, proper work attitudes and good appearance and to give the students job entry skills and instill a desire for employment.

Contributions may be sent to the Petaluma Foundation for Handicapped / Disadvantaged Students, C/O Castleberry, Petaluma Schools Administration Building, Fifth and B streets, Petaluma.

Colombo's Sons Won't Answer To Pistol Thefts

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two sons of Joseph Colombo Sr., reputed Brooklyn underworld leader, refused to answer Wednesday when questioned by police about the theft of 75 pistols from Kennedy Airport two years ago.

Joseph Colombo Jr. was questioned only briefly but Anthony Colombo was interrogated for nearly 45 minutes. Anthony pleaded the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer 19 questions.

The government asked that Joseph Jr. be ordered to submit to fingerprint tests, apparently to determine if prints found on one of the stolen guns was his. Judge Orrin G. Judd ordered attorneys to present briefs on the issue next Wednesday.

Khakis Now Guard Buckingham Palace

LONDON (UPI)—Khaki-clad Royal Artillery troops took over guard duty at Buckingham Palace Wednesday because of a shortage of the regular redcoated and bearskin-hatted palace guards who are serving in Northern Ireland and overseas.

It was the third time this year that troops of other regiments have been detailed to guard the royal family's London residence because the regular guard units were not available. In November, a unit of Gurkhas, the British army's renowned soldiers from Nepal, are scheduled to take over at the palace.

New Nursing Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The army has named Lillian Dunlap, 49, San Antonio, Tex., as head of the Army Nurse Corps, and elevated her to brigadier general —only the fifth time a woman has achieved that rank.

Gen. Dunlap will be handing down orders to men as well as women in her new post since almost one quarter of the army nurses are male.

Tax Cut Petitions Circulated

An initiative petition aimed at cutting property taxes in half is being circulated in Marin.

The initiative, called the Jarvis Amendment from its sponsor, Howard Jarvis of the United Organization of Taxpayers Inc., would set a maximum property tax rate of 1 per cent of market valuation. The current state average tax rate is 2 per cent.

John Winters of Larkspur, Marin coordinator for the initiative, said yesterday about 3,000 signatures already have been collected in Marin in the drive begun a few weeks ago.

The initiative needs 520,806 bona fide signatures thoughout the state to become law.

Winters said volunteers wishing to help circulate petitions should contact him at his home.

A group of volunteers will be on hand Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Red Hill Shopping Center in San Anselmo.

The Jarvis amendment also would remove about 84,000 foundations and charitable trusts from the tax-exempt rolls. The legislature would have the power to reinstate legitimate organizations on the tax-exempt rolls, Winters said.

Man Denies Stealing Cycle

Christopher Austin Fenn, 23, of Mill Valley, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of vehicle theft and possession of stolen property.

Preliminary hearing has been set for Tuesday.

Feen was arrested July 26 when Mill Valley police stopped him for driving a motorcycle without a taillight. A check revealed the motorcycle had been stolen in San Francisco and the license plates stolen in Oakland, police said.

How Frame Homes Held Up In Quake

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Only 1 per cent of wood frame homes in the San Fernando Valley suffered damage greater than 5 per cent in the earthquake of last spring, according to a study by the insurance industry.

The 300,000 wood frame dwellings in the quake area "performed very well," Hal S. Morr, general manager of the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau said.

The agency said mobile homes suffered more damage because they were "poorly braced."

Losses to high rise buildings built to quake resistance standards never exceeded one per cent.

The insurance group said "failure of numerous freeway bridges pointed out the need for substantially increased design requirements."

The report also said that insurance companies were reviewing the problem of insuring property below dams which could be broken in an earthquake.

Clipper ships were three-masted sailing vessels noted for their speed.

Goldenaires Set Journey South

The San Rafael Goldenaires will take a three-day trip, Sept. 17 through 19 to Southern California.

Highlights of the trip include a visit to the Queen Mary in Long Beach, Santa Barbara, and Danish Days in Solvaang. Further information and reservations may be made at the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department center headquarters in Albert Field Clubhouse.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

BY THE CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

TO DISCUSS THE USE OF FUNCTIONAL CLASSIFICATION AS A BASIS FOR DETERMINING WHICH LEVEL OF GOVERNMENT SHOULD BE RESPONSIBLE FOR WHICH PART OF THE TOTAL HIGHWAY, ROAD AND STREET NETWORK.

WHERE	WHEN
Board of Supervisors Meeting Chambers Civic Center San Rafael	7:30 PM September 16, 1971

The purpose of this hearing is to discuss the recently completed Functional Classification study and its possible effects upon the forthcoming Section 256 Report to the State Legislature. Functional Classification is a means of describing the purpose of each highway, road and street in serving the traveling public by grouping them into systems according to the kind of service they are intended to supply without regard to present jurisdiction. The concept of using a functional classification system as a logical basis for determining which roads should be the responsibility of the State and which roads should be the responsibility of the cities or counties will be discussed. In addition, specific tentative recommendations resulting from this study regarding ultimate additions and deletions to the State Highway System within Marin County will be discussed.

Written and oral statements from any interested persons or groups regarding the functional classification concept or the tentative recommendations, regarding possible additions or deletions to the State Highway System will be received at the hearing for entry into the official transcript. The public hearing records will be kept open for 15 days after the hearing, during which time letters of statements should be mailed to:

Supervisors Flubbed Unusual Opportunity

The word had been out that John F. Barrows probably would be named county administrator by 3-2 vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors. Tuesday it happened.

We consider if unfortunate — not because Barrows is not qualified for the job, but because the supervisors had an opportunity to make sure they got the best qualified candidate, and fumbled that opportunity.

It may be that if all the many who would apply for this high-paying position were considered, John F. Barrows would still emerge as the No. 1 choice. But we'll never know.

THE PERFORMANCE of the board of supervisors in this matter, from the time former Administrator Alan Bruce's brutal denunciation of the county health department led to pressure for his resignation down to the naming of Barrows, has done little to enhance public confidence in our elected county governing body.

At a time when many excellently qualified administrators are on the job market, and when few jobs in either public or private employment are open at better pay than that offered for Marin County administrator, the supervisors had an opportunity to choose from a wide field.

They obtained the services of five men of considerable public experience to serve as a volunteer screening committee. Then they denied the committee the privilege of working out its proposals without their interference, ignored its recommendations, and closed the door to recruiting from outside.

ORDINARILY, WE ARE all for giving Marin County jobs to Marin County people.

In the case of county administrator, however — particularly because the job had become highly controversial during the previous incumbent's years — outside recruiting appears not only preferable but almost necessary.

And for that matter, for all we know there may be men better qualified for the job right here in Marin. There is no shortage of people with high-level administrative experience in our county.

We agree with Supervisors Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis that selection of Barrows in the way it was done places him under a cloud and inhibits his performance on the job.

THERE WAS NO NEED for haste. The supervisors, in appointing Barrows, said the appointment would be subject to review in six months.

In that case, there is no reason he should not have remained in acting status for six months, giving ample time for recruiting and screening other applicants. And by then, he would have had sufficient time to demonstrate his ability, which he has not had in only two months since Bruce's departure.

We wish John Barrows well. But we doubt whether the three supervisors who voted to hire him without looking at anyone else did him a favor. More likely, they tied a millstone around his neck.

Hard To Believe

Can you believe it? Only 30 years ago, when we went to the store to buy clothing — poor, impoverished Americans! — we had a choice of about four kinds of fabrics: cotton, wool, silk, and a miracle test-tube fiber called rayon.

Today, we can look back at these simplistic days with nostalgia. With all the polyesters and other synthetics sold under a multitude of trade names, it takes a genuine expert to know what he is buying.

But we do appreciate the easy-care new-fangled fabrics.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Proposal To Hike 'Sin' Taxes Mere Trial Balloon

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Suggestion by the Reagan administration that the estimated $300 million deficit in the 1971-72 state budget be made up in part by imposition of "sin" taxes — added imposts on liquor, cigarettes and horse racing — must have been what is known as a "trial balloon."

It's hardly conceivable that any administration in its right mind would seriously seek added taxes on the already overtaxed privilege of doing a little "sinning" by having a smoke, taking a toddy, or placing a two-buck bet on the ponies.

FOR YEARS and years, the people of the state have been robbed and abused by the people they elect to represent them, whose attitude appears to be to take all the fun out of life to pay the high costs of increased salaries for legislators and other state officials, by making it the particular burden of the common man who wants to derive a little enjoyment out of humdrum existence.

So whenever there's a need for more money (which is always), the politicians turn again to the common man, and attempt to run him through the wringer to squeeze the last dollar out of his pocket.

If the administration sends up a trial balloon to see how the public will react, the reaction will not be favorable. The administration and lawmakers may have to dream up some other method to pay the state's bills, for instance heavier taxes on banks, insurance companies, and other big corporations that take profits out of the economy as the result of legislative failure to protect the public.

THE PUBLIC has no choice in the matter. Republicans and Democrats battle with each other in an effort to see which party can milk the taxpayers dry, and lay the blame for higher taxes on the other party. This rivalry would be funny if it did not concern the taxpayer, but, unfortunately, the taxpayer eventually is forced to pay the bill while the excuses and placement of blame fly from one party another.

It was in the beginning of the Reagan administration five years ago that talk commenced about tax relief and tax reform. Although the legislature has met annually, not one thing has been done to bring the talk to fruition, to evolve a plan whereby the taxpayer, even if the demands for more government money were not assuaged, could at least have the burden somewhat equalized.

Soon the taxpayer and voter is going to get disgusted with the continued excuses for these delays in action on his behalf, and start to point out that "it isn't being done."

When this takes place, it may be time for the politicians, legislative and executive, to start running. An aroused public will turn them out of office, and give someone else a chance.

Reader Questions Product Of Success

In last Saturday's "Progress" edition you ran a "Success story" on the Handi-Kup Co. of Corte Madera, which made much of that company's expansion in the last 14 years to the point that it is now producing 30 million throwaway plastic foam cups a month. Now how about an article on the mind-boggling problem of disposing of those 30 million non-biodegradable cups a month? How about a statement from Mr. (Peter) Hunt as to what the Handi-Kup Co. is doing about the plastic recycling problem?

The value of any product must include the energy costs involved in making it, and the cost of its disposal after use, both of which represent a drain on environmental resources, without necessarily restoring any of those resources. When those costs are added to the price of a throwaway cup, what will its real value be?

Urges Opposition To Birth Control Bill

Senate Bill 375 which will permit minor children, no matter how young, to obtain birth control devices without parental consent, has passed the state Senate and will soon be voted upon by the state Assembly. It most probably will come up for a vote in the Assembly, the day after Labor Day, Sept. 7.

Let us write immediately to our state Assemblyman and tell him in no uncertain terms that we, as parents, oppose legislation of this sort which can only serve to demoralize and prostitute our children behind our backs! Write also to Governor Reagan and urge him to veto this bill if it reaches his desk!

Television Coverage Called One-Sided

When something tragic occurs such as at San Quentin on Aug. 21, it is too bad the television newscasters cannot report an unbiased speech to the public. Instead of trying to give both sides of this affair, they came on showing impassioned speeches by Huey Newton who eulogized George Jackson as a real martyr, a "soldier of the people", etc., etc.

Nothing was said of existing trouble by inmates who stab each other, or make trouble for the others who try to serve their sentences quietly without being killed by the groups of militants who are stirred up constantly by outside groups, inciting them to riot.

Who would be surprised by a follow-up after that television newscast (all one-sided) of bombings, angry speeches by all revolutionaries, etc. The fact is, the television news stations do not give a darn for after-results, as long as they can snare the biggest number of viewers, by being merely sensational, instead of giving information which is what they are really supposed to do.

Plaint Of An Average Citizen: 'I Am A Sick American'

(The following article, titled "I Am a Sick American," has been reprinted from one publication to another so many times that we are unable to determine the original source. It is being reprinted here in response to requests from several readers. — Editor.)

There are those who claim ours is a "sick" society: that our country is sick, our government is sick, we are sick. Well, maybe they're right. I submit that I'm sick — and maybe you are, too.

I am sick of having policemen ridiculed and called "pigs" while cop killers are hailed as some kind of folk hero.

I am sick of being told that religion is the opiate of the people, but marijuana should be legalized.

I am sick of commentators and columnists canonizing anarchists, revolutionaries and criminal rapists, but condemning law enforcement when such criminals are brought to justice.

I am sick of being told that pornography is the right of the free press, but freedom of the press does not include being able to read the Bible on school grounds.

I AM SICK of Supreme Court decisions that turn criminals loose on society — while other decisions try to take away my means of protecting my home and family.

I am sick of being told that policemen are mad dogs who should not have guns — but that criminals who use guns to rob, maim and murder should be understood and helped back to society.

I am sick of not being able to take my family to a movie unless I want to have them exposed to nudity, homosexuality and the glorification of narcotics.

I am sick of those who say I owe them this or that because of the sins of my forefathers —when I have looked down both ends of a gun barrel to defend their rights, their liberties and their families.

I am sick of cynical attitudes toward patriotism. I am sick of politicians with no backbone.

I am sick of permissiveness.

I am sick of the dirty, the foul-mouthed, the unwashed.

I am sick of the decline of personal honesty, personal integrity and human sincerity.

MOST OF ALL, I am sick of being told I'm sick. I'm sick of being told my country is sick — when we have the greatest nation that man has ever brought forth on the face of the earth. Fully 50 per cent of the people on earth would willingly trade places with the most deprived, the most underprivileged among us.

Take note, all of you — you will not find me throwing rocks or a bomb but you will find me at work, paying taxes, serving in the community where I live. You will also find me expressing my anger and indignation to elected officials.

But, most of all, you'll find me at the polling place. There —if you listen — you can hear the thunder of the common man. There, all of us can cast our vote — for an America where people can walk the streets without fear.

Nixon Locks The Barn Door After Big Labor Steals Horse

WASHINGTON — It would be heartening to believe that the president's appeal for unity to solve the problems of the economy had been accepted by a grateful nation. But, talking with a variety of citizens across the country, the impression is that while a sizable majority would like to see the program succeed they are not prepared to make the individual sacrifices that are required.

It is also in hindsight easy to say that it might have worked if it had come a year or a year and a half earlier. During the past 12 months major unions have won big raises that have sent prices soaring upward. The horse is out of the barn, and the president's voluntary padlock is a generous hope of confining what is hardly more than a ghost of a horse.

The screams of rage from George Meany and the other labor bosses sound like the offstage noises of angry lions deprived of their raw meat. No recognition is shown of their responsibility for the price rise, the fact of American products being priced out of world markets or the first trade deficit since 1893.

A CONTINUED RISE in labor costs without a rise in productivity having some correspondence to the added labor factor was intolerable. At the same time Japanese productivity per man-hour was increasing far in excess of the American rate.

In recent years many businessmen with a liberal attitude toward trade unions have been alienated. They feel that utterly unreasoning demands have been made by competing unions, each seeking an advantage over the other. Jurisdictional disputes, of which the dock strike in San Francisco is in part an example, have tied up whole industries. As in the construction workers' prolonged walkout in Kansas City, strikes have seriously damaged the economy of whole areas.

A great weakness in the president's program is the 10 per cent tax investment credit for business. Distinguished economists such as Walter Heller, as well as angry labor spokesmen, have pointed out that this is a huge bonus to big industry. It is an example of the trickle-down theory, with the trickle likely to mean very little to the great mass of consumers.

ALL THIS UNDERSCORES something that almost no one likes to talk about. That is the enormous difference in levels of living between the top and bottom layers of American life.

Such quaint beliefs out of the past as three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves have long since been invalidated in the era of the trust fund and the professional money managers, which was the primary function of John Connally before he became secretary of the treasury. Great fortunes inevitably increase. The top-rated managers are expected to produce an annual growth of not less than 10 per cent.

The vast increase in conglomerates has tended to narrow managerial opportunities. Over-all direction of a dozen companies under one big tent tends to come from a few individuals, and the multinational companies controlling enterprises in a half-dozen countries can circumvent high wage demands in the United States.

ALL THAT IS NO secret. Leaving out of consideration the more than 25 million who live below the poverty line, the difference in life styles between Middle America and the very rich is immeasurable.

What to this observer is most unfortunate in the Nixon program is the big cut in the federal budget. It removes from consideration the prospect of improving the quality of American life in housing, conservation, or a dozen different ways in which only federal spending can make up the lag. What Mr. Nixon is proposing is "still pond, no more moving," at a point when inflation has gained a tight hold in vital necessities and when the country suffers from serious ills that cannot be simply smoothed over by hopeful rhetoric.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

New Top Man In Malta Has Good Poker Hand

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Dom Mintoff, who squeaked in as Malta's prime minister in a close election last June, is in the happy position of a poker player sitting with a royal flush in his hand.

He is using it against Britain, from whom Malta achieved independence in 1964, and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

So far as NATO is concerned the island's strategic importance has declined. But other factors have entered the picture. Included among them are Russian ambitions in the Mediterranean, the Arab-Israeli conflict and Spanish ambitions to re-occupy Gibraltar.

ANGLING FOR INFLUENCE in Malta, along with the Russians, has been Libya which sees it as a waypoint in the shipment of Mideastern oil and an important element in the fight against Israel. Mintoff already has told the U.S. Sixth Fleet to stop its calls at the Maltese port of Valetta and the Russians and Libyans are hoping for failure of the negotiations with Britain.

Moscow has promised "total" support in "liquidating colonial domination" from Malta and has promised to examine question of economic aid.

Libya also has been talking with Mintoff on questions of defense and aid.

The Libyans would like to use Malta as a base for a fleet of Arab oil tankers. Her own port facilities are inadequate.

THE QUESTION of air control over that portion of the Mediterranean also has come up. There has been speculation that when Valetta air controllers refused to let a BOAC airliner land they may have enabled the Libyan government to force the liner down at Benghazi and seize two leaders of the short-lived coup in Sudan.

The Libyan moves have brought Israel into the picture, presumably with counter-offers. These could include orders to Valetta shipyards for vessels to help build up Israel's merchant fleet.

Spain's sudden interest in NATO also is traced to Malta's status, or lack of it, in the matter of Mediterranean defenses.

The reasoning is that if the British-NATO negotiations with Malta should break down, then Gibraltar might take on new importance as a NATO base. If Spain were a member of NATO, then her ships could call on Gibraltar and possibly become an opening wedge in Spain's efforts to break Britain's 267-year-old hold on "The Rock."

THESE ARE SOME of the "iffy' questions posed by Mintoff's determination that Malta shall determine its own destiny after some 2,000 years of being controlled by others.

But despite his tough talk about throwing the British and NATO out, there is no disposition to believe he wants to turn his island over to the Russians.

British officials remain quietly optimistic about an early agreement permitting British troops to remain.

Britain had been paying "rent" of $12.5 million a year, and, with some help from NATO, has offered to bring it up to $20.4 million. Mintoff has scaled his demands down from $72 million to $36 million. The final settlement probably will be somewhere in between, ending the risk that a Russian naval base might be established there.

The British, it is said, will not object if Mintoff allows repair work to be done on Russian ships in Malta's dry docks.

Dream Of U.C. Marin Campus At Hamilton Returns To Life

All the talk about joint civilian-military use, or possible eventual pull-out of the military from Hamilton Air Force Base, recalls the stirrings of a short-lived dream of several years ago.

The dream: Why not use the permanent buildings at Hamilton as the nucleus for a North Bay campus of the University of California?

It seems like a natural. The professors and administrators should love to live in the gracious homes Hamilton built for its officers. Much of the other housing could readily be converted for married students. The base's administrative buildings could become classroom and laboratory structures for a start.

Probably, the campus aspect wouldn't even interfere with civil use of the runway and airfield facilities. Some air transport and industrial development could take place on the San Pablo Bay side of the field. Or else, a marine biology center would be a natural development there.

ABOUT FIVE YEARS ago, Bechtel Corp. was engaged in research on proposals to locate two University of California campuses westward of San Francisco Bay. One logical center was felt to be San Francisco, and there was tentative talk of someday replacing San Quentin Prison with a campus, which would be intimately linked with the Berkeley campus by the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

There also was hushed talk of using Hamilton, but in those days no one would even speak aloud of the idea that the Air Force might abandon its only real show-place base in Northern California.

Immediate proximity of a university campus could not help but attract "clean" industry such as Sunset Magazine and Lane Publishing Co. which nestle close to Stanford on the Peninsula.

The alternate thought of using San Quentin as a campus has ironic overtones in light of recent troubles there. One of the demands often repeated by pro-prisoner pickets was that "this place should have closed 117 years ago" — referring to the days of its construction.

IT ALSO REVIVES an ancient and probably apocryphal tale about the rivalry between Santa Fe and Albuquerque during New Mexico's territorial days. The legislature wrangled endlessly about which city should have a university and which a penitentiary — both considered plums in terms of local employment and income.

The tale holds that Santa Fe won the toss of a coin — and chose the penitentiary. It's true that not until just before World War Two did the campus have a larger clientele than the prison.

Getting back to education in Marin, let it be noted that the proposed countywide master plan calls for development of higher educational facilities in the vicinity of St. Vincent's Hill. Presumably neither the Hamilton idea nor the San Quentin proposal would strain the planners' concept too far.

Attorney Attacks Writing Assessment

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Taking 25 per cent of the money a San Quentin inmate gets for his writings is equivalent to making the prisoner pay his own censor, an attorney told the California Supreme Court yesterday.

Paul Halvonik of the American Civil Liberties Union argued that this charge is an infringement on the prisoner's First Amendment rights and discourages prisoners from submitting manuscripts for possible publication.

Halvonik argued on behalf of Death Row prisoner Nathan Eli, 27, one of two inmates challenging the rule that provides the prisoner be assessed 25 per cent, with the money going to the Inmate Welfare Fund.

Halvonik said his client was "sitting on" a finished novel because of this regulation.

R. Jay Engle, arguing for the other inmate, John van Geldern, said that a man does not lose his civil rights simply because he is put in prison. He argued that the 25 per cent charge has no "legitimate custodial objective" since the inmate pays for whatever materials he uses, such as paper and typewriter ribbons.

Deputy Attorney General George Nock argued that the 25 per cent is a reasonable charge and that most of the prison expenses in connection with reading manuscripts are non-recoverable because most manuscripts never get published.

Van Geldern attempted to sell a manuscript but then refused to sign the contract with the prison which would provide the 25 per cent payment.

Prevo Takes Employee Post

Randall M. Prevo, former manager of the Marin County Employees Association, has been appointed general manager of the California Public Employees Federation.

H. W. Orcutt, federation president, announced that Prevo will coordinate action among the 85,000 public employees who belong to 45 employee groups throughout the state.

Prevo was manager of the Marin County Employees Association from July of 1968 until July of 1970, when he quit to accept a new job as personnel director for Napa County.

Francis J. O'Connell of Fairfax succeeded Prevo as manager of the Marin County Employees Association.

Class Gets Really Relevant When Teacher Got No Raise

WASHINGTON — This is going to be a tough fall for schoolchildren, perhaps the toughest they've ever faced. Many teachers who were promised raises won't get them and while they will not take it out on the kids, I'm sure it will be uppermost in their minds. I can imagine what will happen in the classrooms across the nation.

The scene if Public School 349. The teacher calls the class to order.

"Now children, the first subject is arithmetic. I'm going to give you a problem If someone was promised a raise of 10 per cent on $7,000 a year at the beginning of a school term, and at the last minute it was rescinded, how much money would she have been cheated out of?"

"THAT'S CORRECT, Anthony. Now here is the second problem. A person has gone to college for five years to learn a profession. When she comes out of school she makes half as much money as a plumber. If a plumber makes $15,000 a year, how much will the college graduate make?"

The children work silently for five minutes. Then Susan raises her hand. "She would make $7,500."

"If she's lucky," the teacher says. "One more. If the cost of living went up 7 per cent in one year, and a person could not get an increase in her salary because of government bureaucrats, how much less would her salary be worth in three years?"

Johnny pipes up, "Twenty-one per cent."

"ALL RIGHT, you seem to know your arithmetic. Let's go on to English. Which of these two sentences is correct? 'President Nixon's economic game plan were a failure' or 'President Nixon's economic game plan was a failure'?"

Charles replies, "Was a failure."

"'The people who were caught in a wage-price freeze are those who could least afford it' or 'The people who were caught in a wage-price freeze is those who could least afford it'?"

"Are?"

"What is wrong with this sentence: 'American economists don't know nothing'?"

Carol replies, "It should read 'American economists don't know everything.'"

"YOU'RE WRONG," the schoolteacher says bitterly. "It should read 'American economists don't know anything.' Let's go on to another subject. Get out your American history books. What was President Hoover most noted for?"

David raises his hand. "A depression."

"What is a depression?"

"It's when everyone is out of work and nobody has any money to buy food," Bobby replies.

"When people don't make enough money in America what do they do?"

"They go out on strike," Freddy yelled.

"How long do they go out on strike?"

"Until the other people give them more money."

"Can everyone go out on strike in America?"

"No," Joel says. "Policemen, firemen and schoolteachers can't go on strike."

"Why not?"

EVERYONE WAS stumped.

"All right," the teacher says. "Your homework tonight is for each of you to write to President Nixon and ask him why schoolteachers can't go on strike.

"Class dismissed."

Students Flood Sonoma State

Sonoma State College officials reported yesterday nearly 1,000 students applied for spring entrance during a one-month application period which ended yesterday.

Harold J. Soeters, dean of admissions, said the college will accept about 850 out of this group and late applications yet to come.

The college, which already has enrolled 2,225 new students for the fall semester out of 4,294 applicants, is expected to reach a population of 5,000 when school begins next month.

"That's practically maximum for our facilities," he said.

Those who applied under the special 30-day period ending yesterday were incoming freshmen, junior and senior transfers and graduate students.

Cary Grant Seeks Custody

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Cary Grant, saying he was "keenly concerned" for his 5-year-old daughter's welfare, asked the superior court Wednesday to order his ex-wife, actress Dyan Cannon, to turn over custody of the child to him.

Grant, 67, was previously given custody of their daughter Jennifer for one month each year since they were divorced in 1968.

He said in his petition that Miss Cannon, 34, has ignored his request to establish a home in California with the girl and has instead been living in New York and Europe while working on films.

A DESK in the bedroom of her Greenbrae home is headquarters for this general chairman of a major fund-raising benefit. Mrs. Merilee Brand took on the chairmanship when her party idea was accepted by Jack and Jill Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers. Keeping the committee working smoothly and taking care of details that come up fast are her main duties. Her rule banning all but crucial evening telephone calls has pleased her family.

SOME WORDS OF ADVICE

The Problems Facing Fund-Raising Party Chairman

By BARBARA HOSMER

It's no mean feat to raise the hundreds of thousands of dollars that Marin women's groups do every year to help keep afloat a variety of social service projects.

How to do it — a party, a sale, a whole series of events or a one-shot big one? — that's the problem these groups face each club year. Fund-raising is the most serious job the volunteers tackle. Their raw materials are a good cause, the members themselves and hopefully some past experience and community goodwill.

The idea itself and the chairman are vital to the success of any benefit. But the degree of follow-through over the weeks or months can make or break it, and that's up to the chairman.

FINDING THE right idea was the key to finding the chairman for the Jack and Jill Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers, working toward a one big fund-raiser this fall. The branch, which asissts the pediatrics ward at the hospital, is shooting for a profit in excess of $3,000 from its single-night party.

Marin Women

Thursday, September 2, 1971 Independent-Journal, 13

The 35 members began immediately after last fall's event to sift through each member's evaluation sheet of that party to assess its problems, quality of food, the music, if the party was fun, too much work, or netted too little profit. And their ideas for next year.

The past few years the branch had held a one-night party previewing new models at a Corte Madera auto showroom. But the members decided that since everything had to be brought in for it, it was a lot of work. It was time for a change.

A committee gathered to research some 50 new fund-raising ideas ranging from a drawing, to a mystery trip, a dinner dance, a luncheon, tour of the bay model to a party at a mobile home park.

Then 15 ideas were presented to members for a vote.

"Mine was selected," said Mrs. Lee Branch of Greenbrae, "and then everybody looked at me."

THAT WAS Jan. 6 and ever since chairman Merilee Brand has been overseeing plans for the decorator's studio tour and style show, an evening party set Oct. 1 in San Francisco.

The manager of the showrooms was a guest at the Jack and Jill Branch party last year, and she had remembered that he had mentioned such a tour possibility.

She quickly appointed committee chairmen.

"It took me about a week to realize what I had gotten into. Since then I have had to prod people more than I thought I would, and I have made an unbelievable number of telephone calls," but she has found good general cooperation by members.

Some nine or 10 women are most active in creating the studio tour with some 70 galleries of furnishings, a fashion show of Marin clothes, refreshments, hors d'oeuvres and prizes.

SAN FRANCISCO as a location for a Marin benefit is not thought to be a problem, as the invitation list includes many from San Francisco and the Peninsula, she said.

Getting invitations and tickets designed and printed, checking parking, fitting clothes to models, hiring security guards, obtaining cost comparisons for table bouquets, deciding to have caterers serve, planning menus and food costs and even getting coat racks to the party were some of the vital details they worked on for the past eight months.

They had decided on one big fund-raiser because "we thought it was easier to put all our eggs in one basket," Mrs. Brand explained.

"We considered doing the food ourselves and serving it, but we found nobody would have time to be with their guests. Also, we wanted to have the party in Marin, but there's no place like this and we could not accommodate as many people," she said.

They also sifted through their guest list from past parties to see who would be attracted to a party such as planned, counting on some 500 persons.

KEEPING COSTS down and still putting on a nice party is the goal, she said. This year members are required to sell 10 books of drawing tickets each and if all sell they will make $3,000 on that alone, Merilee Brand said.

They estimate party expenses to run $2,000. They decided to set party tickets' price at $7.50 per couple. "That will give us $1,850 and we get some donations, say $200. The intake from the bar is not very profitable; we should make $1,000," the chairman figures.

Her advice to make money on a benefit?

"Get everything donated you possibly can. Uncles, husbands, friends donate things —ice, glasses —it's amazing."

They needed table bouquets and a member knew a leading florist who agreed to donate them. The printing chairman got bids from three printers. Then a member's husband said he could do it for half that. They saved $125.

Last year ticket prices were $6 per couple, but the committee found that food costs had gone up so much that $7.50 was a minimum they could charge this year and not put a burden on their guests.

"Their pleasure is important," Mrs. Brand added.

AS CHAIRMAN her problems have been continual, but most things she could do by telephone.

"I found that I had to do quite a few things myself, those minute details that come up that a general chairman has to do. Usually one phone call will take care of them."

She finds the hours she has to put in are increasing and this month will be hectic. Then after the party there are thank-you notes to guests and donators to be written, which include a report on how much money was made for the children's ward at the hospital.

As chairman Mrs. Brand has found some surprises.

"I thought I'd have more spare time. Things come up and have to be taken care of right away. I didn't expect that.

"It's fun, frightening at times. I've never known the problems that other committee chairmen have had until now."

HER ADVICE to other new general chairmen: "Be cool. Even though problems come up, don't dwell on them and keep as much to yourself as you can."

GOING OVER dishes that will be used at the party are the food chairman, Mrs. Michael Smith of San Rafael (left) with Jon Fowler, manager of the decorator showroom in San Francisco where the tour will be held, and general chairman Merilee Brand. Even dishes and silverware for 500 guests are among the chairman's ultimate responsibilities. Nine months of work have gone into their party.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Warning To Women: If You Want Male's Respect, Act Like A Lady

DEAR HELEN:

This is difficult to write, for I respect women. But lately they don't merit as much respect.

If I am unenlightened, I can re-learn, but let's have an understanding! The corner bar is a man's meeting place. Unescorted females, perhaps wrongly, are considered fair game. If they aren't on the make, they should stay the heck out, or come with a man who can stay comparatively sober.

I abhor the witch who scouts the old man at the bar, then shrieks like a fishwife if he "scouts" back. Too often she interrupts a business drink, and her shrewishness can foul up a whole deal.

Also, if women are going to wear hotpants (we called 'em short-shorts in my day), for cryin' out loud, can't they were panties under them? If they don't, there's no real reason for griping to the local gendarmerie if passes are made. Most males are predatory, as are some females. If they can't play for the stakes of the game, they should stay out of it!

To put it more bluntly, how many women these days know how to be a real lady, to keep from emasculating a man; to be a wife a husband is truly proud of? — JOSEPH

DEAR JOE:

Roughly, several million. But the "witches" get the attention, yes?

DEAR HELEN:

I'm in love with a European man, but he says all American women are bossy because we've been spoiled by wishy-washy American men, who let us run the house and bank account, then call them "male chauvinists."

How can I prove I want a dominating man? He thinks I'm putting on a show to trap him — another "U.S. female characteristic."—AMERICANWOMAN

DEAR WOMAN:

A characteristic of your European male is apparently nimbleness. Not wanting marriage, a quick-thinker lays the blame on "women in general."

Tell him European men are all right to date but you wouldn't want to marry one — and maybe he'll change his tune. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Concerning the letter on a "bill of divorcement," this man's Bible version of divorce may still satisfy both God and our present court system.

If the separation is friendly and no property battles are involved, he may have properly drawn up the easily obtainable legal standard forms and submit them to the court without the aid of a lawyer.

My point is, God's law, when correctly introduced, should hold up in any just court. — FRANK

DEAR FRANK:

Don't count on it!

For the sake of argument, how about this: "When a man is newly married, he shall not go out with the army or be charged with any business: he shall be free at home one year to be happy with his wife . . ." (Deut. 24:5)

Draft boards: Take note! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A cure for cigarette moochers: When that "reformed smoker" comes around to borrow "just one more," offer him my special discourager. Get quinine capsules (five grains) at the drug store. Apply a smidgen of powder to the cigarette tip, or put a trace in the bottom of the package. Be sure it doesn't show. The taste lingers after a puff or two, so that even the sight of a cigarette repels. This is great to use on people who want to quit smoking, as well as on chronic beggars. — W.A.

Yearly Foot Exams

NEW YORK (UPI) —The American Podiatry Association recommends a foot examination a year for school-age children. This is to find hidden foot ailments which can make a child uncomfortable and even interfere with skeletal alignment. Those feet have to be kept in good shape to carry the offspring approximately 65,000 miles during his or her lifetime.

Parties Slated During Knarr Regetta

By MOLLY MARIN

A week of competition and parties starts Saturday at Belvedere's San Francisco Yacht Club, where the 1971 International Knarr Championship Regatta will be raced.

Yacht club members, San Francisco Bay Knarr Association skippers and seven Knarr skippers from Denmark, three from Norway, their crews and wives will become acquainted.

The Scandanavians will be houseguests at the homes of Messrs. and Mmes. Anthony Guzzardo, Henry Jacobsen, A. Robert Fisher, Kenneth Metzger, Ted Goldbeck, Philip Presber and Mrs. Sandra York and Richard Griffith, all of Belvedere or Tiburon, and also the Sausalito home of Mr. and Mrs. Knud Wibroe and the San Francisco residence of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Settlemier.

The foreigners will be welcomed by San Francisco Bay Knarr Fleet at a party tomorrow at 6 p.m. in the newly-completed home of Richard Griffith Jr. on Corinthian Island. Among the 125 guests for cocktails and buffet will be skippers, their crews, wives and the race committee.

After the Saturday warm-up race, punch and hot hors d'oeuvres will be served in San Francisco Yacht Club while welcoming speeches are made.

Serious racing starts Sunday followed by a cocktail party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Friedman, formerly of Tiburon, which will also be a housewarming for the new Belvedere home. Guests will be San Francisco Knarr skippers and their foreign competitors.

A Tuesday mid-week trophy presentation and dinner dance will be held so members of San Francisco Yacht Club can meet the Scandanavians and other San Francisco Knarr skippers.

The races will end with a trophy dinner at Trader Vic's in San Francisco on Sept. 11 for participants in the regatta and their wives.

MORE THAN 100 relatives, many of whom had never met, got together Sunday at a party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. William Costello of Larkspur.

The guests, relatives of Mr. Costello, attended a mass at St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur and then went to the Costellos' home for a picnic and swimming party, where they were greeted by blown up photographs of their ancestors.

Costellos from Ireland and as far away in this country as Maine were invited to the reunion. Senior family member, Joseph Costello, 91, of San Francisco, attended.

MR. AND MRS. Roland Healy of Mill Valley will celebrate their 56th wedding anniversary Sunday at a dinner to be hosted by their only daughter, Mrs. Robert Webber of Hillsborough, and her husband at the Peninsula Country Club. Also present will be the Healy's grandchildren, Heidi and Judson Webber.

Married on Sept. 15, 1915, in Park Ridge, Ill., the Healys have lived in Mill Valley 10 years.

Before he retired Mr. Healy was a salesman with the W. F. Hall Printing Company for 32 years. The present noble grand of Mill Valley's Mount Tamalpais Lodge 399, IOOF, he and his wife are also members of Blythedale Rebekah Lodge 305. He has been a member of the Shriners since 1923.

LIVING IN Los Gatos are Mr. and Mrs. Anthony W. Rittenhouse (Frederica P. Judson), who were married Aug. 8 in San Rafael.

Frederica is the daughter of Mrs. W. Allen Conroy of Novato and Col. (ret.) Frederick B. Judson of Kansas City. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rittenhouse of Manila, Phillipines, are the bridegroom's parents.

The bride is a graduate of San Francisco State College, and the bridegroom was graduated from the Maritime Academy in Vallejo.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Dr. Estelle R. Ramey, professor at Georgetown University Medical School in Washington, D.C., got a standing ovation from home economists she addressed here recently.

MALE IN CLASS

There's No More 'Now Girls' Stuff

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) —Once upon a time all the young women at one of the country's top secretarial schools wore white gloves and hats — but that would look pretty silly on Stephen Koban.

Koban, 22, a slim, dark-haired and rather serious-looking young man, is the first male student at what has been called the Vassar of secretarial schools, Katharine Gibbs. He commutes daily from his parents' home in Peekskill into New York City to attend an eight-weeks crash secretarial course designed for college graduates.

There's nothing ideological in Koban's enrolment —the only thing he is protesting is his personal unemployment.

"I'm looking for a chance to get into publishing or advertising," he said in an interview.

"When I graduated in June, an English major, I went to half a dozen employment agencies and they closed the door in my face."

KOBAN, A graduate of the University of Ohio at Athens, said agency interviewers were sympathetic, but told him he had little chance of being hired, even in a menial capacity, without experience and when business was pulling in its belt.

Not every young man would jump from there to enrollment in a previously all-girl school, intent on training for a predominantly feminine occupation.

"Well, I had already read a newspaper story that Gibbs was ready to enroll men," Koban said. "At the time I let my mind fantasize about it and I dreamed up headlines that read, 'Steve Koban first male graduate from Katie Gibbs.' Then I came with a girlfriend when she went to Gibbs to apply. We were heading up to a museum after her interview but we never made it. I began thinking about a secretarial job being a way to get a foothold in advertising or publishing. We came back and I talked to school officials about."

WHEN HE first mentioned the idea to his mother — at the tail end of a telephone conversation that evening — she said simply, "you're crazy." Koban asked her to think about it.

A later telephone call, Koban described this way:

"My mother answered and put my father on the phone. I guess she thought maybe he could snap me back to reality. I think I started talking even before he had the phone to his ear —I knew I had to keep the initiative because I couldn't afford to let him get the first word in. Then I'd just be listening —he likes to talk."

Both parents finally came around and on July 7 Stephen Koban went to school. He insists being the only male member of a class of 38 doesn't even distract him from his studies. He called stenography challenging, and as for typing:

"I had my own style of typing when I came here — what I called the Biblical system. seek and ye shall find. Now I'm learning to type without peeking."

AS FOR THE girls' reaction to their male classmate: "At first there were a few giggles, and I still get gapes from anyone who doesn't know about me. but things have settled down. I feel sorry for the teachers — they have to change their speech patterns. They start out, 'Now girls . . .' and then they have to add, 'And Mr. Koban.' "

Is he dating his classmates? "Yes and no," he said. "I date one girl — the one I knew before I came here — nd there's a question of marriage. I'm not dating in general, I've got the one I want."

TEACHERS HAVE had to change their speech patterns since he enrolled at Katharine Gibbs Secretarial School, says Stephen Koban. "They start out, 'Now, girls . . .' and then they have to add, 'and Mr. Koban,' " he says. Koban, a recent graduate of the University of Ohio, is the first male to attend the secretarial school in New York City and commutes daily from his home in Peekskill, N.Y. (UPI Telephoto)

Gourmet Cooking And What It Means

NEW YORK (UPI) —In case you've ever wondered, hear this:

Gourmet cooking is the art of making good food taste better. One expert defines gourmet foods as "products with extra quality." Some think any meal that does more than just satisfy hunger pangs probably is a gourmet meal.

Demand For Simple Satin Evening Dress

Jerry Silverman says his firm's collection of simple satin evening dresses, long and short, is in response to women all across the country who have told him, in his travels, "please, no more beads, no heavy embroidery on dresses." His designer, Shannon Rodgers, quotes one distressed woman searching for a simple satin dress: "My husband gave me a beautiful diamond necklace last year. Now he's saying 'Listen, if you're not going to wear it, give it back. I can use the money.'"

With Pound Cake

Clean Mats, Area Rugs In Washing Machine

Bath mats and area rugs up to four by six feet can be cleaned in your home washing machine. The secret to restoring the look of newness to small rugs is to wash them in a mild detergent and tumble them dry, advises the Carpet and Rug Institute.

If tumbling action is not available, then hang or spread the rugs in the shade until they are dry and brush them lightly with a stiff brush.

Forced air from a vacuum cleaner or fan is helpful, too, for faster drying.

Because dyes and colors in floor coverings, as in all types of furnishing materials, have a tendency to bleed, classify the rugs by color before placing them in the washing machine.

Whites and very light colors can be washed together, but dark colors should be washed separately.

Story Behind Southern Crossing's Obit

By BENJAMIN SHORE
(I-J Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Although the Coast Guard announced last week it had denied a permit for the proposed southern crossing bridge across San Francisco Bay, the decision actually was reached seven months earlier.

This is revealed in a study of the Coast Guard's file on the state of California's application for a navigational permit for the bridge.

However, the bridge proposal was killed not for any navigational reason, but because of major adverse environmental factors associated with the crossing.

Furthermore, the file makes clear that the decision was approved by the White House, despite the fact that the Coast Guard felt the bridge should be built.

California applied for the permit in August 1969, and it looked like a routine matter to the Coast Guard. Hearings were held in San Francisco in March 1970.

In September 1970, Coast Guard commandant, Adm. Chester R. Bender forwarded to his boss, Transportation Secretary John Volpe, a five-paragraph report on the possible environmental impact of the bridge. (Such reports are required before any federal decision that might affect the environment.)

Bender, in urging approval of the permit, saw no environmental harm in the bridge, which would span the bay from Hunter's Point in San Francisco to the City of Alameda.

"The long-term social, economic and political benefits of the Southern Crossing outweigh the adverse environmental effects," Bender told Volpe.

Volpe's acting assistant secretary for environment and urban systems, Michael Cafferty, sent the report back to the Coast Guard for more study. After brief resistance by Bender, the Coast Guard enlarged its five-paragraph report to five pages. It was mailed in early January 1971, to 15 federal agencies and 18 state and local agencies for their comments.

Cafferty had a few of his own, and in a February 1971, memo to Volpe, he not only criticized the Coast Guard for its shallow study but also laid out a wide-ranging environmental argument against the bridge.

This memo set the tone of the administration's study of the bridge, and the file indicates the bridge never had a fighting chance from that day on.

Volpe, cleared by the White House, explained this to Gov. Ronald Reagan when the two conferred in Washington on Feb. 22. On March 10, Reagan told Sacramento reporters he was "reconsidering" his support of the bridge.

The key argument against the bridge was its possible harm to the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system, a billion-dollar alternative to the congestion, fumes and freeways of automotive commuting.

The report of the Administration's Council on Environmental Quality summed up the pro-BART argument: "The BART system has been widely regarded as one of the most visible, hopeful mass transit experiments. Should it fail, other cities may lose faith."

The freeways that would be spawned by the new bridge also posed environmental damage, the government argued. Most of the reports from federal agencies said the additional freeways would lead to more low-density sprawl around the bay, as well as increase air pollution by encouraging more commuters to drive.

A precedent for denying the bridge permit on environmental grounds already had been set by the Transportation Department in the case of a bridge across the Ohio River at Weirton, W. Va. The bridge was wanted solely to allow smokey coke ovens to be built on a river island.

Innocent Plea To Robbery

Donald Clayton Nivens, 37, of Larkspur, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of attempted robbery.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Nivens was arrested Aug. 25 after a San Anselmo woman was attacked in her car in San Rafael. She fended off the attacker and got the license number of his car, which was traced to Nivens, according to San Rafael police.

Guilty Pleas In Burglary

Mario Jeff Foglesong, 18, of San Anselmo, and Vincent James Holsten, 19, of San Rafael, have pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of burglary.

They were bound over to Marin Superior Court where Holsten is to be sentenced Sept. 20, and Foglesong Oct. 18.

Holsten will also be sentenced on a misdemeanor charge of possessing narcotics paraphernalia, to which he also pleaded guilty.

Foglesong was arrested Aug. 11 when he and another man walked into a police stakeout at the Greenbrae Pet Hospital.

Holsten escaped police that night, but was arrested the next day on a warrant.

DRAMA REVIEW

Keen Commentary On Ghetto Life

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — "The Moonlight File," which opened last night at the On Broadway Theater, is a slice of life as current as today's headlines.

While billed as a comedy, the Mick Daugherty vehicle is more of a commentary on some of the social ills facing the nation today. And the conclusions that Daugherty draws are not pretty. But he laces his script with humor in showing how it is in the ghetto.

Using any "major city" as his base, Daugherty brings to life three believable characters in a jungle of walkup flats, welfare cheating and black and white hatreds.

Basing his thesis on a welfare case, the playwright lets the cast romp through some delightful black humor. With an eye on young aspiring actors, director G. Tito Shaw has cast the show excellently.

Wendell Burton, formerly of Novato, plays Claude Proctor Hazlitt, a social worker caught up in the amours of his client. Burton's charm is his youthfulness and innocent facial expressions. And also the young actor, who got his start at Sonoma State College, has a keen sense of timing in line delivery.

Burton, who was first introduced to San Francisco audiences as the lead in the long-running, "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown," perfectly typifies an innocent "honky."

Marge Eliot as Honey Moonlight, his client, is excellent as the hooker, who lives by the rules of the ghetto and who sees life as a pair of gold shoes, a gold dress, red label Scotch and a man in her bed. Honey's cavortings would make Truman Capote's innocent Holly Golightly blush.

As Honey's slow-moving, but quick-witted protector, sometimes lover and babysitter, Quincy Short in his professional stage debut is on equal footing with his companions.

Leon Ericksen has given the cast a realistic setting — a broken down walkup flat — to play their games out, but too often the cast is stymied by Daugherty's over abundant prose.

While Daugherty's ending is the only believable one possible, he should take his shears to the script for a really fine evening of theater.

The play will be at the On Broadway Theater for an extended run before stops in Detroit and Baltimore and then a theater in New York.

The play will be presented on a Tuesday through Friday run at 8:30 p.m.; Saturdays at 7 and 10:30 p.m. and Sundays, at 3 and 7:30 p.m.

"THE MOONLIGHT FILE" — Two-act comedy by Mick Daugherty. Directed by G. Tito Shaw and production designed by Leon Ericksen. The case: Marge Eliot, Honey Moonlight; Wendell Burton, Claude Proctor Hazlitt, and Quincy Short, Junior Faulkner.

'HARVEY STARS' — Gig Young and Shirley Booth star in "Harvey," a revival of Mary Chase's comedy about Elwood P. Dowd, his harried sister Veta L. Simmons and a giant white rabbit. The comedy presented by the American Conservatory Theater, is at the Geary Theater in San Francisco through Sept. 11.

'Prince' Romanoff Dies; Self-Styled Nobleman

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Michael Romanoff, whose aristocratic airs and self-styled title of Prince of Russia turned him into a debonair Hollywood personality in the 1920s and 1930s, died Wednesday at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Romanoff, whose age was listed variously as 78 or 81 at his death, was hospitalized Friday after suffering a heart attack.

Throughout his zany Hollywood escapades he steadfastly claimed he was one of White Russian nobility. He also was the owner of the famous Romanoff's Restaurant in Beverly Hills.

When he came to Hollywood in 1927—with an Oxford accent, spats, a walking stick and mustachioed—he posed as a newly arrived Russian prince and was gladly accepted by the movie community.

He joined in a swirl of cocktail parties, film premieres and an occasional overnight stay in jail.

Reporters checking his background finally caught up with him and produced evidence the real Prince Romanoff was killed during the Russian revolution July 18, 1918.

But the disclosure did not come before he had, in addition to the prince title, passed himself off successfully as nationally known artist and illustrator and Russian grand duke.

At the end of the charade he disappeared for a year and later said he had been deported. When he returned to Hollywood, he opened the first of Romanoff's restaurants in 1939.

It quickly became the focal point of the movie colony and several incidents, such as fist fights, involving famous actors and actresses brought it national attention.

He later owned restaurants in Palm Springs and San Francisco.

Romanoff contended he had been deported 10 times but in 1958 the U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill giving him citizenship. After it passed the Senate and was signed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, he swore his allegiance.

"I hereby renounce any title to the claim that I am prince of all the Russians," he declared.

He retired in 1962. Survivors include his widow, Gloria, 47. Services were pending at Pierce Brothers Mortuary, Hollywood.

Bridge Panel Endorses Employee Pay Schedule

Salaries totaling $3.7 million a year for 293 employees in the Golden Gate Bridge District's bus system were endorsed yesterday by the finance-auditing committee.

The employee force, including 223 drivers, will be hired in increasing numbers from now to February, when the full system will be in operation.

The first of the 152 buses will arrive in a few weeks, and the system is scheduled to start running by Dec. 1.

The committee endorsed the salary schedule and organizational chart as proposed by Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White with one minor change — in White's own salary. His proposal showed his annual salary at $26,500, overlooking the 7 per cent hike given last month to all employees.

The committee added the hike to White's salary.

White compared the salary schedule to those of other transit operators, noting that the district's salaries would be considerably below those paid by the San Francisco Municipal Railway.

The committee's recommendation will go to the full board for its approval on Sept. 10.

Youth Denies Stealing Cars

Timothy Guy Tuttle, 18, of no known address, pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Municipal Court to two counts of car theft.

Preliminary hearing was set for next Wednesday.

Tuttle was arrested Monday in possession of two cars reported stolen, according to San Rafael Police, who said he might have used one of several master keys found in his possession to open the car doors.

Free Tipping At Men's Store Runs Aground

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Since the BMT men's clothing store began serving free alcoholic drinks to potential buyers, the store received national publicity and business was good.

But not only customers got the word, the Ohio Department of Liquor Control took note.

"The store was visited by one of this department's investigators," Don B. Laws, deputy director, said Wednesday. "It is illegal to use free drinks as a business attraction. The store has discontinued the practice."

Store official Tim Kenner said he had received newspaper clippings from across the country on the free drinks policy.

"A store in Syracuse, N.Y. and one in Pennsylvania wanted to adopt the plan too," Kenner said.

The store started the free alcoholic drink policy during last year's Christmas holidays and also provided coffee for non-alcoholic drinkers.

"Now we're only serving coffee," Kenner said.

Youth Named To Demo Panel

Richmond Young of Ross, a student at the College of Marin, has been named to the Marin County Democratic Central Committee — the first 18-year-old in the county to be seated on a central committee.

Young, president of the Marin County Young Democrats, was named Tuesday night to the seat vacated by the resignation of Charles Mitchell of San Rafael. Young was elected unanimously after being nominated by Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael, reported committee member Jack R. Felson of Forest Knolls.

The Marin County Republican Central Committee has 18-year-old associate members, but none sits as a regular member of the committee.

Horoscopes, But Why Not True Scientific Findings?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As science steadily piles up new understanding of the universe, the populace at large remains ignorant of the strange concepts evolved to explain creation and its subsequent development.

This strikes Dr. Paul Couderc of Paris as an extremely dangerous situation. It provides an open field for the charlatans who are always present to prey on human credulity bred of ignorance.

Until he retired in 1969, Couderc was head astronomer of the famous Paris Observatory. In an article recently published by the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), he proposed "an antidote for antiscience."

What's needed, according to Couderc, is a universal program to make the findings of science known to everybody. It should start with children.

Most persons now agree that the earth is sperical rather than flat, and that nobody is in danger of stepping off its edges into some abyss of no return.

But how many grasp the Einsteinian ideas of space-time, the curvature of space around massive bodies, and of an expanding universe in which matter is merely congealed energy and energy is simply another form of matter?

Yet, most scientists believe, these are facts of nature—facts which govern all of us and everything. If a way could be found to popularize such concepts and teach them in grade school, children would grow up accepting them "as standing to reason."

At the moment, science is being widely cursed as the author of technological inventions which, while improving the lot of man in many ways, has blighted his environment in others.

But science by definition is the search for truth, and in the absence of early instilled understanding of this fact, the charlatans and antiscience forces are thriving as never before since the Middle Ages, according to Couderc.

Couderc cited the revival in popularity of astrology, medical quackery, spiritualism, and the occult.

This may seem paradoxical in the atomic-space era. But, says Couderc, "pseudo science is quick to profit from the achievements of true science."

He regretted the fact that whereas many French newspapers carry no science column, many do "devote a fatuous column every day to astrology," which purports to read human destiny from the motions of heavenly bodies.

Such columns generally include horoscopes which foretell events in an individual's life as indicated by positions of the planets in the period when he was born.

You can read your own horoscope in many a U.S. newspaper, too.

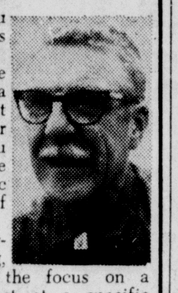
Getting Selective About Focusing



When you have objects contained within the frame of a picture that are both near and far, you encounter one of the basic problems of photography: focus. Generally speaking, the sharper the focus on a specific object at a specific distance, the more blurred other elements will be.

This "problem" can also be an advantage. If you're on vacation this month of August, you'll be taking scenic pictures often, of mountains or a bridge or historic building in the distance. By including nearby tree branches and focusing on those distant mountains, the branches will be perspective to your scene.

By the same token, if you're photographing flowers in your own garden, you'll want the flower itself shaprly in focus, but the background will be more effective if it is softly blurred, thus emphasizing the dominant flowers.

Experiment with focus, and you'll find it is an important element in more creative photography. Whatever you need for your picture hobby, to make it more creative and rewarding, you'll find it in our complete stocks . . . the names you know in equipment and supplies, film and accessories, priced right!

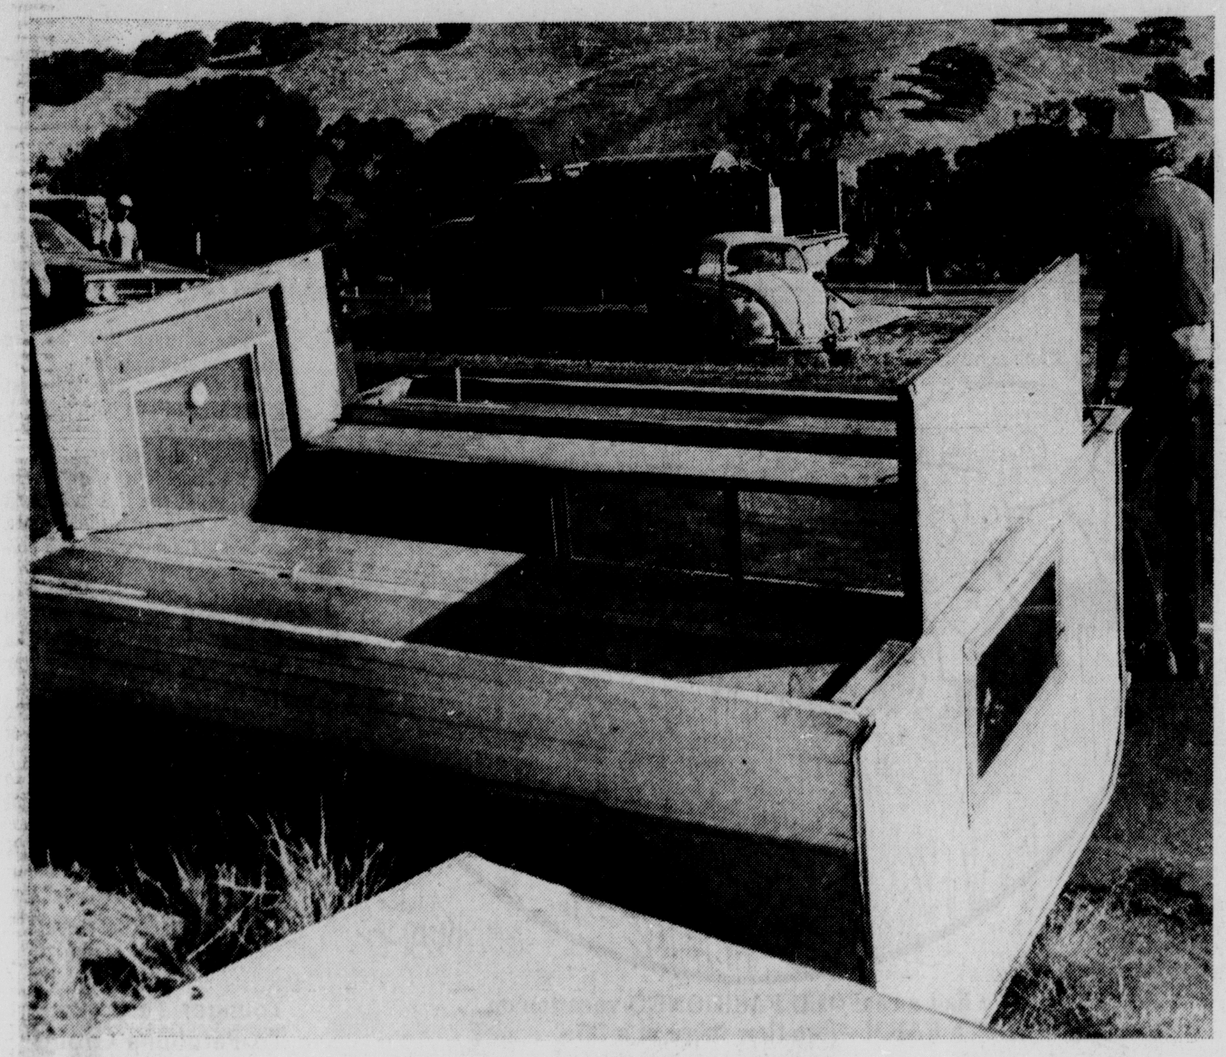
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1971 19



ILL MET ON 101

This camper section lies like a fallen Goliath while a David-sized Volkswagen (background) rests stolidly after their encounter. The camper, riding on a pickup truck, came a cropper when the truck, driven by Gerald Hammers, 50, of Klamath Falls, Ore., and the VW, driven by Michael A. Keith of 509 Willoughby Street, Petaluma, collided on Highway 101 just south of the Sonoma-Marin border today. Hammerssuffered a fractured collarbone and Keith escaped unscathed.

Divergent Views On Penal System

By MARY LEYDECKER

Wildly divertent views on "Our Present Penal System . . . Adequate or Inadequate?" were presented today by three men discussing prisons in the wake of the Aug. 21 bloodbath at San Quentin.

The three, who appeared on a KTIM radio panel, all have had experience with prisons and prisoners but their backgrounds have apparently led them to arrive at very different viewpoints.

Dr. Leo S. Stanley, who retired in 1951 after serving as chief of surgery at San Quentin since 1913, said prisons would be unnecessary if everyone obeyed moral concepts such as the Golden Rule. He viewed them as necessary institutions for "taking out of circulation" those who break laws.

Rev. Byron Eshelman, due to retire this month after 20 years as a San Quentin chaplain, said "there never can be a successful prison" and described those on the outside as "just as depraved" as those in prison.

The youngest panelist, Mark G. Dowie, of the Coordinating Council of Prison Organizations, asked for prison reforms, primarily the abolition of the indeterminate sentence.

Dr. Stanley blamed the need for prisons on lack of moral training during the youth of persons who break laws but defended prisons as places where people can reform if they want to.

"If a man behaves (in prison), he can get an education, work at a job and even get out in the forests in work camps," the doctor said.

Even though the legislature has never mandated rehabilitation as a goal for prisons, efforts have been continuously made through the years, Dr. Stanley said.

He strongly defended the indeterminate sentence as a reform measure brought about to avoid abuses by judges.

The indeterminate sentence "gives a man the opportunity to improve his conduct within prison" and then be paroled, Dr. Stanley said. Before the indeterminate sentence, "if the judge said '20 years,' a man had to serve 20 years," he added.

He also said he didn't think it was fair that "a judge in Butte County could give 20 years for a robbery and a judge in Los Angeles, five years."

Dowie disagreed, saying that the "discretionary power has been taken away from judges and given to nine men appointed by the governor who serve four-year terms."

"The assumption that prison administrators can modify behavior" was attacked by Dowie, who said that the concept "becomes doubly ridiculous when the man is locked up in a unisexual society."

He agreed with Dr. Stanley that "people can rehabilitate themselves while in prison" but he didn't think that meeting requirements of parole boards necessarily fitted people for life outside prison.

Dowie advocated treating prisons as "real institutions of society such as schools and churches" and bringing them under community control.

Eshelman, who said his views had made him unpopular with San Quentin officials, offered no concrete suggestions for prison reform but said that there are "no simplistic answers" . . . "except to confess it's beyond us."

His statements that "there are no law abiding citizens" and that those in prisons are "establishment scapegoats" brought angry response from Dr. Stanley as well as listeners to the program.

To a statement by Eshelman that "prisoners have the same malady as everyone else" and that "people who run prisons need rehabilitation as much as prisoners," Dr. Stanley snorted, "Nonsense."

Stanley said that society cannot condone crimes like "knocking a poor old lady over the head and stealing a few dollars."

Young Dowie agreed with Eshelman to the extent that "there are an awful lot of people that get away with breaking the law one way or another."

The Aug. 21 violence at the prison was touched on by the three only briefly. Eshelman described it as "chickens coming home to roost" because of the way prisoners are treated.

Dowie called it a "black miracle" that a gun "ended up in the hand of a man considered by authorities as the most dangerous person at San Quentin."

The panel discussion on KTIM's Sounding Board program will be repeated at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Deadline Set For Library Architects

Deadline for architects to apply for interviews on preliminary planning for San Rafael Library expansion will be Sept. 15, the city library board decided last night.

The board last night interviewed David P. Suloff, Sausalito architect. Milton W. Chambers, San Rafael architect, will be interviewed at 7:45 p.m. today in the children's room of the library.

School Busses Being Guarded

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Armed guards with trained dogs are watching over the chartered buses the city will use in its new school integration plan, company officials say.

"We don't want any trouble; all we're concerned about is driving buses safely," Virgil Stroud, general manager of Associated Charter Bus Co., said Wednesday. He said the vigil was "a normal precaution."

Associated, a Van Nuys firm, will operate 180 buses for the San Francisco Unified School District to achieve a court-ordered school integration plan. The contract is for $1.5 million.

Bingham Still At Large; FBI Says He Had A Valid Passport

Stephen M. Bingham, missing East Bay attorney wanted in connection with five bloody murders at San Quentin on Aug. 21, held a valid passport and may have fled the country, federal officials said.

Although the Federal Bureau of Investigation said it had "no confirmed reports" that Bingham has left the United States, a fugitive warrant was issued yesterday because "there is probable cause to believe he has fled the state of California."

Bingham, 29-year-old grandson of a former Connecticut governor and U.S. senator, is accused of smuggling a gun to Soledad Brother George Jackson setting off a bloodbath in which Jackson and five others died.

Bingham, Jackson's last visitor, has not been seen since a few hours after the violence at the prison.

It is believed he smuggled a gun to Jackson in a tape recorder.

At the prison today, officials described the institution as quiet with more normal routines being resumed each day.

Officials would not confirm or deny reports that a prisoner wounded in the escape attempt, Allan Mancino, has been transferred from the prison hospital to another Department of Corrections facility.

Sources said, however that Mancino, who suffered leg wounds from cement fragments after a guard fired during the aftermath of the bloody episode, has been taken to the state prison hospital at Vacaville.

It is believed that Mancino was moved to protect him as a possible witness.

Charges and countercharges continued to fly yesterday in the wake of the bloody violence.

Two black state legislators who visited the prison have called for a legislative investigation.

"I can't understand how anyone can go into the San Quentin adjustment center (scene of the escape attempt) and come out without saying the conditions there are horrible," Assemblyman John J. Miller, D-Oakland, said.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, said an investigation is "especially urgent since California officials have consistently refused to consider shutting down the facility."

In San Francisco, the president of the American Trial Lawyers Association, Marvin E. Lewis, called for disciplinary steps against lawyers who "tear down their own temple of justice."

Lewis spoke at a training session for 400 attorneys and said that among those to be disciplined should be any lawyer who helps a client escape from prison.

Lewis, a San Francisco trial lawyer, also noted that his association is forming a commission to investigate the need for reform in prisons, including San Quentin.

On a television interview last night, San Quentin Sgt. Stanley Laffsa said outside agitators and the permissiveness of the courts were largely responsible for the upheaval in prisons.

"Nobody seems to mention that these people in here have committed a crime," Laffsa said.

A fellow officer, Sgt. Al Boynton said he's read a lot about the death of Jackson but "nobody's saying anything about the poor officers who died."

The two sergeants and officer Martin Witkosky were interviewed on KQED.

Driver, 46, Hospitalized In Crash

A 46-year-old San Rafael man was hospitalized today following an early morning accident on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, police reported.

James Lloyd Clark of 1108 Tamalpais Avenue, San Rafael was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General hospital with multiple facial cuts, hospital authorities reported.

Clark was westbound on Francisco Boulevard at 12:25 a.m. when his car hit the rear of another westbound car near Grand Avenue, driven by Stephen N. Reist, 17, of 124 Seminary Road, San Anselmo, police reported.

Clark's car continued down the street, hitting a sign post knocking it over, went another 198 feet to a street barricade, knocking it over and then 183 feet until it stopped against the construction at the end of Francisco Boulevard, police reported. The case is still under investigation.

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Kennon R. Gilbert, manager of the Sonoma County Taxpayers Association, has been named by the county administrator's office to head the new Sonoma County Job Development program.

The project, operating with a two-year federal grant of $1.2 million, is designed to reduce the county's unemployment rate of 8.6 per cent.

CHP Gives Details On Freeway Accident

The accident in which 12 persons were injured Tuesday night on Highway 101 in Novato occurred when a car, traveling at about 80 miles an hour, passed one vehicle, then cut back in front of it, striking the rear of a truck ahead in the same lane, the California Highway Patrol said today.

Officers said the driver of the car, Reuban D. Gaynor, 40, of Richmond, had a strong odor of alcohol on his breath, bloodshot eyes, dilated pupils and slurred speech.

The report today was turned over to the district attorney's office for investigation, officers said.

According to the patrol report, the driver of the car Gaynor passed, Thomas M. Pong, 19, of San Francisco, said the Model A stake bed truck carrying 11 teen-agers had two visible lights in the rear.

Pong told officers Gaynor passed him at 75 to 80 miles an hour then swerved in front of him hitting the rear end of the truck, throwing 10 of the 11 youths onto the highway.

Gaynor told the highway patrol he did not see any lights on the truck.

The accident occurred at 11:30 p.m. in the southbound lanes of Highway 101 near the Marin County line.

Gaynor, who had been admitted to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael with forehead injuries, was released yesterday in good condition.

Mark Larsor., 17, of 1462 Donna Street, Novato, the most seriously injured youth, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital.

Novatan Denies Inn Burglary

I-J Special Report

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO — A Novato man has pleaded innocent to a burglary charge and is scheduled to appear at 2 p.m. Sept. 13 for a preliminary hearing.

Joseph Edwin Tucker, 31, of 50 Calipso Shores, is free on $2,500 bail.

Tucker was arrested and arraigned on a burglary charge in San Mateo County Municipal Court, Northern Judicial District, in South San Francisco.

He was arrested Aug. 12 after a chase that started at the Holiday Inn near San Francisco Airport when an alarm went off that had been installed to protect television sets from theft, according to police.

No Complaint Against Pair

No complaint has been filed in Marin Municipal Court against two men arrested Monday in Fairfax.

The district attorney's office reported complaints would not be filed pending further investigation.

Stone Marston Uhl, 20, of San Geronimo and Edward Paul Leclair, 20, of San Anselmo, were booked on suspicion of concealing a color television set that had been reported stolen.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 2, the 245th day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Vrigo.

American poet and humorist Eugene Field was born Sept. 3, 1850.

On this day in history:

In 1935 one of the worst hurricanes to hit the U.S. mainland ripped through the Florida Keys, killing more than 365 persons.

In 1945 Japan signed an unconditional surrender aboard the U.S. battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay, ending World War II.

In 1964 World War I hero Alvin York died at the age of 76.

In 1968 the death toll in an earthquake which hit Iran was fixed at 12,000

A thought for today: American Gen. Douglas MacArthur said, "It is fatal to enter any war without the will to win it."

Younger To Speak To Petaluma Group

State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger is scheduled to speak on the "Crisis in the Courts" Sept. 27 at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium, Petaluma.

The 7 P.M. dinner session is sponsored by the Petaluma Area Republican Women Federated. About 350 persons are expected to attend.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Saving Of Just One Trick May Lead To Achieving Bid

The principle of keeping the dangerous opponent out of the lead is most important at no-trump contracts since you have to worry about being swamped by an entire long suit. Even at a trump contract, however, you must still keep the dangerous opponent out; saving one trick may be important.

CLEVER SHIFT

West leads the king of hearts and then cleverly shifts to the deuce of clubs. Who is the dangerous opponent (if any), and what can you do about keeping that opponent out of the lead?

East is the villain of the piece. If East wins a trick he will lead diamonds through your king. This will give the enemy two diamond tricks if West happens to hold the ace of diamonds. You cannot afford to lose two diamonds, one heart and one club.

West is not dangerous. If West leads diamonds, your king will win a trick. You can afford to give up one diamond trick.

DEVELOP CLUBS

You must plan to develop dummy's clubs in order to get rid of your diamonds. If the clubs break badly you can eventually play the diamonds in the hope that East has the ace. But you must develop the clubs in such a way as to keep East out of the lead.

Win the second trick with the ace of clubs and return the queen of hearts, discarding the nine of clubs from your hand. This gives West an unexpected heart trick but prevents East from gaining the lead in clubs.

BEST DEFENSE

If West leads a trump (his best defense), win with dummy's nine, ruff a club; lead a trump to the seven, and ruff another club. Now lead a trump to the ace and discard two diamonds on dummy's established clubs.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 2
♥ - 9 7 6 4 2
♣ - K Q 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts.

This promises strong trump support (often five or more trumps, always four trumps or more), a side singleton or void suit, and not more than nine points in high cards.

International Pet Show Set

The Rohnert Park Cultural Arts Commission and Recreation Department will hold an "International" pet show at 11:30 a.m. Sept. 12 in the Benicia Pool parking lot.

Ribbons will be awarded the first four places among these categories: cats and kittens, other pets, groups (4-H, scouts, clubs), dogs and puppies and horses and ponies.

Registration is at 11 a.m. Participants are asked to dress themselves and their pets in international costume.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Best Preventive To Cholera Is Personal Hygiene, Good Water

During 1970, the seventh cholera pandemic in 150 years moved out of its old Asian haunts and into the USSR, Turkey, Czechoslovakia and Africa. According to World Health Organization (WHO), at least 46 countries were affected. Cholera appears as a very different entity in different places. It has been dubbed the "iceberg" disease because most cases are mild enough to pass unnoticed. Vibrio cholera, the causative organism, can be harbored by carriers who spread but never get the disease. In contrast, some victims become seriously ill with diarrhea, vomiting, dehydration and collapse. Death results from severe dehydration which strikes with appalling suddenness.

RAPID IMPROVEMENT follows the use of intravenous solutions to replace the fluids lost from vomiting and diarrhea. Antibiotics, such as the tetracyclines, shorten the attack and eliminate the vibrio. These measures have reduced the death rate from 3o to one per cent.

Cholera flourishes where hygiene is poor. It is passed along thru food and water contaminated by human waste. The best preventive is personal cleanliness and a good water supply. According to the World Health Organization "there are also moderately effective vaccines but they need improvement."

SINCE THE first pandemic, cholera has killed so many people that its bad reputation is difficult to shake, despite the fact that mortalities have been reduced to one per cent. The latest outbreaks have created no end of hysteria in certain countries. Exports from some of the affected countries have been forbidden, even though the materials have nothing to do with transmission of the disease. In many instances, cholera scares have had an adverse effect on tourism and above all the wariness of the reactions that the word c h o l e r a unleashes.

ESTIMATING FUTURE HEIGHT

A reader writes: My daughter is 35 inches tall but only two years old. Is there any way to determine whether she will continue to grow at this rate and will be a tall woman?

REPLY

In general, the height of an adult is about twice what it was when the individual was two years old. At this rate, this girl should be five feet, 10 inches t a l l, but women tend to be somewhat shorter when this rule is used. How tall are the mother and father?

LEG IS SHORTER

J. B. writes: When a person has had a fractured hip, why does one leg become a little shorter than the other?

REPLY

The answer depends upon the exact location of the fracture. Shortening occurs when there is overlapping of the broken ends, when a small part of the bone withers away, or the muscles atrophy.

SILVER NITRATE DROPS

L. L. N. writes: Why do doctors put medicine in a newborn baby's eyes?

REPLY

Silver nitrate drops are used as a prophylaxis against the spread of venereal disease to the eyes. Gonorrhea of the eyes of babies was one of the most common causes of blindness before health laws made this procedure mandatory.

ABDOMINAL DISTRESS

Mrs. G. w r i t e s : Are the symptoms of intestinal allergy and spastic colon the same?

REPLY

Both may produce abdominal cramping and diarrhea.

Nixon Invited To Attend Fair

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State Fair officials believe President Nixon, a native son, should visit the fair while he is at the Western White House so he can "move among Californians who are in a festive mood."

"We think the President should not go back to Washington without having the opportunity to have a fun day at the showcase of his native state," the officials said in a telegram sent to Nixon Wednesday.

"We are prepared to designate one of the remaining days of the fair as Presidential Day," the wire added. Last week about 75 persons were arrested when rock-throwing teen-agers engaged police equipped with riot gear in three nights of confrontations.

Time For Tennis Clubs Requested

The Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended that Fairfax tennis clubs be given a special time for use of the city's tennis courts.

Because the tennis clubs have helped in maintenance of the courts and helped install night lighting, the commission decided Tuesday night to ask City Adm. Robert E. Crowe to reserve the courts two nights a week for the clubs, according to Ernestine Healy, commission secretary.

Tony Barbera, recreation director, was given approval to use the city ball field on Saturday mornings for dog training classes if there was no conflict with use of the ball park.

The commission asked Crowe to see what action had been taken toward selling the pool table at the pavilion. The commission recommended their sale last Jan. 19, Mrs. Healy reported.

The commission discussed play equipment, rest rooms and other items which should go into the city park, but took no action on any recommendations for the park, she said.

Panel To Study Harbor Plan

A revised master plan for development of the Sausalito Yacht Harbor was taken under study last night by the Sausalito Planning Commission, Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt reported today.

He said the planners asked architect Roland Mays for two weeks to review his plan, which was changed to incorporate some revisions suggested by the commission at its July 21 meeting.

The commission will consider the proposal again at its Sept. 15 meeting, Borgwardt said.

In other business, the planners turned down a variance request from Robert Dunbar who had asked relief from city requirements to provide two offstreet parking spaces for a dwelling at 564 Bridgeway.

The commission granted Donald Duncan permission to divide a 12,000-square-foot lot at 66 Prospect Avenue into two parcels.

Nader Asserts Car Hazards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader says millions of late model cars are hazardous, partly because the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) is too slow in probing suspected defects.

Nader issued a list of faults Wednesday that included "exploding" side windows in General Motors cars, engine fires in the 1971 Mercury Capri, and "dangerous" motor mounts in Chevrolets.

In a letter to NHTSA Administrator Douglas W. Toms, Nader said there have been investigations of defective engine mounts on Chevrolets for more than a year, but no action. Although the agency's files contain evidence of the failure of energy absorbing steering columns, he said, there is no action.

Draft Ruling Is Challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federally funded agency that provides legal help to the indigent filed suit Tuesday seeking to employ conscientious objectors who want to work off their two years of alternate service.

The suit by the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation was filed in U.S. District Court and challenges a Selective Service rule against men working with it in lieu of military service.

Such a rule is arbitrary, unreasonable, capricious and unjustified the suit contended.

It also deprives the agency of workers who could advise indigents concerning Selective Service problems, the suit added.

Otepka Confident He'll Win Job

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Otto F. Otepka moved from a tiny room in the State Department to a luxurious office of the Subversive Activities Control Board three years ago but his work hasn't changed much.

He's still sitting and waiting.

Otepka has been a controversial figure since 1963 when State Secretary Dean Rusk ordered him fired from his $19,000-a-year job as chief security officer in the department for giving secret personnel documents to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee.

But Otepka remained on the payroll — sometimes at a lower salary — for several years while he appealed his dismissal. During that time, he was given a small office where he said his only assignment was to read the Congressional Record.

The Civil Service Commission ultimately refused to reinstate him in his old job. However, President Nixon in June, 1969, nominated him to fill an unexpired term — at a $36,000 salary — as a member of the SACB.

Some liberals opposed the nomination but the Senate gave its approval in a 61-28 vote for Otepka. The term ran out Aug. 9, 1970, and Nixon then proposed him for a full five-year appointment.

The Senate did not act on the President's request last year and the nomination was resubmitted by the White House this year. It was approved by the Judiciary Committee, 13 to 3, but there has not yet been a Senate vote on confirmation.

If the Senate adjourns again this year without voting on the nomination, Otepka's current recess appointment will expire and he will go off the payroll.

So, once again as at the State Department, he is watching and waiting, and hoping for a vote soon after the Senate reconvenes after the summer recess.

He says he is not worried about how the vote would come out.

"I feel very confident," he said in an interview. "Certainly the administration supports me."

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Internal Security Subcommittee to which Otepka gave the Department documents, has applauded Nixon's nomination and described Otepka as "a man who has performed a vital service to his country."

Some liberals, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., among them, charged Otepka associated too much with rightist groups.

A syndicated columnist, Carl T. Rowan, recently described Otepka as "a sort of Daniel Ellsberg in reverse." Ellsberg is accused of furnishing newspapers with classified Defense Department documents — the celebrated "Pentagon papers" on origins and conduct of the Vietnam War.

In the interview, Otepka rejected the comparison with Ellsberg. Otepka said he gave no classified documents to newspapers, but merely provided senators, at their request, with information to support his own sworn testimony.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt created the SACB in 1939 to help the attorney general draw up a list of organizations considered to be subversive. The Supreme Court in recent years sharply curbed the board's powers, and it was virtually dormant until the Johnson administration referred some cases to it.

Last year, Otepka said, the Nixon administration referred 15 cases to the Board.

Early last July, President Nixon issued an executive order extending the board's jurisdiction to cover "violent-action oriented organizations" that deny others their constitutional or legal rights.

Otepka said former attorneys general were to blame for the board's long period of inaction.

"The board is not a self-generating agency, and may not begin an investigation or initiate work on its own," Otepka said. "The former Attorney Generals — Robert F. Kennedy, Nicholas Katzenbach, and Ramsey Clark — were antagonistic to the board, so the fault lay there."

He said Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told the House Internal Security Committee that he planned to send 25 cases to the board for investigation. The list is expected soon, Otepka said.

Meanwhile, he said, the SACB is drawing up regulations for approval by the Office of Management and Budget, under Nixon's new directive, and is preparing to rewrite the list of subversive organizations. He said it is outdated and estimated that more than half the named should be removed.

Switzerland To Recognize Hanoi

BERN, Switzerland (UPI)— The Swiss government announced today it will grant diplomatic recognition to North Vietnam, but left the level of relations open to negotiations with Hanoi.

In an official communique following the regular meeting of the seven-man Swiss cabinet this morning, the government said it had decided to recognize Hanoi "because of international developments...and to give existing relations an official character."

College Orchestra Slates Auditions

College students, young musicians and adults compose the community orchestra which is conducted by John H. Myers.

Fine, Probation On Grand Theft

Sally Jean Taylor, 29, of San Rafael, has been fined $315 in Marin Municipal Court for misdemeanor grand theft.

Judge David Menary Jr. also placed her on probation for one year.

She was originally charged with felony counts of grand theft and burglary, but the burglary charge was dismissed when she pleaded guilty to the reduced grand theft charge in July.

She was arrested May 21 outside the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center after taking clothing valued at $395 from the store, San Rafael police reported.

JIM GILMARTIN

New Staff Member
An Exuberant Man

During the past month you've probably noticed a new by-line on these pages. It belongs to Ron Lent who has replaced Dave Einstein on our ace staff.

Einstein has forsaken the Marin County sports beat to move to Israel with his attractive wife, Diane, there to toil on a farm and study the Hebrew language. He had excellent training here, sweating over a hot typewriter and deciphering scorebooks.

I mention the change in our sports staff simply to notify my parish pastor that I already have given up Einstein for Lent.

I haven't heard from Einstein since his departure, but Lent tells me he understands Dave already has become the first Israelite ever to be offered an athletic scholarship to the University of Cairo. The Egyptians want him to be first string javelin catcher on their track and field team, having completely exhausted their supply of returning lettermen. Einstein rejected the offer, pointlessly, I thought.

Anyway, before he left, Einstein promised he would cover the Matzo Bowl for us next New Year's Day. It just might be a six-day assignment.

The Marin sporting gentry will appreciate Lent, an exuberant young man of 23 summers. An early riser, he reports to work ahead of his appointed hour, eager to plunge into his assignments. While the rest of us are reluctant to telephone news sources at the dawning hour of 6 a.m., Lent relishes the assignment. The kid has telephonitis.

While the rest of the world sleeps, Ron is Ma Bell's best friend. "Good morning, coach," he chirps brightly. "Am I per chance your alarm clock this morning? Hah-Hah. Got any goodies for this bright morning?"

I can just hear the yawning and growling on the other end of the line. But so far, Lent has enjoyed remarkable success. Thus far, only five of his news contacts have slammed the phone in his ear.

As I said, the Marin sporting gentry will appreciate this bright young man. Good morning, coach. Rise and shine.

ONE OF Marin's newest tax payers is Bobby Lutz, former Davis Cupper and Wimbledon doubles champion (with Stan Smith) who is now under professional contract with World Championship Tennis.

A bachelor, Lutz recently purchased a home in Tiburon and already has established himself with the local gentry as "quite a swinger," with or without a racquet.

You might catch this young star in action at the Tiburon Peninsula Club courts one of these days practicing for the Redwood Bank's International Open Championships scheduled Sept. 25-Oct. 3 in Berkeley and San Francisco. His practice partner of late has been Barry MacKay of Ross, another ex-Davis Cup star who is serving as tourney director for the Redwood Bank.

The San Rafael-headquartered bank has in the offing what probably will be the best tennis tournament in the country this year. Especially since many of the top players like Rod Laver and his WCT cohorts who have withdrawn from this week's U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y. will play in the Bay Area event. According to Chairman MacKay: "We'll have all 32 of the contract pros from WCT along with 32 independent pros and the country's best amateurs in our competition."

MARIN COUNTY Woman's Bowling Association is losing one of its brightest personalities this weekend as Dottie Reiman, one of the county's high average keglerettes and member of the "600" Club, is pulling up stakes and moving to her native Mississippi. Mrs. Reiman's legion of friends are hoping her defection will be brief. And if you compare Ol' Miss. with Marvelous Marin, it will be.

Speaking of keglerettes, Marilyn Epidendio, Marin's representative in the recent Ladies West Coast Match Game eliminations in San Francisco, picked up $70 for her seventh place finish.

MARIN TARS ROAR FOR SEASON IN STORE

College of Marin backs and ends sprinted on the Kentfield campus baseball field yesterday for the first of two practice sessions. This 19-man group joined some 16 linemen in training for next Saturday's scrimmages with Diablo Valley College. Coach Dick Read's Tars will go through double practices tomorrow, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, hoping to round into top form for the Diablo Valley encounter. On that day, DVC will bring its defense to Marin for a two-hour battle starting at 10 a.m. The Tar defense will return the favor by travelling to Pleasant Hill for a 120-minute war against the Diablo Valley offense at 5 p.m. that same day.

A's Big Number Reduced To 12

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The Oakland A's have all but cinched the title in the American League West with 27 games to play and a 17-game lead over second-place Kansas City.

The A's came here Tuesday night with a two-game losing streak, routed the California Angels in two straight and headed for Minnesota where they open a four-game weekend series Friday after a day of rest today.

Manager Dick Williams plans to use Diego Segui, 9-5, and the fabulous Vida Blue, 23-6, in the Friday night doubleheader.

After his A's beat the Angels, 7-0, Wednesday night with Chuck Dobson pitching his first shutout of the year and Reggie Jackson hitting his 26th homer, Williams said:

"We haven't cinched the division yet. Our magic number is twelve. But I think now I will rest some of our fellows, some regulars, and take a look at some of the others ... like Garrett, he broke in with a bang with two hits and a walk."

Garrett is Adrian Garrett, 28year-old outfielder who was purchased from Tacoma and got his first and second major league hits Wednesday night.

"I've got to get my bullpen working," said Williams. "We've had 53 complete ball games."

Dobson ran his record to 15-3, letting the Angels down with seven scattered hits.

"You know, it's funny," he said. "Last year I had five shutouts but this year I just can't seem to get them very easily. Of course it doesn't really matter as long as we win."

Then he added with an impish grin, "I'm hitting too. You can help yourself a lot hitting."

The big right hander slashed a single to center in the sixth inning to score Rick Monday from third. Garrett opened the inning with a single off Andy Messersmith but was forced at second by Monday. Dick Green singled to send Monday to third and then Dobson got his hit. Green advanced to third and scored on Campy Campaneris' sacrifice fly to make it 5-0.

Jackson ran his RBI streak to nine games —he has 10 runs batted in for the last nine games during which he has hit six homers.

"As long as you play every day, you're bound to hit," said Jackson. "Hitting Messersmith is not easy.

"I think he has the best righthanded stuff in the league although he was a little off. The Angels have their problems. If he was with us, he'd be a 20-game winner."

"Andy deserved a better fate," said Angel manager Lefty Phillips.

Messersmith took his 13th loss against 14 victories. The A's got their first run in the third inning whem Campaneris walked and stole second. Jackson brought him home with a single to center.

In the fourth, Monday, walked and Green singled to left where Tony Gonzalez fielded the ball and threw wild to the infield. The ball stopped in

Kodes In Stunner Over Newcombe

NEW YORK (UPI)—"I feel great. I didn't expect to win one set, but I win three."

That was the reaction of Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia after his stunning 2-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-3 opening round victory over top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Wednesday.

"I'm not mad, just disgusted," said Newcombe, a Wimbledon two-time back to back champion. "I played awful tennis. My serve had no sting to it and after the first set, Jan just kept swinging away at everything. He had nothing to lose and everything he hit kept going in."

The shock of the top seed bowing out in the first round of the $160,000 tournament brought a huge grin from tournament chairman Bill Talbert, who had said that this would be a "wide open open."

Talbert had hoped for upsets and for some old familiar faces to come through for gate purposes. Pancho Gonzalez didn't disappoint him. The old lion of the court, now 43, disposed of another Wimbledon champion by defeating Bob Kreiss of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Pancho's patented act of complaining about the surface, the ball and the officials was played to the hilt to the delight of the announced attendance of 8,661, and Pancho, who won at Forest Hills before his first round opponent was born, now goes into the second round against Stan Matthews of Great Britain, who won a tiebreak marathon over Richard Russell of Jamaica, BWI, 6-7, 6-7, 7-6, 76, 6-3.

While Pancho was keeping faith with Talbert, Gussie Moran of the famous lace panties of two decades ago, failed, losing to Czechoslovakia's Alena Palmeova-West, 6-2, 6-3.

The quick exit of Gussie was the only notable moment in the first day's women's play. Second-seeded Rosemary Casals of San Francisco had some mild trouble before downing Betty Stove of the Netherlands, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3. Sixth seeded Judy Dalton of Australia whipped Vicke Berner of Canada, 6-0, 6-1 and eighth-seeded Julie Hedman of Houston briskly eliminated Marjorie Gengler of Locust Valley, N.Y. 6-3, 6-4.

The other men's seeds advanced without incident. Third-ranked Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., topped Dick Knight of Bellevue, Wash., 6-3, 6-4, 6-1. Sixth-seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., halted Davis Cup teammate Charles Pasarell of Santurce, P.R., 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 and the volatile Ilie Nastase of Romania halted Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico 6-2, 7-5, 6-4.

Carty Case: 3 Policemen Are Fired

ATLANTA (UPI)—Atlanta's aldermanic police committee, after a 7 1-2 hour hearing, early today fired three policemen accused of beating Atlanta Braves baseball player Rico Carty.

One of the officers called the trial "a railroad job."

"We were guilty before we went in there," said C.E. Turner.

Turner, L.D. Smith and R.E. McEarchern were charged with assaulting Carty Aug. 24 after the 31-year-old player from the Dominican Republic complained he was harassed by two white men while driving down a street. He said the men called him "nigger."

Carty testified he stopped his car when he saw a police car and reported the incident to patrolman McEarchern. The two men also stopped, Carty said, and attacked him and the policeman joined in the beating.

"I yelled, 'I'm Rico' ", Carty said.

He said the uniformed patrolman replied, "Who the hell cares who he is."

Carty, who led the National League in hitting last year, said the patrolman hit him in the face with a "slap jack." He said he suffered two black eyes, one of which may be permanently damaged, and a number of bruises.

Carty said the patrolman also hit his brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez, with a pistol.

He said McEarchern later told the two white men to leave. The men subsequently were identified as Turner and Smith, who were off-duty policemen and in plain clothes.

Raider Rookie Trio Missing, Presumed Cut

SANTA ROSA (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders never talk about player cuts, but three players are missing from training camp and the obvious conclusion is that they are victims of roster trimming.

Defensive lineman Tim Oesterling, wide receiver Frank Foreman and defensive back Clarence Oliver were not in camp Wednesday as the Raiders prepared for their exhibition game Saturday against San Francisco.

The Raiders also shifted Ted Koy from tight end to running back, where he played at the University of Texas. The shifting of Koy coincided with doubtful status for Saturday's game of rookie Clarence Davis, who underwent an examination for a damaged ankle.

The Koy change also may indicate Bob Moore, a rookie from Stanford, is proving a good backup man for tight end Ray Chester.

GIANTS GET DAY OFF

Back-To-Back Shutouts Leave Braves Reeling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Everything is coming up roses these days for the San Francisco Giants, which has to be bad news for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Giants are playing the kind of baseball of late which they did early in the year while running away from the opposition in the National League West.

In Wednesday's 4-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves, the Giants blended timely hitting, powerful pitching and a crisp defense that left the Braves wondering what it's all about.

Ralph Garr, Atlanta's young outfielder, made a couple of over-anxious throws in the first inning and the Giants took advantage to score a pair of unearned runs. In the third they combined a lusty double by Willie McCovey, singles by Al Gallagher and Chris Speier and an error by catcher Earl Williams into two more runs, and that was all she wrote.

Meanwhile, Speier, at short, Gallagher, at third, and McCovey, at first, pulled off half a dozen sparkling plays and John Cumbeland, the tough lefthander who rises to the occasion, limited the Braves to four hits.

"When Cumberland pitches like that," said manager Charlie Fox, "There isn't a team he can't beat. He kept the ball low, used his screwball to great advantage and had the Braves guessing what he was going to do next."

Cumberland, now 8-3, said he didn't pitch much differently this time than he had in the past, except that he worked extra hard on Hank Aaron and Williams, the young catcher-first baseman who has blossomed into a fine hitter, and a dangerous one, too.

"I feel I can get my fastball and screwball over for strikes anytime I like," said Cumberland, "so most of the time that's what I threw each batter on the first pitch because I wanted to get out in front.

"With Aaron and Williams, though, I changed the pattern. One time I started Hank off with a slider, another time with a curve, the third time with a fastball and the fourth time with a screwball. I did the same with Williams but I mixed the order around.

"I feel that anytime I can get those two out I have nothing to worry about."

Aaron flied out twice, grounded out and struck out. Williams flied out, struck out, singled and walked.

Three of the four hits off Cumberland were singles and the only man to reach second on him was Marty Perez, who doubled after one out in the eighth.

Gallagher's single extended his hot streak. He now has hit safely at least once in 24 of the last 28 games while raising his average from .250 to just a shade under .300.

Cumberland's performance gave the San Francisco staff, once maybe the leakiest in the National League outside of Pittsburgh, its 11th complete game in the last 20. In the stretch Juan Marichal pitched five complete games, Gaylord Perry four and Cumberland two.

While the Giants inch their way toward a division title Fox is playing things cool.

"We'll stick to our regular lineup, except to give a guy a breather or two, until we are mathematically assured of the title," he said. "Until then, we'll play every game as though it was our last and we had to win it."

Fox will have to do, though, without Dave Kingman, the big slugging first baseman-outfielder, who was operated on late Wednesday for the removal of his appendix.

Kingman reported to the ball park as usual Wednesday but complained of nausea and was

49ERS' DICK NOLAN

Working On Two Fronts

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI)—San Francisco 49ers coach Dick Nolan is working on two fronts—juggling the roster and preparing for Saturday's contest with the Oakland Raiders.

Nolan got his squad down to the required 49 players Tuesday by putting seven players on waivers Tuesday, but only five players' names were released.

On Wednesday, the 49ers announced that Jim McCann, a rookie punter from Arizona State and the team's eighth round draft choice, had passed through the 24-hour waiver recall period and had been put on the taxi squad.

The seventh player, Doug Berry, a free agent wide receiver from Southern Utah, was released.

Nolan still has other cuts to make, but they will come after the game with the Raiders.

Although he will want to get a further look at some new faces, Nolan also will be trying a bit harder to beat his crossbay rivals from Oakland. The Raiders have won the last three exhibitions following the 49ers victory in the 1967 opener.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Jenkins Turns On The Power

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ferguson Jenkins, the leading candidate for the National League Cy Young Award, and Tom Seaver, a former winner, both turned in sparkling winning performances Wednesday night to remind their teammates of what might have been in 1971 if only...

If only there had been more hitting, more consistency, fewer injuries, and just a wee bit more luck, things certainly would have been different. If only, if only...

Instead, the Chicago Cubs, for whom Jenkins has won 21 games, and the New York Mets, for whom Seaver has chalked up 233 strikeouts and the lowest ERA this side of Vida Blue, are straddled in third and fourth place in the National League East, 8 1-2 and 12 1-2 games respectively behind the first place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Jenkins led the Cubs to a 5-2 victory over Montreal by limiting the Expos to only six hits and driving in three runs with a pair of homers. In the conclusion of a suspended game from Tuesday, the Expos, aided by an eight-run sixth inning, downed the Cubs 11-2.

Jenkins, who has won 20 games for five straight seasons, trailed 2-1 going into the last of the fifth inning, but unloaded his third homer of the year with a man aboard to put the Cubs ahead to stay. After Jim Hickman tripled home Brock Davis, who had singled, in the sixth, Jenkins led off the seventh with another homer to close out the Cubs' scoring.

Seaver (16-8) fired a four-hitter for his fifth consecutive complete game victory as the Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-1.

Seaver, besting Bob Gibson for the third time this season, has allowed only four runs over the last 54 innings and has not lost a game since Aug. 1. He lowered his league-leading ERA to 1.92.

New York knocked Gibson, now 13-12, out of the game with three runs in the seventh after having scored one in the second and two in the third.

"We still have a decent chance to win the pennant, Seaver said with more hope than conviction. "Well, we have a slight chance," he added.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh won its fourth game in a row, defeating Philadelphia 10-7, Los Angeles trounced Houston 9-2, San Diego dumped Cincinnati 3-1 and San Francisco beat Atlanta 4-0.

Manny Sanguillen singled in a five-run first inning and hit a two run homer in the second as the Pirates extended their longest winning streak since late July, when they reeled off 11 straight victories.

Dave Roberts pitched a five-hitter against the Reds to lower his ERA to 1.99 and gain his 12th victory against 14 losses. A single by Enzo Hernandez a sacrifice and a single by nate Colbert in the first inning gave the Padres their first run off Gary Nolan who yielded only five hits before being lifted for a pinch-hitter after eight innings.

Don Sutton held the Astros to only four hits and rode an eight-run Dodger outburst in the second inning as he turned in his best performance of the year, striking out 12 and walking only one. He also chipped in a single in the decisive rally.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Orioles Still Have A Season's Goal

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Baltimore Orioles now have exactly one month before they play another game that really means something.

On Saturday, Oct. 2, the Orioles will play host to Oakland and Vida Blue in the first game of the American League playoffs as they shoot for their third straight pennant.

But that doesn't mean the Orioles are going to have a dull offical month. They still have quite a goal to shoot for. They have a realistic chance of becoming the first team in 51 years to boast four 20-game winners.

Mike Cuellar became the second pitcher on the staff to record No. 17 Tuesday night when he pitched a six-hitter as the Orioles clobbered the Boston Red Sox 8-2.

Merv Rettenmund, who is the Orioles' leading hitter with a .307 average but isn't guaranteed a place in the starting lineup in that first playoff game, hit a three-run homer in the five-run second inning and Cuellar coasted to the triumph.

This is how the records for the Orioles' "big four" now look:

Cuellar 17-7; Pat Dobson 17-6; Dave McNally 16-4; Jim Palmer 16-7.

The odds are still against all four pitchers making the 20game circle but they've certainly got a chance.

The interesting thing about their success is that in 1968, three of the four pitchers weren't even with the Orioles. Palmer was a sore-armed minor leaguer whose career was in jeopardy while Dobson had a 5-8 record with Detroit and Cuellar was 8-11 with Houston.

But Palmer's arm problems cleared up in 1969 and the Orioles picked up Cuellar for Curt Blefary in a steal of a trade. Dobson went to San Diego in the expansion draft and the Orioles completed their foursome last winter when they picked him up in a seven-player deal.

In the other AL games, Washington blanked New York 2-0, Milwaukee nipped Kansas City 3-2, Detroit edge Cleveland 4-3, Chicago topped Minnesota 2-0 in 11 innings and Oakland blanked California 7-0.

Bert Blyleven pitched 10 scoreless innings but Chicago jumped on reliever Bob Gebhard for two runs in the 11th to beat Minnesota. Carlos May's bloop single and Walt Williams' sacrifice fly produced the only runs of the game. Wilbur Wood pitched nine scoreless innings for Chicago but Bart Johnson got the victory in relief. Wood, 18-10, was pitching with two days rest and has now started five games in the last two weeks.

Ike Brown hit a three-run homer in the second and Bill Freehan singled home the deciding run in the sixth to lift Detroit past Cleveland. Les Cain went eight innings to get the victory and Fred Scherman finished up for his 19th save.

COMPLETE PITCHER — Chicago Cubs righthander Ferguson Jenkins accepts congratulations at the plate from Don Kessinger (11) after belting his first of two home runs yesterday enroute to recording his 21st win, 5-2 over Montreal at Wrigley Field. (UPI Telephoto) rushed to the hospital where his condition was diagnosed quickly.

"We hate to lose Dave," said Fox, "just when he was starting to get the hang of things. The doctors tell me he won't be able to play for at least three weeks."

With McCovey rested, first base will be his in the stretch, and if he needs a rest, Fox said he will call on Willie Mays, Ken Henderson, Hal Lanier or Russ Gibson.

"All four of them have played first before," said Fox, "and I'm sure any one of them could do it again if we have to rest McCovey a day or two."

All the Giants will be resting today—an off day in the schedule—but they go back to work Friday night against the Houston Astros. Marichal (14-9) will pitch Friday night. Don Carrithers (3-2) will work Saturday afternoon and in Sunday's doubleheader, the last of the year at Candlestick Park, it will be Perry (14-10) and Jim Willoughby. The latter was brought up from Phoenix the other day and will be making his major league debuts.

Speedy Crown Wins Easily

Du Quoin, Ill. — Speedy Crown, a $20,000 purchase little more than a year ago, returned the investment threefold Wednesday, trotting to an easy victory in straight heats in harness racing's classic Hambeltonian for 3-year-old trotters.

Speedy Crown, driven by Howard Beissinger, who piloted his second Hambletonian winner in three years, missed the world record by less than a second and the race record by 3/5 of a second when he trotted the first heat in 1:57 2/5 to win by three lengths.

It was the second fastest speed ever recorded in the Hambletonian, bettered only by the 1964 winner Ayres with 1:56 4/5, and equalled the seventh fastest speed ever by a 3-year-old trotter.

In the second heat, Speedy Crown, who earned $64,885, the fourth biggest payoff ever to a Hambletonian winner, was timed in 1:58 1/5. The race grossed $129,770, also the fourth biggest in the 46-year history of the event.

Swimming

PARIS — American swimmers have arrived in Euope one year before the Olympics with the youngest and strongest team ever to cross the Atlantic, but they face, both now and at Munich in 1972 the fiercest competition to date.

For Europen swimmers, led by East Germany and the Soviet Union whom the U.S. team meet Sept. 3-4 and 9-11 respectively, have never been faster or shown so much promise.

On the surface, the U.S. superiority is obvious. While the Russians and East Germans were busy breaking European records, American swimmers were shattering the world marks.

Comparative times favor the U.S. men in 11 of the 15 distances swum and the American girls in the 10 out of 14 races over similar lengths. But the once-dominant American teenagers now have often less than a second'sadvantage over their European rivals — and the gap appears to be narrowing.

Raiders Underdogs For Saturday Tilt

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI)— The San Francisco 49ers have been established as 2 1-2 point favorites in their game Saturday against Oakland by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

In a Super Bowl rematch, Dallas was listed Wednesday as a 1 1-2 point favorite over Baltimore Saturday.

Basketball

NEW YORK — Six players, including Tom Payne, the first black player to play basketball for the University of Kentucky, were declared eligible for the National Basketball Association's first supplementary draft of "hardship cases" Sept. 10.

Also named on the list announced Wednesday by NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy were Phil Chenier of California, Ed Ownes of Weber State, Cyril Baptiste of Creighton, Nate Williams of Utah State and Joe Hammond, who does not attend college but is not eligible for NBA play since his high school class has yet to graduate.

Football

BERKELEY — Pacific Eight Skywriters came to California Wednesday where they heard the case discussed that put the school on indefinite NCAA suspension.

Star halfback Isaac Curtis and others failed to take the test required of all athletes to predict a 1.6 grade point average.

Coach Ray Willsey blamed the whole thing on a clerical error and said that the school was looking into channels to protest the verdict but in no way planned to "defy" the NCAA.

NEW YORK — National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle believes it is "not realistic" to consider granting a new football franchise in New York City.

However, Rozelle, who met with Mayor John V. Lindsay at City Hall Wednesday for over an hour, said he was not committed one way or another.

Play One At A Time, Says Charlie Fox

Charlie Fox rarely interrupts an interviewer. But this time the manager of the Giants did. "I know what you are leading up to and I don't want to hear it — don't tell me," said Fox.

The question Fox interrupted started this way: "If the Giants win half of their remaining games and the Dodgers — ". That was as far as the questioner got.

FOX IS WELL aware of what the magic number is for the Giants in their drive to a division championship in the National League West. But he refuses to play the magic number game.

"I know only one way to play baseball," said Fox. "That's one game at a time. There's no other way to play any sport. Take golf, for example. The pros play that game one shot at a time. They give each individual shot their utmost concentration. I don't know one golf pro who plays a course. Any golf pro who starts thinking about the course instead of the shot in front of him is headed for trouble.

"AND ANY baseball team that starts thinking about how many games are left instead of c ncentrating on the one at hand is inviting potential trouble. We've come as far as we have playing them one at a time and we're not about to change now."

Fox also refused to be drawn into any speculative guessing about the National League's eastern division race. Assuming that the Giants do wrap it up neatly in the western division, would he prefer to face the Pirates, Cardinals or Cubs in the pennant playoffs?

"I just want our Giants to qualify for the playoffs," said Fox. "I'm not concerned who we play just as long as we play."

BUT WOULDN'T he prefer to meet the Pirates in the playoffs? Or the Cubs in preference to the Cardinals? After all, the Giants beat both Pirates and Cubs 9-3 in season play but lost the season series 5-7 to the Cardinals whose ace Bob Gibson beat the Giants four times.

"Gibson was rough on us," Fox acknowledged, "but as I said I'm not concerned who we play just so long as we qualify for the playoffs."

Well, then, what about the World Series, assuming the Giants not only are successful in their drive for a division flag but also the playoffs?

"I'D GIVE MY eye teeth to get in the World Series," said Fox.

Would he prefer to meet the A's or Orioles?

"The A's," said Fox. "Just imagine a bridge series between Oakland and San Francisco! It would be wonderful."

67 Is Tops In Amateur Golf Opener

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI)— Marty West, 23, just got out of school a few months ago. Now his chief nemesis in the U.S. National Amateur Golf Championship is a teacher who makes his own maps of the golf courses on which he plays.

West, a recent graduate of the University of North Carolina playing golf while awaiting a call by the military, shot a four-under-par 67 Wednesday to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the 72-hole tournament at Wilmington Golf Club.

West had to struggle out of bed before dawn Wednesday to be in the second threesome that teed off on the par-71, 6,872yard course, yet his round of one bogey and five birdies was not threatened until very late in the day when George Haines, 28, came in with a two-under 69.

Haines, who lives in Fair Hills, N.J. but teaches math in a secondary school in nearby Westtown, Pa., scrambled all over the course, missing more fairways with his drives than he made, but still compiling a round of two bogeys and four birdies.

During a practice round Tuesday for the U.S. Amateur, Haines prepared a meticulous map of the course—a procedure he follows on every course he plays, measuring the distance of his shots, plotting the pin placements and charting hazards.

The field of 148 was finding the club's south course hard to master with only 12 players matching or bettering par despite the opening round good weather of cloudy skies, cool temperatures and relatively little wind.

Those at one-under 70, three strokes behind West, were 1966 champion Gary Cowan, of Canada, fellow Canadian Nick Weslock, veteran amateur Bill Hyndman III of Huntingdon Valley, Pa., and youngsters Eddie Pearce, 19, of Tampa, Fla., and Robert Boyle, 20, of Summerville, S.C.

Giants Recall 14 For Next Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Giants have recalled 14 optioned players with five reporting to the team Friday and the others reporting to the team's spring training next year.

The Giants announced Wednesday that righthanded pitchers Steve Stone and Jim Moyer, catcher Dave Rader, infielder Chris Arnold and outfielder Bernie Williams, all from Phoenix, will join the team this week.

The other nine players who will report to spring training are pitchers Frank Reberger, Rich Robertson, Steve Koker, Lee Pitlock and Mike Davison and outfielders Frank Johnson, Floyd Wicker and Garry Maddox.

PREP FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Teams 'Gun' For Terra Linda

(Third in a series on Marin County Athletic League football prospects.)

By RON LENT

Terra Linda High again might use some "Lucas-pucas" magic to retain its Marin County Athletic League title this fall.

Trojan coach Don Lucas dismisses his team's hard-earned top status to "an eight-year lucky streak." His rivals around the league won't buy that, so they are again "pointing" toward Terra Linda.

This fact doesn't bother a winner like Lucas. Year after year, he continues turning out championship models, a trend reminiscent to that set by the Cleveland Browns in the 1950s.

The analogy continues on when viewing the coach's profile and squad style. Like erstwhile Cleveland mentor Paul Brown, Lucas methodically produces well-disciplined, ball control-oriented teams. When a component broke down or left, the bald-domed Brown would merely trot out a finely-tuned replacement; the same holds true for Lucas.

This annum, the Trojan leader must replace quarterback Larry Kerr, a proven leader and fine runner, along with backs John Scozzafava and Matt Bowman. Seemingly oblivious to the magnitude of the challenge, Lucas listed the likes of Kevin Donohoe, John Buckley and Mike Sabel as their replacements.

The new trio may provide the backbone to Terra Linda's forever solid grid group. Donohoe, a Napa refugee, is touted the key performer. Lucas calls him a "complete football player with great athletic sense, fine passing ability and good running style." He will need these qualities in abundance if he is to adequately replace the multi-talented Kerr at quarterback.

Lucas is confident his protege from the northeast will fill the bill, thus freeing veteran John Buckley to handle halfback duties. Prior to Donohoe's emergence, Lucas was listing Buckley as his number one signal calling candidate.

Fullback Mike Sabel, 5-foot-11 inches, 170 pounds, is the Trojan's largest thoroughbred in an otherwise smallish rushing unit. Sizewise, the backfield is typical of the Lucas mold. "We've never had big clubs. We've always depended on quickness to operate our shifting "I," slots and pro sets," he adds.

As in previous years, graduation has sapped much of the team's strength, particularly in this fall's offensive line. Lucas explains, "We have to replace our entire (starting) unit. When practice opened Aug. 23, Lucas greeted only three attacking segment interior line returnees. They are: Steve Rowell, 6-1, 190; Brian Jordan, 5-10, 180; and Billy Dobbs, 5-10, 180. The first named will move from guard to tackle. Though not built big, Rowell has the toughness necessary to be a good tackle, according to Lucas. Jordan will shift from guard to center, and Dobbs will fill Rowell's newly created vacancy.

Both Jordan and Dobbs played some defense last year, and will probably log more time there this year as linebackers. However, Lucas intends to try Jordan at tackle. If he works out there, this will strengthen a line that already includes Sabel at end. The only other known quality on this platoon is Buckley, Lucas's choice for the monster back role.

While certain question marks remain unanswered in the defensive alignment, such as in the secondary and line areas, one thing is sure — will be a typical, hard-hitting unit that defends the Terra Linda football honor this season.

The players must certainly believe in the man for "Lucas took us there before." True.

Stanford Has Good Chance To Repeat As Pac-8 Champ

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Wiles Hallock, who started out on the West Coast, wandered around the Midwest and Rockies for a while and now has come home again, starts his first year as Pacific Eight Conference Commissioner, and what a football year he picked.

Easily, it could be the best ever even with the ramifications of the NCAA suspension of California and UCLA for scholastic irregularities involving Isaac Curtis and James McAlister.

Stanford, as the defending champion and Rose Bowl winner, is the team everyone will be shooting at, and while many feel the Indians from Palo Alto will wind up with the title again, you can find just as many observers who think every other team in the conference has a shot at it with the exception of Washington State.

And the Cougars from Pullman aren't all that bad with a strong group of former redshirts and 32 returning lettermen.

Washington and Oregon, with fine quarterbacks in Sonny Sixkiller and Dan Fouts, a veteran Oregon State squad and usually tough USC figure to make it a close fight with Stanford for the league title. UCLA and California aren't more than a half a step away, but even should one of them win, the next place team will wind up in the Rose Bowl.

That fact, though, won't detract one bit from a tough race.

"They can take it away from us at a meeting but what we win on the field no one can take away," says California Coach Ray Willsey. "The fact we are on suspension from post-season play doesn't take anything away from our desire to play. We'll be as tough as we have to be."

Pepper Rodgers is starting out fresh at UCLA —taking over for Tommy Prothro —so he's not as outspoken about his school's suspension, but he's optimistic. "We don't have a quarterback as of the moment," says Rodgers, "but I know we'll be better later than we'll be in our first three games."

John Ralston, the "good guy" coach at Stanford, feels his Indians could be every bit as good as they were a year ago and maybe even stronger.

He bases his view on the fact that with Jim Plunkett gone Stanford will open up its offense.

"We'll still be a passing team," says Ralston, "but we'll do a lot of new things this year with Don Bunce as our quarterback."

Bunce, unlike Plunkett, is a rollout quarterback, but he can throw from the pocket if need be. With two fine running backs —and excellent pass catchers —in Jackie Brown and Hillary Shockley, Ralston will stick to a pro-type offense —with the quarterback throwing to the backs more than in the past.

Bunce is a durable runner so Ralston will use his talents to the fullest, or so he promises.

The Indians also have an experienced offensive line and an equally experienced defensive eleven, so seemingly Ralston could be right when he says "at the very least we're as good as the best team in our league, and maybe better."

Oregon State's strength lies in its experience.

"A lot of people are overlooking the fact we have most of our club back from last season," says Coach Dee Andros, "and we were as good as anybody in the final three games last year."

Andros says if his Beavers get by the first four games (Georgia, Iowa, Michigan State and UCLA), "You won't have to worry about us. We'll be on our way."

John McKay, who coached USC to four consecutive Pac-8 titles until Stanford and Plunkett stole his thunder last year, says his Trojans are the equal of any team in the league this year.

"This team has as good a chance of winning it as anybody," he says, basing his optimism on an improved defense and an offense headed by quarterback Jimmy Jones, the running of Sam Cunningham and Bill Holland and a huge offensive line.

UCLA's problem, besides the loss of McAlister, is no regular quarterback. However, the Bruins should be solid on defense and have a pair of fine running backs in Randy Tyler and Gary Campbell.

California may spend the entire season trying to develop a quarterback from a flock of candidates, and by the time the Bears come up with a man, it may be too late. However, they are solid in every other department and Willsey has a way of getting the most out of the least.

MARIN-SONOMA GOLF

Club Championship Time On The Links

With the 1971 Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions only 10 days in the history books, area courses will be starting tournaments to renew their club champs this month.

First club off the tee will be Indian Valley of Novato which starts its men's club championship Sunday, George Scherba defending his title. On Sept. 11, Peacock Gap of San Rafael and Marin Country Club of Novato begin their tourneys. Robert Bond is the current champ at Peacock Gap.

Marin C.C. is technically without a defending champ, although Mat Palacio Jr. is the winner of the Aug. 22 Tournament of Champions played at Peacock Gap. Palacio represented Marin Country Club after winning a playoff for the spot. The club champ, Milt Morley, had moved out of the state and wasn't available for the tourney. And Palacio, a scratch golfer, will be heavily favored to win the Marin C.C. title.

Jim Brown will be defending his title at Mill Valley Municipal when that club holds its championship tourney beginning Sept. 19.

Qualifying round for the San Geronimo National club championship will be Oct. 9. Meadow Club of Fairfax does not issue any golf tournament information to the Independent-Journal.

RUSS GARDINER shot a 79 to win the age 15-17 division of San Geronimo's first junior tournament Monday. Jamie Tufts fired an 88 to win in age 13-14, and Patrick Fahy's 98 won in 10-12.

GORDON JOHNSON, who lives in Peacock Gap, near the course itself, was really on target last Saturday during a club tourney. He aced the 140-yard 10th hole, the ball landing in the cup on the fly.

THE FUZZ cwas all over the Peacock Gap course yesterday (Wednesday) when 100 San Francisco policemen blanketed the course. It was a San Francisco Police Golf Tournament, so no arrests were made.

MARIN COUNTRY CLUB'S 12-man travel team still holds the lead in the Bay Area Golf League with 157 points and takes on second place Contra Costa (140) Sept. 17 in the final match of the season. It will be played at the Contra Costa Country Club.

MARIN COUNTY Real Estate Board golf tourney will be held Sept. 17 at Marin Country Club, a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Handling reservations is Art Schallock. Low handicap golfer (4) is Art Schallock. Hmmmm.

Advantages Of Foreign Shares

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Please explain ADRs, their advantages, disadvantages, voting and legal aspects and vulnerability to governmental interference or bank failure? — C.C.

A. American Depository Receipts represent shares of foreign securities held in overseas depository banks. Receipts for these shares are issued by one of a handful of major U.S. banks. The foreign and domestic banks involved are large commercial institutions and in very little danger of failing.

The probability of governmental interference with ADRs or their underlying securities is no different than for the directly-owned foreign security.

Direct purchases of foreign securities from a foreigner are usually subject to an 11.25 per cent interest equalization tax. ADRs are priced equivalently higher than their foreign counterparts to reflect exemption from this tax. Because receipts are issued in registered form, foreign share ownership is greatly simplified for Americans.

The issuing U.S. bank has the responsibility of forwarding dividends, minus nonresident taxes imposed by many nations, payable in U.S. dollars. Most overseas corporations issue only bearer stock with dividends paid in foreign currency and collectable at specified banks.

Q. I would appreciate any information you can give me on Agway, Inc. — G.G.

This farmers' co-operative was organized in Jan. 1964 to succeed the Eastern States Co-operative and Grange League Federation. It serves 12 Eastern states and operates retail garden and agricultural stores. Late last year in a combined underwriting, more than $23 million was raised to be used for debt repayment, expansion and working capital.

Voting common stockholders are the member farmers who produce for and buy from the co-operative. Common shares are issued and redeemed by Agway for $25, one share for each bona fide farmer operator. There is no public market in the common.

Subs Show Promise In Commerce

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The noted oceanographer, Dr. Jacques Piccard, predicted recently that a commercial market for submarines at last is becoming a reality.

Ever since the Germans sent the submarine freighter Deutschland across the Atlantic to get a cargo of grain in 1916, underwater enthusiasts have insisted that someday submarines would carry a lot of the world commerce.

The newest proposal for cargo submarines is that of General Dynamics' Electric Boat division at Groton, Conn.. It sees underwater supertankers hauling oil from the Arctic slope of Alaska under the ice floes of the Northwest Passage to Atlantic ports. The Esso group has given this proposal serious consideration.

In the August issue of the Compass, a house organ of Marine Office-Appleton & Cox Corp., a big insurance group, Dr. Piccard, experienced in small research submarines, says they are about to become everyday commercial working tools like the truck, the bulldozer or the tugboat.

He says they will be used by oil companies to monitor and even to help lay thousands of miles of undersea pipelines and drilling stations.

Dr. Piccard also foresees submarines being used in ship salvaging, treasure hunting, fisheries research, life-saving operations and cargo carrying.

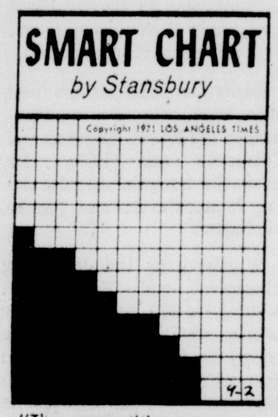
The submarine's greatest advantage over surface craft is its invulnerability to storms. At 200 feet down it would not even feel a hurricane severe enough to snap a big surface liner. Even on the surface its profile offers little target to wind and waves.

Modern naval submarines are nuclear powered and have unlimited range. Dr. Piccard concedes nuclear fuel is too expensive for commercial submarines, but he says the Walther diesel process developed by the Germans in World War II and improved by the British after the war could power workboat submarines economically. This method uses hydrogen peroxide instead of air to enable the craft to operate diesel engines while submerged.

American submarine builders say Dr. Piccard may be too enthusiastic. At present the only active market for submarines other than naval craft is for small electric or manually propelled subs used by scuba divers for sport and research. They are made by Perry Submarine Builders of Riviera Beach, Calif., American Submarine Co. of Lorain, Ohio, and International Hydrodynamics of Vancouver, among others.

But the companies that have built research submarines a little bigger —25 to more than 50 feet long —say they ran into problems. Only Electric Boat has managed to sell more than one. Others who have built such craft are Grumman Aerospace, Ingalls shipbuilding division of Litton Industries, North American Rockwell, Westingthouse Electric, Lockheed Aircraft, Lear-Siegler and Reynolds Metals.

"Except for straight scientific research, the craft have not been used nearly as much as anticipated," said a spokesman for Ingalls. It built the Alvin for the Woods Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institute. The Alvin justified her cost by a single achievement, the recovery of a hydrogen bomb dropped off the Spanish coast from a B-52 bomber.



"The competition says we must have had the world's smartest customers because they aren't buying from us anymore."

Very Little Change On The Market

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market showed a steady tone in light trading near noon today.

It was a typical pre-holiday market and analysts said they looked for little change in behavior until after Labor Day.

The government reported that wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent in August. It said, however, the latest statistics were based on surveys made prior to the start of the Aug. 16 wage-price freeze.

Prices were slightly higher in quiet trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Among the most active Amex issues were Morse Electro Products down slightly on 65,000 shares, Pickwick International fractionally higher on 33,000 shares.

On the Big Board Plessey and Amerada Hess, running one-two on the most active list, were off 1-8 and up 1 1-2, respectively.

Steels, motors, rails, airlines and aircrafts generally followed narrowly irregular paths. Monsanto lost 1⅛ in the chemicals, and Superior Oil dropped a point in its group.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Fred Temps Leaves Insurance Field For Upholstery Firm

Now it can be told — after almost 10 months of ownership of the Sam Busschaert upholstery business in San Rafael, Fred W. Temps can come out openly and admit the fact.

Temps, who lives in San Rafael, puchased the business from Mrs. Busschaert last November, but had built up his own position as district manager in Marin County for Farmers Insurance Co. over 14 pears and was too involved with over 1,500 accounts to break free of it completely.

Now he has done so and is giving all his time to the upholstery firm founded by the late Sam Busschaert, who died about two years ago. The business will be carried under the same name without any change.

Taking over as Farmers district manager is James G. Bartley of Novato, who plans on establishing new offices in the San Rafael area.

RICHARD A. OLRICH of San Rafael, manager of Wells Fargo Bank's Cow Hollow office in San Francisco, has been promoted to assistant vice president. He opened the office as manager last February and has been with the bank since 1964. During this time he was credit manager and assistant manager in the Petaluma office and was manager of the Greenbrae office in 1969.

Olrich

Clayton

WILLIAM EARLE CLAYTON, former merchandise manager at the Emporium's Northgate store, has been made manager of the Emporium at Coddingtown Shopping Center in Santa Rosa. He has been with the company since 1958 and has been living in South San Francisco. No replacement for Clayton as merchandise manager at Northgate has yet been made.

KEITH L. WARFIELD of San Rafael has been named division business sales manager of Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies in San Francisco. He was previously with the company's Minnesota office as district sales manager and before that worked in St. Louis and Detroit.

Wollborg

Nagy

FOUR SAN RAFAEL MEN, Raymond K. Sullivan, Hendrik Van Dijke, Charles Wollborg and Andrew Nagy, have been graduated from the home office Business Management Certification Program of the Bechtel Corp. Completion of the program, which takes three years of classwork, is equivalent to a year of accredited university graduate study.

REAL ESTATE: Roy Farrington Jones of Ross will observe his 25th anniversary as a licensed real estate broker on Monday. He is a partner with his father in the San Anselmo office of Farrington Jones and Son.

Tokyo Has World's Worst Air Pollution

By FREDERICK H. MARKS

TOKYO (UPI) —Tokyo, the world's most populous city, has what many observers believe to be the world's worst air pollution.

And the Japanese government's environmental agency and the Tokyo municipal government disagree about whether the smog is getting better or worse.

"Air pollution over Japan's larger cities is much less of a problem this year than last," a federal environmental agency official said.

"The air over Tokyo is much dirtier this year than last," counters a municipal official.

Although the air over Tokyo during the hot summer months this year did seem cleaner than in the comparable season last year, the number of persons who have suffered ill effects from air pollution this year jumped 630 per cent.

Last summer 3,785 persons reported ill effects from the smog, while this summer over 23,505 persons have been physically affected by the dirty air.

Pollution alerts —when drivers are asked to leave their cars home, residents are warned to stay indoors and factories are asked to use fuel with a low sulfur content — have been issued 22 times this year, as opposed to nine times last year.

But the fact remains that the air doesn't seem as dirty as last year.

One possible explanation is that this summer has not been as hot as last year. Another explanation is that people are better informed on the effects of smog. Runny eyes and noses may not be the result of a summer cold, rather they could be the result of dirty air. And because more people know this, more people are reporting it.

The Tokyo municipal government has increased its detection stations from three to 14 facilities. The national government now has 225 air pollution detection stations and are planning to build 15 more.

But what the people of Japan need now is not more detection stations —they know the smog is there —but increased efforts to curb the air pollution.

The Diet (Parliament) this year passed a new, revised air pollution control law, which provides a $280 dollar fine and six-month jail term for anyone convicted of knowingly contributing to air pollution.

But even though the law has been in effect since June, it has yet to be used. Not one person or firm has been charged under the new law, even though the air pollution continues to affect thousands of people.

One official on the new environmental agency, created July 1, said action would probably be taken this year only if there were a "serious" outbreak of people being affected by smog. The official implied that the outbreak would have to be similar to the occurrence last summer when nearly 50 school children playing during a recess were severely affected by smog, some of them experiencing temporary paralysis in their legs.

That attitude infuriates officials of the Tokyo municipal government who charge the federal government with being subservient to big business. The ties between business and the federal government, city officials say, have resulted in virtually no action being taken against either factories contaminating the air or auto companies that don't equip cars sold in Japan with anti-pollution devices.

And municipal officials are convinced the smog is as bad as ever this year.

The Tokyo government this week released a study on air pollution which concluded that the smog above Tokyo is caused mostly by the exhaust from automobiles and trucks.

"We now believe that exhaust from automobiles is the major cause of air pollution in Tokyo," the report said. "In our studies, we believe that there is a layer of sticky and thick smog that remains high in the air above Tokyo. Air currents and the hot sun cause the layer to drop down on the city during the summer."

Toshio Ohira, director of the city's environmental center, added, "Although we put the major responsibility of the smog on auto exhaust, we still do not take lightly the contamination from industrial sources."

Life Shows Two Marin Structures

Life magazine depicts two Marin County structures as colorful examples of a new wave of floating real estate, in its Sept. 3 special issue devoted to "Americans outdoors."

Sculptor Chris Roberts's towering, still uncompleted "Madonna" on a barge, and Mary Holt's redwood water tank converted into a home are shown. Both are on the shores of Richardson Bay.

Also to be seen is a photograph of the houseboat home of two former Marinites, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pratt, at Portage Bay in the Seattle area. Anchored alongside is their ketch Sans Souci, aboard which they made their home in the Sausalito yacht harbor before moving north where Pratt works for a lumber company. Mrs. Pratt worked for the Marin Probation Department while in the county.

Boys Club Drive Gets A Boost

The Novato Boys Club's $100,000 building fund drive has reached $13,389, Edward T. Ghirardo, chairman of the bond division, reported today.

The fund was boosted with a $1,000 contribution from Dr. Raymond R. Rediske, a veterinarian, making a total of seven who have contributed $1,000.

There have been 59 contributors, Ghirardo said. The drive, in which contributors are given Boys Club bonds, will continue until Oct. 1.

Government Scores Victory In Thermal Pollution Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government claimed victory Wednesday in its first case against thermal pollution when an electrical utility agreed to stop discharging hot water into the Florida bay on which President Nixon has a vacation home.

Florida Power and Light Co. estimated that its agreement to stop discharging heated water into Biscayne Bay from its big Turkey Point generating station would cost $30 million.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced that a proposed consent order had been filed in U.S. District Court in Miami against Florida Power and Light. It marked a victory in the government's effort to stop damage to marine life in the bay because of the hot waste water discharged from the cooling system of two coal fired generating plants.

The utility is constructing two new nuclear generating plants at the station, and the problem of thermal pollution would have been much more critical when they began operating had the agreement not been reached.

Marine life damage has been limited to immediately around the Turkey Point station, on Biscayne Bay about 25 miles south of Miami, and has not affected the beach in front of the President's home which is several miles away.

The utility agreed to build a reservoir cooling system within five years, and to build a canal within four years to divert hot water five miles south to Card Sound. Florida Power and Light originally proposed the canal as its only cooling system, but the federal and Florida state governments said that would only transfer the problem from Biscayne Bay to Card Sound.

Under the consent order, the company agreed to immediately stop dumping water hotter than 95 degrees into either Biscayne Bay or Card Sound, and to rely as much as possible on other sources of power pending completion of the cooling system.

Once the cooling system is completed, the cooled water will then reflow through the plant, largely eliminating the need to take water from the bay. The only dumping then allowed would be to prevent the constantly recycled water from becoming too salty, and it could be dumped only into the canal.

A hearing on the proposed consent order was scheduled for Sept. 9 in the case, which the Justice Department first brought at the Interior Department's request. The new Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has since taken over the pollution control function of the Interior Department.

Government biologists believe at least some damage had already taken place over about 300 acres of the bay. They said water temperatures have reached as much as 103 degrees 300 yards offshore from the plants, and 95 degrees over the affected area.

They said this was critical, particularly in Biscayne Bay because its natural temperature already is high —90 degrees — and marine life had adjusted its life cycle to a delicate balance at the high temperature. They said even a temperature rise to 92 degrees can cause damage.

Increasing the temperature of water can kill small fish or fish eggs, can cause adult fish to spawn at the wrong time or fail to spawn altogether. The higher temperatures also alter the growth of plant life.

A Lack Of VD Teaching Cited

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A report prepared for the state Board of Education concludes antivenereal disease instruction at most California schools is inadequate to stem the rising VD rate.

The study says none of the state's 7th and 8th grade textbooks even mention the topic. It said some schools are buying paperbacks about VD to fill the void.

The survey, which the board will consider at its meeting next week, said outdated materials and a fear by teachers of violating state restrictions on sex education are the two major reasons for the inadequate instruction on venereal disease.

New Burglar/Fire Alarm Provides "Plug-in" Protection

You program the Preventor II alarm system like a computer to perform what you want it to do . . . turn on lights, sound alarm, call police, etc. It generates silent sound waves that create an invisible "no man's land" which an intruder cannot get through without triggering the alarm. A direct spin-off of advanced space age and military security technology. It protects against fire and smoke too. No wiring or installation — just plugs in. Looks like an expensive stereo. That's Preventor II — the world's most foolproof, yet inexpensive alarm system. Seeing is believing.

Waiver Of Taxes Asked For West Coast Ships

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Correspondent

WASHINGTON — California's two Democratic Senators have appealed to Treasury Secretary John Connally to waive the 10 per cent surcharge on imported goods in vessels which arrived in West Coast ports before Aug. 16 but were unable to unload because of the dock strike.

Sens. Alan Cranston and John V. Tunney, in a joint letter to Connally, said 87 ships with cargo valued at $291 million were in the ports as of 12:01 a.m. Aug. 16 when President Nixon's new economic rules went into effect.

West Coast docks have been shut down since July 1.

Cranston and Tunney pointed out that American importers had either paid for the merchandise or agreed to pay a certain price before Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge was announced.

In some cases, the senators said, importers already had negotiated a resale price to retailers which they are contractually bound to meet.

"Importers in other parts of the nation, not having to absorb the delayed unloading, now have similar merchandise, which was ordered during the same period, on the market and at a price 10 per cent below what their West Coast competitors will be required to charge," they said.

"To require that the West Coast importers pay the surcharge on cargo in ships tied up in strike-closed ports has the effect of penalizing them for a strike to which they are not a party."

Cranston and Tunney said the dock strike already had penalized importers who have had to pay more for extended credit while cargo, which they borrowed money to purchase, remains on board.

Further extra costs have been incurred by importers who had goods unloaded in Mexican and Canadian ports and shipped to them by rail and truck.

Under these circumstances, Cranston and Tunney told Connally, the imposition of the 10 per cent surcharge "clearly discriminates against the importers."

They said the surcharge in this instance "serves no useful purpose in improving the balance of power position of the U.S. and would create such an extreme hardship on the West Coast economy."

And, if you bought a new '71 from one of our dealers on or after August 16, see him about your refund from the company.

So, while all the other car companies are waiting around for Congress to act, American Motors is acting.

See your dealer now.
